THE SMARTEST FASHIONS OF WELL-DRESSED FOLK

AFTER COMMENCEMENT

DEAR MADGE:

Margaret Hallowell has just been graduated from the high school, and asked me down to see the girls and their pretty frocks. At least, she asked me down for the ceremonies, and afterward, being a mere older person in the youthful throng, I retired to the background and looked on.

Some of the guests wore charming little gowns. One girl I saw was in prune-color silk voile, with yoke and sleeves of chiffon in a slightly lighter shade veiling the bands of eyelet embroidery which outlined the foundation yoke and under-sleeves of white chiffon. The skeleton sailor collar reached to the waist, and was cut out to form the V-shaped yoke back and front.

The skirt had inset bands of shirred chiffon, which looked well on the girl's slender figure; but they might just as well be omitted by a stout wearer. The skirt binding was an inch-wide band of cerise satin, repeated in the belt, which had a single sash end with fancy cord and fringe.

The hat with this was a prune-color straw with a "rabbit-ear" bow of soft satin ribbon. The white straw lining was turned up like a cuff in back, thus giving the popular poke-bonnet shape.

By her stood a graduating friend, all in white, of course: a batiste foundation, with eyelet embroidery applied on the blouse and sleeves, with beading between the seams. The obi was of the embroidery also, with a ruffled edge.

Another graduate's gown had a touch of pale pink on blouse and skirt in the shape of silk rosebuds. The frock was of marquisette over a lawn slip, and the rosebuds bound one sleeve and one side of the surplice; those on the skirt were sewed on the lawn slip under the marquisette.

One more gown, and I must stop. It belonged to another guest: a pink Japanese crepe (the dress, not the girl) made with an applied hem and a circular facing to take the place of collar and cuffs. Both blouse and skirt were trimmed with white crocheted buttons, connected by crocheted bands so as to form frogs. The only other trimming was a very wide and long obi of black velvet.

With this went a hat in poke-bonnet shape (perhaps a last year's leghorn), lace edged and black velvet stringed, with two flower cabochons—roses and violets. The whole thing was like a flower garden, though, wasn't it?

Yours faithfully,

ELEANOR

FEAR REVOLT IN LAND OF CZAR

The Outward Appearances in Russia Declared to Be Covering Seething Interior.

Chief of Russian Secret Police, Exposed as Blackmailer, Is Suicide.

(By GEORGE FRASER.)
ST. PETERSBURG, May 20.—While on the surface the revolutionary movement appears to have pretty well died out in Russia as an active threatening force to the government, occasionally there reaches the public some bit of news which indicates that all is not so serene in the land of the Czar as the officials would like to have it believed.

For example the Ritz recently presented an item to the effect that forty soldiers attached to the artillery at Smolensk have been placed under arrest as the result of the disappearance of a strong box in charge of the regiment, containing secret communications belonging to the Czar.

What the character of the missing documents are is not stated, but it is believed they contain information of great value to the revolutionaries.

TAKES OWN LIFE.

M. Raskatoff, chief of the Russian secret police at Archangel, having been exposed in most sensational fashion as a blackmailer, took his own life.

The story is told in much detail by the local newspapers. Not long since M. Kostogoroff, an Archangel millionaire, received an anonymous letter informing him "in the name of a group of political exiles" that if he did not deposit the sum of $250 at a certain place and at a certain time, the life of his only daughter would be "watered with vitriol." It was added that it would be vain on his part to go to the secret police.

M. Kostogoroff, on receiving the above letter, went to the gendarmery headquarters, and the authorities there arranged an ambush for the designated rendezvous.

M. Kostogoroff was punctual to the moment, and placed an envelope at the spot indicated. A man dressed in civilian clothes, and with his face more or less concealed, walked rapidly toward the enche.

The gendarmes rushed on him, and seized him, and he was somewhat roughly handled before his identity was discovered. He was the head of the secret police! The gendarmery officer tried to explain away the incident to his men, and M. Raskatoff was not arrested on the spot. But he shot himself before the affair could be officially investigated.

580 ARRESTED.

The remarkable scene of 580 persons being escorted to a police station created considerable excitement in Russia the other evening.

While a Polish drama was being played in the theatre at Bendzin, Russian Poland, the chief of police entered at the head of a strong force of his men and with all the people present, including spectators, actors, and scene shifters, was under arrest.

All were taken to the police station, where they were questioned for hours. They were only released next morning after their identity had been established.

All were informed, however, that they would be prosecuted for machinations dangerous to the State.

The drama, it seems, was being performed despite its prohibition by the censor.

The possibility that she may be both a British and a Russian subject has arisen in the case of Miss Malecka, who is in prison at Warsaw in connection with a charge of conspiring against the Russian government. Miss Malecka has been resident at Warsaw as a teacher of music. Miss Malecka, shortly after entering Russia, expressed herself very strongly on political matters, and received a serious warning from the British Consul. After her arrest he was refused permission to visit her in prison.

TRIES TO KIDNAP WRONG WOMAN

The Mayor of Spanish Town Balked in Effort to Regain Wife.

MADRID, May 20.—A remarkable thing has happened to Don Higinio Diez, the worthy mayor of Villazquez, in the province of Burgos. The Don was married in the case of Miss Malecka, who is in prison at Warsaw in connection with a charge of conspiring against the Russian government. Miss Malecka has been resident at Warsaw as a teacher of music. Miss Malecka, shortly after entering Russia, expressed herself very strongly on political matters, and received a serious warning from the British Consul. After her arrest he was refused permission to visit her in prison.

The friend undertook the mission; and to his intense delight received a message that the lady had been seen in the streets of Madrid. The solitary Don Higinio at once hurried to the capital, and his friends heard in action by the lady for the beautiful fugitive.

Going along the Puerta del Sol, the friend suddenly exclaimed, "Mayor, there is your wife," pointing across the street to a well-dressed lady. Without hesitation the mayor rushed up to the lady, seized her by the hand and insisted on her going with him. The lady protested, and resisted, and ultimately the police marched all parties, followed by an enormous crowd, to the nearest police station. Here the lady protested that she was an innocent single woman; the mayor was equally positive that she was his lost wife, Eugenia Rueda, his wife, and his friends heard in action by the lady for the beautiful fugitive.

As regards the question whether Amundson had a right to enter into a field of research which had already been the territory of the exploration of others, I am certain that the president of the Royal Geographical Society expressed the feeling of the British nation when he said that no explorer obtains any vested right merely by exploration, and that all foreign competition on the Antarctic continent should be welcomed wherever it appeared. This is in full accordance with the canon of the scientific world universally organized in all scientific research.

SCOTLAND'S POPULATION SHOWS BIG FALLING OFF

Figures Alarm London and Cause of Decrease Is Sought; Growth of Mormonism Said to Be Beyond Realization

(By PAUL LAMBETH.)
LONDON, May 20.—The heavy decrease in the population of Scotland as shown by buyers has caused widespread comment here.

An appalling state of affairs is revealed by the preliminary census figures for Scotland. The actual increase in the towns shows a wholesale falling short from the estimated increase. It is in the counties, however, that the most alarming symptoms are observed. The loss of population there is so great that it may be said that Scotland is being rapidly depopulated. In a single sailing day 3000 men and women left for America.

Nothing could give a more striking impression of the process of Scotland's depopulation than an hour spent in the emigration offices here. They have been packed with people, young women and men, well-set-up lads and lassies from twenty to thirty years old, all bound on the same errand—namely, the buying and arranging of passages out to lands across the seas.

A lively discussion took place on Sir Henry Dalziel's amendment to the Veto bill, which would have enabled the House of Commons to pass its measures over the heads of the lords after two sessions instead of after three as the bill proposes. The Tories wanted to omit the word "three," and substitute the word "four." They openly avowed their intention of voting for the radical amendment so far as omitting the word "three" was concerned. But when it came to substituting another word their intention was to have voted against the proposal to substitute "two." The bill would thus have been fatally mutilated. The Radicals refused to fall into the trap, and the strange spectacle was witnessed of a section of the Tories marching alone into the division lobby in support of a Radical amendment.

DOMESTIC WOMAN IS QUEEN MARY'S IDEAL

Consort of British Ruler Bars Cards, Cigarettes, Automobiles and Aeroplanes, and Would Dictate the Styles

(By LADY MARY MANWARING.)
London, May 20.—Queen Mary's recent announcement against the hobble skirt is but another indication of the trend of Her Majesty's mind which indicates that the tendency of the court will be towards the rather burlesque ideas of the later Victorian years.

In fact the Queen is, as has been said, "on the side of the angels," and already the effects of her influence is beginning to show. They will be much more marked it is understood after the coronation.

She is dead against "playing cards for money, betting on races, cigarette-smoking for women, and other such up-to-date diversions, and she seems to think that her own sex should not shoot, stalk deer, drive their own motors, or fly in aeroplanes.

Her Majesty is also averse to "risque plays and to novels on sex questions. The domestic woman is Queen Mary's ideal. Then she has her own views on dress and personal adornment. As regards ladies in waiting and maids in honor, she has put a ban on overtight skirts, huge hats, and daisy gloves that are made with half-short sleeves and with no neck-bands. She likewise objects to hair that is too much puffed at the sides, or that is coiffed in the extreme of fashion.

The Queen likes her ladies to dress more or less on their own lines, but at court is an understated fact that there must be no undue imitation of royal costumes.

It is no secret that the Queen has much the stronger will of the royal couple, and that she will have her way in all such matters. The younger and gayer set regard the outlook as distinctly gloomy.

POPULAR BRITISH WOMEN.

Princess Alexandra George of Teck is said to be the most popular of the younger generation of the royal family, and while living in the Royal Pavilion at Aldershot, was known locally as "Our Pretty Princess."

She is the only daughter of the Duchess of Albany, and possesses the notable domesticity of character of her mother. She had two little children, the last baby dying some months ago after living a few weeks.

The princess is a particular chum of her sister-in-law, Queen Mary. She spends most of her time at her residence in the old Henry III tower at Windsor Castle, though it is probable that she will one day be installed in her own home, White Lodge, Richmond Park. The princess will be a prominent figure at court this season.

The Hon. Mrs. Sackville Philip Tufnell is one of the best of the London social set. She was formerly Miss Cicely Mary Isabel Holl, who, as a debutante was always in demand at social functions owing to her charm of manner. Her betrothal to the Hon. Sackville Philip Tufnell took place at St. Paul's, Knightsbridge, on April 22. The Hon. Tufnell is the second son of Lord Hothfield, and a prominent member of the Carlton Club.

Lady Evelyn Ewart is a well known and popular figure in society. Her husband, Major-General Sir Henry Ewart, was for many years crown equerry in the Master of the Horse's department. Her husband and her husband are highly in favor with the royal family. She is a sister of the present Lord Ancester, and during the lifetime of her late husband, she was a member of the royal household, and her husband was a member of the royal household.

Lady Ewart can herself drive a team with the best, and her horses are among the best in London. She is a member of the Countess of Dalhousie, Lady Margaret Rutherford and Lady Cecile Goff.

WATCH ROMANCE.

Society has been watching a rather interesting romance with keen eyes. For some time the pretty daughters of a certain very prominent Indian Rajah have been very prominent in the smart set of Bohemian society in London, and are to be seen among the regular habitués of the supper room on Saturday night. Among the young men who worshiped at the shrine of these dusky divinities was the young Marquis of Stafford, heir to the title and great estates of the state of the great house of Stafford.

Nothing can be said against the young ladies, who, in their own country, are among the great ones of the earth, the idea of an alliance between the heir of the great house of Stafford and the daughter of the Prince of a subject race was not to be thought of for a moment, so that immediately the young man's family were cognizant of the state of affairs, efforts were made, and we hope successfully, to cure the young man of his love-sickness. With that end in view, his lordship is, as we have said, shooting big game in Africa, and it is to be hoped that the good advice of his family and the presence of his pretty cousin may bring the young man to a proper appreciation of this position as an English gentleman and the heir to such great family traditions and power.

CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY.

Lord Avebury celebrated his birthday the other day. He proves very effectively the fact that the world has almost been remade in the last century.

"Although I am now yet eighty," he says, "I am older than the railway company, any electric light company, any telephone or telegraph company."

A story is told of a surgical operation Lord Avebury once had to undergo. His friends tried to persuade him to take chloroform.

HISRUET MEMORIAL.

Among the multitude of suggestions for fittingly commemorating the reign of King Edward VII, perhaps the most novel of all is that emanating from Captain MacLachlan, R. N., who says: "Our late King strongly favored the growth of the beard; he grew one himself, and to say the least, encouraged its growth by the members of his personal staff. His brother, the Duke of Edinburgh, a naval officer, grew a beard. Our present King shares the habit of his father, and grows a beard himself and makes his staff do the same."

"Among the men of the present day, the beard is an exception, not the rule. It is not incompatible with the habits of the Empire, who are otherwise always ready to accept a royal lead, should in this matter show such indifference, or worse, to the views both expressed and implied of their King? Is it not time that they emulated their examples and fulfilled their wishes?"

"The British Empire in beards would be a memorial to our late King such as his beard was to the Victorian age. One doubt how such a memorial would be appreciated by his son, our present King."

TO REVISE PARTY.

The King intends to revise the annual garden party at Buckingham Palace, thus reverting to the Victorian habit, whereas his father preferred to make everyone come to Windsor. Queen Victoria rarely slept at the Palace on the night of the garden party, but she came up to town for the afternoon, and returned from Fiddling in time for her late dinner at nine. Some awkward contretemps used to occur owing to her not knowing who the guests were. The King and Queen have a huge acquaintance there is no fear of history repeating itself in this matter.

Quite a number of aristocratic people are anxious to see the party revised in the pageant which is being organized in connection with the Festival of the Empire at the Crystal Palace. Some of them are spending very large sums on their costumes. Lord Howard de Walden, for example, has paid £150 to equip himself properly in order to appear in the character of the Black Prince.

HAREM SKIRT WEDDING.

Nearly two thousand women assembled at the Union Congregational Church, Sunderland, on Saturday night, to see a "harem skirt" wedding. The congregation were so curious that when anyone entered the church they sprang on their seats to look. The Rev. J. G. Aldridge, the officiating minister, said, "This is most unseemly. It is unbefitting the occasion, and shows a deplorable lack of reverence." Outside there was an eager rush at each taxicab that came up.

When the wedding party arrived they were all in ordinary conventional attire. The crowd had been hoaxed.

Though not exactly as common as blackberries, women churchwardens are neither a novelty nor a curiosity, as the Easter vestries remind us. Isabella, Marchioness of Exeter, who was unanimously elected churchwarden for the parish of St. James, Strand, in London, has been churchwarden for twelve years. At Walsgrave-Sove, Miss Verrall, a well-known follower of the Atherton and North Warwickshire hounds, is churchwarden, and it is said that she renewed interest in the work of the church has resulted.

There have been quite a number of well-to-do and well-known ladies who have at various times held the office. A woman sexton is rather a rarity, but there is one in Lincolnshire. She has again been elected to the office, which has been hereditary in her family for over 200 years.

AUSTRIAN KING IN FEEBLE HEALTH

Peter of Serbia Asked to Postpone His Visit to Vienna for a Time.

(By EMIL ANDRASSY.)
VIENNA, May 20.—It is declared officially that the emperor's health is normal but for a slight cold. It is regarded as significant, however, that King Peter of Serbia has been requested to postpone his visit to Vienna for awhile.

That his majesty is very feeble is not denied and the recurrence of these colds is giving very serious concern.

It may be that international politics was really at the bottom of the Serbian king's visit, as there is a strongly backed report that King Peter is in trouble with his people and that the announcement of his abdication need cause no surprise.

Passing as "Mme. Juliette," a Hapsburg and a distant cousin of Emperor Francis Joseph, has been unearthing carrying on a dressmaking establishment in Geseedin, an obscure Hungarian town.

But that is a decided step up the social ladder for Baroness Julie Elchhof-Hassberg-Battner, who has followed the occupation of a maid-of-all-work in a station master's menage. Tragedy has married no less than three matrimonial attempts on which she has embarked during her career. Her first husband, a lieutenant of Hussars, spent her fortune and blew out his brains. The second, a chemist, poisoned himself within six months of the wedding day, and from the third the baroness obtained a divorce.

Then it was that she entered domestic service. Subsequently, better opportunities offered themselves, and she became established as a modiste.

WINS HER CASE.

Miss Emily Destinn (whose name in private life is Emilie Kittel), the great Bohemian prima donna of the Kaiser's Royal opera and well known in America, has won an unusual case in the Austrian Supreme Court, which has decided that a person who signs his name under which she had won international fame. The note not having been paid when due, the tailor sued Miss Destinn, but she set up the defense that the note was not legal because it did not bear her name. Jealousy on the part of Lieutenant Radich, an officer in the Austrian navy, has led to his arrest on a charge of attempted murder. Mme. Radich's life was made utterly miserable by her husband's baseless suspicions and at last she left him and began proceedings for a divorce.

One day as she was walking in the park her husband met her and begged her to return. She refused, whereupon he produced a revolver and fired several shots at her face, exclaiming that no other man should enjoy her beauty.

She was gathered, and threatened to lynch the lieutenant, who had to take refuge in a house, where he remained until he was arrested.

DECLARE DIVIDEND.

The directors of the Seda works have declared a dividend of 20 kronen per share, or 10 per cent, and decided to raise the share capital from 25,000,000 to 30,000,000 kronen by an issue of new 200 kronen shares at the price of 330 kronen. The increase of capital is required for the extension of plant in the steel and gun departments. Wild speculation in Seda shares on the Vienna Bourse has caused heavy losses, the price having varied from 800 to about 600 kronen.

Annoyance has been occasioned among the singers of the Vienna Opera House by an order that they are to appear clean-shaven.

EUROPEAN WOMEN AT CHINESE COURT

Dowager Empress and 5-Year-Old Ruler Greet Him.

PEKING, May 20.—At a formal reception held by the dowager empress and the emperor, Lady Jordan, the wife of the dean of the corps diplomatique, presented the 15 European women who attended.

The dowager empress was seated on a throne, while the 5-year-old emperor, a striking resemblance to his uncle, the late emperor, occupied a similar throne to the left of the dowager empress. The visitors bowed three times and the dowager empress smilingly shook hands with the women, the boy emperor looking on with interest.

There was a magnificent display of exquisite yellow silk drapings in the throne room, set off by the brilliancy of the Chinese costumes. The government had obviously planned that the reception should be brief and formal, but while the dowager empress endeavored to adhere to the procedure laid out, she was amiably intent upon creating a favorable impression among the visitors. After a magnificent luncheon the private apartments, which were a revelation of oriental splendor.

The general impression of the visitors was that the dowager empress is very well educated. According to the statements of the princesses at the court, her ability is greater but she is less ambitious than the late dowager empress. Within the palace she is supreme, and her desire to improve her personal foreign relations is revealing the anxious consideration of the rival dynasties at court.

PROBE MEN TO IT.

Interesting glimpses into the sect styled the Rosicrucian Order were given in the King's Bench Division, when Justice Scrutton heard an action for damages for libel brought by George Jones, against a weekly journal.

The statements complained of were contained in a series of articles which dealt chiefly with Alister Crowley and his connection with the Rosicrucian Order. There was the statement, "By their friends ye shall know them," and a passage which stated that two of Crowley's friends and introducers were still associated with him—"one the rascally sham Buddhist monk Bennett; the other a person of the name of Jones."

The defendants said that the words complained of were not capable of bearing a defamatory meaning, and also pleaded fair comment.

The plaintiff said he became acquainted with Crowley in 1898. He had never known anything wrong in connection with him. He knew he passed under various names, including Earl of Middlesex and Lord Alister.

Jones said Bennett was a Buddhist, but he could not bring an action for libel, being bound by his oath as a Buddhist. He agreed there had been ugly rumors about Crowley. Witnesses did not know that he was an opium eater. Bennett, however, was an invalid, and took many drugs. Mr. Schiller, for the defense, said they were entitled to comment in strong terms upon anyone who chose to consort with Crowley.

HIS ORIGINAL NAME.

Samuel was next called. Crowley, he said, was expelled from the Rosicrucian Order because he had circulated libels against the witness, who was head of the Order, and because he was working against the interests of the order.

Mr. Simmons asked witness whether his original name was not Mathers.

"Undoubtedly,"

"Did you subsequently assume the name of MacGregor?" The name of Mathers dates from 1901. At the time the name MacGregor was forbidden on pain of death, and there is no single person of the name of MacGregor at the present day who has not had another name in the interval.

"Your name was MacGregor in 1903?"

"Yes, if you like to put it that way."

"You have called yourself Count MacGregor of Giesstrac?"

"Oh, yes."

The witness denied that he had asserted he was Cagliostro.

The witness then read a few statements of the alarmist view regard the proposed Imperial conference which is to be attended by English, Canadian, Australian, New Zealand and South African representatives as essential, believe it vital to the security of the empire that the conference should reach some workable agreement whereby the kingdom and the four self-governing dominions should become confederated in imperial foreign policy.

It is the intention of Mr. Asquith and Sir Edward Grey to secretly communicate to the dominion premiers the outlines of the international situation.

EGYPT TO HAVE JEWISH COLONY

Organization Acquires 10,000 Acres on Which Hebrews Will Live.

CAIRO, May 20.—The general Jewish colonizing organization has acquired a territory, 10,000 acres in extent, at Rapha, in the El Arish district, for the purpose of founding a Jewish colony.

Under the auspices of the organization minute examination of Rapha has taken place during the last eighteen months, and according to their report the district is "especially fitted for the production of almonds, apricots, figs, olives, mulberry trees, eucalyptus, castor and the cactus of the very best quality, and it is believed that the vine grape could also be planted with great success." It is stated that the water supply is good and that the Arabs have conducted successful colonizing experiments in the neighborhood.

The proposed colony will be situated within the area offered to the late Dr. Herzl, leader of the Zionist movement, in 1903, by the Egyptian government at the instance of the British authorities. The amount of land then available for colonization was not found large enough for the purpose of an extensive settlement. In Biblical days Rapha formed part of Palestine.

PERLORUS JACK EATEN BY SHARKS

Famous Pilot Fish of French Pass Will Guide Ships No More.

WELLINGTON, May 20.—The death of the most famous fish in the world has just taken place off the New Zealand coast. This monster of the deep was known as Perlorus Jack, and had the distinction of being protected by a special act of Parliament. For twenty years and more he has met all steamers bound for Wellington, New Zealand, whether they arrived by day or night. He usually took up a position ahead of them in Perlorus Sound, as if with a perfect understanding as to their destination. Thus he earned the name of the "pilot fish," while by some he was known as the Lone Fish of the French Pass.

Perlorus Jack was one of the sights of the voyage to Wellington. Sometimes passengers had such little respect for him that they tried to shoot him with their revolvers, but this was stopped when the New Zealand legislature passed an act that the fish must on no account be interfered with. His body when found had been partly eaten by sharks. He was supposed to be the last of a race of marine monsters which flourished in French Pass half a century ago.

(By CLEMENT J. BARRETT.)

ROME, May 20.—The rule of the Vatican which bars out women who wear low necked gowns is to be rigidly enforced. The wives of ambassadors to the Holy See may no longer attend official functions attired in "low necks." This decision comes as the sequel to an unpleasant episode recently at the Spanish Embassy when Cardinal Rampolla took open exception to the dress of one lady announcing that she must leave the table.

At a state banquet which was given at the Quirinal in honor of Prince Arthur of Connaught, cordial toasts were exchanged. In the course of his speech Prince Arthur referred to the sympathy of the British people with the Italians 50 years ago, and went on to say:

"These feelings of unalterable friendship between our two countries have continued undisturbed ever since, and the good wishes of which I am a bearer on this auspicious occasion are not only those of my Sovereign, but of the entire British nation."

The Italian Steamship Company proposes to stop hereafter at Dublin and Belfast monthly with a view of building up trade with Ireland.

SEQUEL IS STARTLING.

There is a startling sequel to the case of Fortunato Assenzo, who was arrested in Naples on suspicion of being "Peter the Painter." Though it was soon established that this was a case of mistaken identity the man was detained as a suspect because of the mystery overhauling his life.

It has been discovered that a poor peasant couple living near Vicenza has been making the prisoner a liberal allowance to lead the life of a dandy. They stated that they had been acting secretly on behalf of rich anonymous parents to whom Assenzo was born. A few days ago a nobleman presented himself at the municipality of Tongi, and said he was Count Mastal and formally recognized Assenzo as his son whom he said was Count Mastal.

A Neapolitan shepherd named Leonardo Pisone, who had eloped with his sweetheart because the girl's parents refused to sanction the betrothal on account of their unequal social status, has been murdered. The couple were traced to Naples and arrested. The girl was handed over to her parents, and Pisone was committed to prison, whence he was released through the intervention of friends. The girl's father was astonished to see Pisone tending his flock in the vicinity of the father's house. The father, it is said, let a couple of ferocious mastiffs loose upon the lad, and then calling to his five sons, they beat him till he was unconscious and threw his body down a ravine.

BANKER IS SLAIN.

With nine wounds on his body, Signor Sotgiatti, director of the Lombard Bank of Milan, was found stabbed to death in his establishment. The victim's pocket-book is missing, but his gold rings were untouched. Although a bunch of private keys, including the key to the vault, were lying on the office table, the steel safe had not been tampered with. Another circumstance that seems to point to private vengeance is the finding of a lock of female hair in a corner of the office. The police, however, are divided in opinion as to the motive of the crime. It is known that the director expressed fears of an attack on the bank from suspicious characters haunting the neighborhood. There was but a single entrance to the bank. Some surmise that the assassins were disturbed by the director's refusal to give the safe to them. The murdered man's wife declares that towards midnight she went to the balcony of her private residence to see if her husband was returning, and discerned a couple of men at the front door. Perceiving themselves watched, they decamped.

BOGUS GERMAN COUNT
JAILED AFTER CHASE

CALCUTTA, May 20.—A German calling himself Count Rudolf von Konig has been arrested by the Calcutta police on a warrant issued by the Berlin police for alleged extensive frauds committed in Germany. Involving a large sum. He was traced to South Africa, whence he sailed for Calcutta. He was attended by a valet named Robilliere, traveling under the assumed name of Herr Korner. The prisoner had been under remand pending the arrival of papers from Berlin.

SLEEPING SICKNESS
YIELDS TO "606"

LISBON, May 20.—In the Lisbon hospital of Santa Marta a negro who was suffering from sleeping sickness has been injected with the preparation "606." After twenty-four hours' treatment he is apparently cured. The liquid that remained was used upon a rat which was suffering from the same disease, and the result was equally satisfactory. More negroes suffering from sleeping sickness are to be sent from Africa, so that the experiments may be continued.

FOOTBALLER PARALYZED.

LONDON, May 20.—A non-commissioned officer of artillery, while playing back yesterday in a football team at Turberville, was thrown to the ground with a violent fall. He was lying in a hospital unable either to move or speak. There is very little hope of his life being saved.

KAISER WILHELM LOSES
IN SUIT FOR SUM OF $2.50Opera Singer Demands Restitution for Fine Placed on Her and Wins Case;
'Count' and Sweetheart Sentenced

(By MALCOLM CLARKE.)

BERLIN, May 20.—The mighty Kaiser is amenable to the courts and he recently figured as an unsuccessful defendant in a damage suit. The Emperor lost the lawsuit in his capacity of King of Prussia and proprietor of the Royal Opera at Wiesbaden. The case was instituted before the "Privy Council of Justice" by Fraulein Hesselroth, a singer employed at the Wiesbaden Opera. Fraulein Hesselroth was recently fined $250 for indulging in loud "stage whispering." This management considered an unreasonable interference with the performance. She sued the King for restitution of the fine, and the court decided that the claim was well founded.

Great interest had been taken in Bohemian circles in the trial for forgery and fraud of two people well known in night life—namely, a money-broker, Margolin, and his sweetheart, Erna Froehlich, once a popular singer.

INTEREST IS HIGH.

Public interest centered less upon the question against the prisoners than in the persons directly implicated in it—the so-called "Count de la Ramee," who represented himself as the heir of a French nobleman, married Fraulein Alice Hecht, the daughter of one of Berlin's wealthiest merchant princes. The real name of the "count" is Bela Kilmann. In Wiesbaden the "count" met Fraulein Hecht, who fell in love with him. The couple eloped and were married. The "count" was afterwards arrested, but his wife's devotion remained unbroken. His ability to charm lady ladies and his shrewdness at cards brought him, it is alleged, much revenue. One noblewoman is said to have pawned $30,000 worth of jewels and turned the proceeds over to Bela.

In his quest for fresh funds De la Ramee made the acquaintance of Margolin and Fraulein Froehlich. Margolin offered to secure $10,000 for the couple, but he could not negotiate their notes without security and he and his sweetheart hit upon the plan of forging the endorsement of Frau Hecht the "Countess" de la Ramee's wealthy mother. Fraulein Froehlich impersonated Frau Hecht before a notary and signed her notes for sums aggregating about $7500. These Margolin had little difficulty in negotiating, as the name and wealth of Frau Hecht are well known here.

APPROPRIATES MONEY.

Instead of turning the money over to the "count" and his wife, however, Margolin appropriated it. He and his actress wife subsequently disappeared and lived in the best hotels of the Riviera, Switzerland, until they were arrested at St. Petersburg. The couple cut a sorry picture on the dock at their trial. Margolin wore an ordinary tweed suit in contrast with the elaborate attire of his better days, while the "night life" habitues who occupied most of the room in court hardly recognized Frau Froehlich in an olive green skirt, a simple blouse, and a plain felt hat. Frau Froehlich was often in tears. The processes of the law revealed the fact that Margolin is forty-three years of age, while Frau Froehlich is only thirty-two. Both looked older as a result of seven months in gaol. Margolin made full confession, but attempted to exonerate Frau Froehlich, who he said, had forged and sworn falsely wholly to please him. "She would sign her own death warrant," exclaimed Margolin, "out of love for me." Frau Froehlich pleaded ignorance of the illegality of her acts even after the judge had angrily rebuked her for trying to make the jury believe that she was really so naïve.

BOTH FOUND GUILTY.

Eventually, after a hearing of seven hours, both the accused were found guilty of forgery and fraud and sentenced to three years and a half of hard labor and one year and a half imprisonment respectively. The closing scenes of the trial were dramatic. Just before the jury retired at midnight, Margolin addressed the court in his own defense, asking no mercy for himself but begging for clemency for his Frau Froehlich. "Don't add to the burden of my conscience by convicting her," he exclaimed.

Then the actress, crying piteously, appealed to the jury to find mitigating circumstances in her case. When the jury returned the court was still crowded with spectators. Margolin received his sentence stolidly, but Frau Froehlich collapsed.

A highly amusing domestic comedy was played in a distinguished part of the city. Friez Meyer a clerk took refuge from his angry wife on a cornice of the Kaiser's palace, and had to be fetched down by the fire brigade.

The pair began to quarrel opposite the palace. The wife attacked him with an umbrella, and belabored him so soundly that he fled to the palace sentry. As the sentry proved immovable, and the wife was in pursuit, the victim scrambled up a cornice of the palace and continued climbing until he was twenty feet from the ground. There panic overtook him, and he could neither ascend nor descend.

At last the palace firemen arrived, drove off the wife, and rescued the fugitive. He was taken to the police station.

WAGNER'S COLLEGE LIFE.

After the many interesting things told in the memoirs of the great music master Wagner is the story of his college life. When a student at Leipzig University he plunged into a fighting corps, wore the colors proudly, and narrowly escaped serious duels. The manner in which Wagner described what was a tragic episode of his student days, the unparagoned way in which he confesses his faults, throws new light upon his character. In spite of his exceeding moving words he tells of the gambling passion that held him like a demon; his long run of illness maddened him; he lost interest in all else but play. Indifferent to the opinion of his former companions, he vanished from their midst, passing night after night with the lowest of students in gambling houses.

Finally, having lost everything, he used some money he held in trust for his mother, and that, too, was swallowed up with the exception of one thaler. Sick in mind and body—he sat through that terrible night distracted. He knew that the thaler represented his whole life and existence, for that lost he could never return home. He saw himself wandering aimlessly in the gray of the morning through the fields and woods—a prodigal son. Suddenly, while on the verge of despair, he won and won again. Mechanically he staked again, still he won, until there was sufficient to pay all his debt. The warmth that filled his soul and body was, he says, of a sacred nature; he felt that he was not abandoned by God and his angels; he felt a holy presence whispering warning and consolation. He was cured. He went home and slept soundly for hours, and awoke new born.

Deterred by no sense of shame, he told his mother of his experience in that momentous night, and returned her money, under acknowledgment of his sin. She folded her hands and thanked God for the grace he had given her son, and expressed her firm conviction that he was saved, and that temptation would never again assail him. This was actually the case, and Wagner then threw himself with renewed energy into his musical studies, entering upon a new and serious phase.

THREE IN SUICIDE PACT.

Despairing of being cured of a complaint from which she suffered, Frau Lueck, wife of a German ex-Army officer, determined to commit suicide. She confided her idea to her daughter, and the latter decided to die with her mother. Both were very fond of Frau Lueck's twelve-year-old son, and they agreed that he should accompany them across the border. Mother and daughter a few nights ago contrived to administer sleeping draughts to the rest of the family. Then they carried the slumbering boy into the sitting-room, locked the door, stopped up every crevice, and turned the gas on.

Next morning all were found dead. Posing as a novelist, an unprincipled person demanded money from a rich resident on pain of seeing himself depicted in a new book in a very undesirable manner. The resident informed the police, and the would-be novelist was arrested.

MISS VIOLET EOMER—NON-DANCING AT THE COLISEUM.

Crupi Declares France Diplomatically Happy

(By PAUL VILLIERS.)

PARIS, May 20.—France is most happy in a diplomatic sense. We have the assurance of Mr. Crupi, minister of Foreign Affairs, that the cordials between this republic and Russia was more binding than ever. And the same could be affirmed in respect to England and Spain and other nations. Answering questions on that score in the Senate M. Crupi said:

"Is the situation in Morocco such as to excite some apprehension? The situation is nothing more. We have taken steps to enable the Maghzen to pay the soldiers' wages by day. It is in this spirit that we intend to carry it out."

"The entente cordiale with England continues to be one of the fundamental bases of our foreign policy. With Spain we continue to have friendly relations. We co-operate with her in the most cordial spirit, and we shall endeavor to improve our economic relations with her. We shall carry out a policy of co-operation also with Germany in all places where we have interests in common."

WANTS GIRLS ADMITTED.

Apologies of Madame Curie and Chavannes, efforts to have their daughters admitted to the room for boys, at late Jules Ferry thought it well for boys and girls to be as much as possible brought up together. His type of a primary schoolhouse was a central building with a great hall for fetes and a playground in and weather, with overhead the habitation of the teachers.

Mmes. Curie and Chavannes, as is well known, petitioned the Minister of Public Instruction to authorize the entrance of their daughters to a boys' lycée, the only one convenient to their homes.

A few humdrum of the teaching body said: Yes, provided the boys, at the girls' lycées. The discipline of a boys' school would have to be altered were girls brought in. There is no rule to prohibit girls from entering boys' schools of this class. The actual exclusion is based on custom and the unsuitableness of the discipline to them.

TUNNEL IS WONDER.

The making of the Lotschberg tunnel, the third longest tunnel in Europe, is one of the largest and most talked of undertakings of the industrial world of Europe. It is more than nine and one quarter miles in length and takes its name from the Lotschberg Pass, under which it runs. The two boring parties of the tunnel met on the morning of March 31.

Unlike other Alpine tunnels, it is owed to a great disaster of July, 1908, when, by an accident, the Kanader river was tapped and the water, rushing into the workings, killed twenty-five men. The tunnel will be officially opened May, 1913.

Still another exponent of the dance is in London in the person of Miss Violet Eomer, a California girl, now dancing at the Coliseum, whose dances are purely "inspirational." Paris knows her work and awaits her return. Already the charming little dancer has taken London by storm, not only on account of her natural grace, but because of the unusual demonstrations of her art and her daring. In the picture she is shown during her interpretation of Chopin's Valse in F minor.

A short cut to Paris is the latest and most daring of the French ex-tors. His recent London to Paris flight in his monoplane is the talk of the nation. The picture was taken just before starting on his flight, and with him is M. Chereau of the Bleriot Company. General Booth who celebrated the eighty-second anniversary of his birthday on April 10 in London, is the idol of charity workers in France. He was the recipient of many messages of congratulations, including one from the Queen, another from Princess Louise, and cablegrams from almost every part of the world, including Russia, India, Java, Korea, South Africa and the United States.

CARICATURISTS POPULAR.

The Alsatian caricaturists, Hanso and Zislis are immensely popular here. Their imprisonment does not seem to have affected their health or depressed their gaiety, and they have cheerfully submitted to the admiration and enthusiasm of their fellow-artists. The Society of Humorists gave them a banquet, and put much humor in the menu.

A curious claim for damage came recently before the Correctional Court recently. George Tournieux died from the effects of a prescription which his wife had culled from a book called "The People's Doctor," where owing to a misprint 15 grammes of ammonia were prescribed instead of 15 drops.

The author of the book has been sentenced to three months' imprisonment and fined and the man who made up the prescription is sentenced to one month's imprisonment, and a fine. The widow was awarded $200 damages and an annuity of $60 while her children will receive $60 a year each until reaching their majority.

VIGNERONS EXCLUDED.

The fact that the vigneron of the Aube have been excluded from the province of Champagne for the purpose of the Delimitation Act shows that the influence of the big firms has been paramount in drafting it. The Aube belongs as certainly to Champagne as Midlothian does to Scotland. Its chief town, once was the capital of the province. But the wines of the Aube are not used by the firms in question, lower-priced champagnes being made from them. It is worth noting that the big champagne firms, for whose benefit the Delimitation Act was passed by the Briand administration, are almost without exception in the hands of enemies of the Republican regime. "Veux-tu le Cliquet" is the property of the Duchesse d'Uzes, who subscribed $500,000 to the Boulangist fund. The husband of the former Mlle de Merle is Vicomte de Mun, and his manager is the Marquis de Polignac. The Marquis de Montebello was French Ambassador to St. Petersburg, who looked down on President Loubet, and for having done so lost his high situation. The Aube vigneron seems to know nothing of this. They turn in effigy M. Monis and Leon Bourgeois, and let Briand alone.

Following the example of the American Government the French navy department has decided to make experiments to test the destructive power of a new melinite shell for the guns of the new battleship.

An old battleship, the Neptune, will be the target, and shells will be fired into her from guns on shore. These shells make enormous holes in heavy armor plates, but fail to burst when they strike lighter material.

HIRE PRIVATE GALLERIES.

The picture dealers now hire at great rents hanging room in private galleries of high repute for the pictures they hope to boom. The heavy rent is but a trifle, compared to what a boom sale brings.

The judges tell me that there is more cheating in pictures than in races.

He attributes this to the great number of millionaires now about who want to pass for being men of taste. They judge chiefly of the merits of an ancient master by the "nail" on which it is hung or the price to which something done by the same hand has been worked up at sales. Preparations for a sensational sale at which the late M. Chaudard could be "netted" sometimes went on for several years. It was in this way that Millet's "Angelus" was bought in 1892. Were there not piles of Millet's stored—for he was a prolific painter—in view to future sales and plantations. In well-known collections, there must have been a slump in his works on Chaudard's death.

TAKES FORTUNE TO GRAVE.

A miser named Anglade, who died at Pau, carried part of his fortune with him into the grave and hid the balance, in order to prevent any one else using the money. Throughout his life Anglade's only ambition was money. He virtually starved himself in order to save and his only fear of death was based on the regret that he could not take his possessions into the next world.

He steadily refused to give his relatives any information about his possessions, and after his death his wife made a systematic search of the house, with the result that gold and banknotes were found secreted in out-of-the-way places. She believed that this represented all his wealth, but when a bank clerk presented a note for payment of a loan promised by the miser, and said that Anglade had a document confirming the transaction, the widow decided that her husband must have taken the paper to the grave. The grave was opened in the presence of a magistrate.

Packets of banknotes and bonds, with a number of other documents including the one sought for, were found under the shirt in which he was buried and which had not been removed. Opportunity was taken to search a bamboo cane which according to Anglade's dying wish, was buried with him. Each section of the cane was found to contain notes and gold wrapped in cotton-wool.

KING AND EMPEROR
SEE 'MONEY' PLAYEDOld Drury Lane Theater Scene of Rare Enactment of Soldiers' Work.

LONDON, May 20.—Drury Lane theater was transformed into a fairy bower with garlands and drooping foliage last night at the performance of "Bulwer Lytton's old comedy, 'Money,' given in honor of the German emperor by a star cast, which left the principal roles in half of the London theaters in the hands of understudies.

The king and queen and their imperial guests dined early at Buckingham palace and then drove in procession to the theater through crowds of cheering spectators. Drury Lane's dingy exterior was brightened with festoons of greenery and illuminated with the royal and imperial cipher. Inside, the house was a blaze of light and color.

As soon as the royal party was seated, the curtains were drawn aside, revealing a drop curtain especially designed by the artist John Seymour Lucas, representing equestrian portraits of King George and Emperor William in military uniforms, saluting allegorical figures of Britannia and Germania, surmounted by a floating figure of Peace bestowing laurels upon the two sovereigns. This drop scene had been kept a secret and its display was greeted with enthusiasm.

The play was presented with great success. At its close the entire cast appeared and joined the audience in singing the national anthem.

ORGANIZE TO FIGHT HOME
RULEUlster Irishmen Claim League With Membership of 300,000.Society People Attacked by the Clergymen in Sermon That Is Bitter.

(By ROBERT EMMET.)

DUBLIN, May 20.—The Ulster Irishmen, who have been organizing Anti-Home Rule Leagues, claiming a membership of 300,000, announce their purpose to fight against home rule in England, Ireland and Scotland.

They claim to have secretly raised $500,000, wherewith to pay the expense of an anti-home rule campaign, and the Unionist Association of Ireland will meet in Dublin very soon to put the finishing touches to the elaborate arrangements for the campaign.

Speakers and canvassers will have left Ireland for England and Scotland in order to begin the task of educating the "predominant partner," which will immediately follow the granting of home rule.

Society people were recently attacked in a powerful sermon by Rev. Robert Kane, a Jesuit preacher here. He said they were highly civilized in their science and its application, in their motor cars, telephones, in the costumes of their suffragettes and in the nakedness of their ballets; and the horror of their slums. They were also "highly civilized in the art of lying diplomatically and in the science of 'murderous war.'"

CLAIMS JEWELRY.

Six years ago entering the shop of a local jeweler, a man produced a fine pearl and asked to have it mounted. He showed the jeweler several other pearls, and said he had a number at home. These he would sell if they were of any value. They had been given to him by a cousin in America.

The jeweler, after taking the name and address of the customer, valued him $25 pending the valuation of the pearls by an expert. It was found that they were worth $5000. The man who left the pearls with the jeweler has never returned.

The aid of the police was sought, and it was found that the address given by the man was false. It was also discovered that he had been a waiter at a Killarney hotel.

The jeweler now claims the pearls, but the police hold that they become the property of the crown, and the question of ownership is to be fought in the courts.

LEAVES $100,000 TO CHARITY.

The late Thomas Walpole of Monkton, who left an estate of $365,000 left $100,000 to charitable institutions. Bishops and priests keep up their attacks on English Sunday papers which they characterize as purveyors of filth and crime. During a sermon recently Rev. R. Fitzhenry, minister of the diocese, said: "Twenty tons of British printed matter are landed every week on the shores of Ireland. Much of this is unfit for the eyes of decent people; very much of it altogether is unfit for the innocent eyes and expanding minds of the young."

Take, for instance, the English Sunday papers that until recently were sold by the score in our midst. In them the filth of the world is collected and served up for the Sunday reading of Catholics. The whole world is searched for murder, robbery, brutality and sensuality, and all this in suggestive picture and striking words, is laid under the eye and poured into the unguarded mind of our youth and maidens. Public crimes attract attention and make a noise. Virtue is silent and unobserved. One crime attracts more attention than the million acts of virtue and self-denial performed in thousands of homes.

RING OF ESSEX
UNDER HAMMERFamous Gift From Queen Elizabeth Sold to Lord Michel-helm by Descendants.

LONDON, May 20.—Seventeen thousand dollars was paid at auction for the diamond that was given to Earl Essex by Queen Elizabeth as a token of her regard and which, according to tradition, was to be returned by the queen if her friend was imperiled. The ring was to insure his protection.

When the Earl was condemned to death, so the story goes, he entrusted the ring for its return to the Queen to the Countess of Nottingham who, however, influenced by the charms of the Earl, failed to execute her mission. Elizabeth, offended at not receiving a plea for mercy from the Earl, permitted him to suffer the penalty of death.

The ring has since been in the possession of the descendants of the Earl of Essex and was sold by the executor of Lord John Thynne to Lord Michelhelm of Hellding.

Highly complimented Squire Bancroft and Mr. Lucas, who had arranged the production, and expressed admiration for the finest acting they had ever seen. In the club scene thirty actor-managers and leading actors appeared, and in every act the play was marked by picturesque, the scenery and costumes having been so carefully considered that each scene was a veritable living picture of a by-gone period.

A long line of people waited for more than twenty-four hours to gain admission to the unreserved seats.

Suzette Takes Peep at the Clothes Worn by Society Women

By SUZETTE

THE early summer time sees many Americans well established in their summer vocations abroad. In all the large European cities Americans are much in evidence at social functions, and motor trips through the chateau country of France, through Italy, and in the Swiss Alps are quite the order of vacation days for Americans. Mrs. William Crocker arranged a very fine itinerary for a motor trip through Italy for her daughters, Helen and Ethel. The Crockers have decided not to remain in London for the coronation, but are returning to "New Place," their home at Burlingame.

The favorite mode of entertaining abroad this year is by means of the luncheon, with or without bridge afterwards. One accepts for the bridge or not, just as one pleases, but during the social season in London the woman who is at all popular has more than one date for each afternoon.

Ambassador and Mrs. Reid had a luncheon every day last week. At one of the most important Bishop Nichols of San Francisco and his daughter were the guests of honor. They were invited to meet the new Dean of Westminster, who until recently was Bishop of Winchester. Another guest at this luncheon was Princess von Hatzfeldt, formerly Clara Huntington, the adopted daughter of the late Collis P. Huntington.

One hears that Mrs. Miller Graham of Santa Barbara, who was to have entertained extensively during coronation week, has been unable to find a house in London, and will make her headquarters at the Hotel Ritz.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Carolan have closed their apartments in Paris, in which Mrs. Carolan has achieved so much of a social success, and are on their way home. Mrs. Carolan will meet her mother, Mrs. Pullman, in the East, the latter having gone from California to Washington. She is planning to sell her town house in Washington, and it is possible that it may be purchased by the John Hays Hammonds.

COURT MOURNING AT AN END.

In the line of clothes, a perfect color wave has swept over England and America, now that the court mourning in London has been officially declared at an end. With gowns costing all the way from $300 to $5000 in London, the subject is full of interest to the average woman.

MISS RUBY GEORGE, whose engagement to Clifford Martin has been announced.

Gowns are of brocades and velvets, with splendid jeweled embroideries, and they are very full of color. The tendency this summer is to have fewer gowns, and indeed, some millionaire brides this season had only a few gowns. The bride this year does not act as if she never expected to have any new clothes again during the course of her natural life. With the change of seasons comes also the change in styles, and indeed styles have never been so comfortable and so full of good sense as they are today.

No one wants an amazing variety of gowns now; even the most fashionable women choose fastidiously among many models, and obtain a few perfectly appointed costumes. This is the real way to dress well. The fact that a woman wears a different hat and gown on every occasion is not considered necessary to good dressing or to one's social position. It merely indicates caprice and a desire to show the public an actual and visible sign of her wealth. And so it happens, that among many of our best gowned women we have seen the same costume many times this season.

Miss Nance O'Neill, the Oakland girl who has achieved fame in the drama, is the center of attention these days. She is looking very handsome indeed in a tailored suit of white pongee made with the modish short coat and skirt. Her hat is a very distinctive note in the summer costume. It is a small black straw bent poke-like over the face, encircled with white marabout trimming, trimmed with white agrettes. Miss O'Neill usually lights up the costume with a gorgeous red rose, or a bunch of bright sweet peas.

Mrs. Fred Sharon's costume always shows vivid color tones. One gown that she is wearing a great deal this season is of rose-colored chiffon, trimmed in sable bands, and the little jacket which sets off the gown is hand-embroidered in cashmere colors.

Mrs. Frank C. Havens has also made old rose a dominant tone in her reception gowns of the season. Old rose chiffon, beautifully embroidered, and made with empire effect, is very charming, and Mrs. Havens wears only one ornament—a pendant, with a superb "pigeon egg" ruby.

Mrs. Isaac Requa is wearing again the lavenders and purples which were always so becoming to her. She has the most superb amethyst jewelry, beautifully mounted in old-fashioned styles, and combined with diamonds to match her violet gowns.

Mrs. Frank L. Brown has been gowned this year for the most part in black. She has one special hat which always attracts attention—a wide, black hat, trimmed with quantities of black osprey feathers.

It might be remarked in passing that Queen Mary is just as intolerant of big hats, as she is of hobbie skirts, and no one who wants to win the favor of the Queen will appear in her presence in a wide picture hat.

Mrs. John F. Connors and Mrs. Frederick Stolp are two young matrons who are very fond of blue, and who look extremely well in blue always. Mrs. Connors wears wide hats in blue, and Mrs. Stolp's hats are smaller, and of the peculiar shapes that are very fascinating this season.

Mrs. A. A. Moore is always very correctly gowned in dignified effects. Her gowns of brocade are in dark tones, and her jewels are the semi-precious ones, now so fashionable in the ornaments of the smart set.

Mrs. Wickham Havens and Mrs. Willard Williamson have worn black a great deal this season, and their gowns of black satin in tailored effects have been very stunning this season.

Mrs. Oscar Long is very partial to white and she has some really exquisite gowns of all-over lace. She wears her hair in a most becoming style—as does Mrs. Frank Havens, Mrs. Edson Adams and Mrs. William Henshaw are both partial to white lace as reception gowns. Mrs. Henshaw has many jewels with which she varies the color tone of her costumes.

Mrs. Montell Taylor is wearing a costume in vivid apple green tones. The gown is set off by a hat in tones of green, trimmed with darker plumes of green.

Miss Clarisse Lohse is one of the few young girls who can wear lavender, and her afternoon gowns for the most part represent charming effects in violet tones.

Mrs. T. C. Coogan is fond of green, and one of the handsomest reception gowns of the winter was the green brocade which she wore at her recent bridge afternoons.

Among the daintiest gowns on our side of the bay are those worn by MISS MAYBELLE MILLER, who will be maid of honor to her cousin, Miss Georgette Marsily.

Mrs. H. C. Capwell. They are often in soft grays, and in lovely tones of lighter lavenders and pale pinks. And one of the really handsome gowns of the season is the superb creation in black net, beautifully hand embroidered in jet, which Mrs. Capwell wore at the Home Club reception on Thursday.

Mrs. Charles Tripler Hutchinson dresses in a style both unique and original. She is very fond of color, and there is always something about each gown which makes it very distinctive. Her motor gown is an effect in shepherd's plaid, and it has a collar of red, with red touches in the hat to match. And one of the most attractive reception gowns of the year was worn by Mrs. Hutchinson—a flowered chiffon—very beautifully lighted with cerise.

DELIGHTFUL HOSPITALITY AT BERKELEY HOME.

One of the most delightful of the Berkeley hostesses is Mrs. Frank J. Woodward, whose great pleasure it is to entertain in her beautiful home in honor of her friends. Mrs. Woodward is expecting her sister, Mrs. Henry Martin, to be her guest in the near future. The Martins have a home in Southern California, and the Woodwards have lately spent some days there.

Mrs. Martin is very charming, and she is a most fascinating elocutionist, having taken a course of training in the East. She was formerly Miss Sylvia Chapman, one of the most popular of East Oakland girls of some seasons ago. She achieved a great literary success last week at the California Federation of Women's Clubs. She gave a series of very beautiful living pictures from Tennyson's "Idylls of the King."

Mrs. Woodward is planning to entertain for her sister, Mrs. Martin.

DR. MOFFITT AND WIFE RETURN.

Doctor and Mrs. Herbert Moffitt returned last week from the East, having spent some days in New York, where they were the guests at the Carlton-Ritz Hotel. Miss Gertrude Joffile, who went East with the Moffitts, did not return with them. She has gone to Philadelphia, where she will be the guest of Miss La Tour-ette, the charming Eastern girl, who was so extensively entertained in San Francisco during the past season.

MRS. MOSHER IS LUNCHEON HOSTESS.

Mrs. Harry Mosher was a luncheon hostess of the week, entertaining a group of congenial friends at a luncheon at the Palace. The table was a very lovely study in iris, yellow and pale lavender tones arranged in fine effect.

Mrs. Mosher's guests were Mrs. Wickham Havens, Mrs. William Ede, Mrs. George Chase, Mrs. Homer Boushey, Mrs. Churchill Taylor, Mrs. George Wilhelm, Mrs. Kenneth London, Mrs. Charles Bates, Jr., Mrs. Willard Williamson, Mrs. George Bancroft, Mrs. Frank Lucas.

OLD AND MODERN WOMEN'S CLUBS.

It is a far cry from the woman's club of the pioneer days to the woman's club of modern times. Nothing could emphasize that more truly than the difference between the early days of the Ebell Club, the oldest club in the United States, except Sorosis of New York City.

Many amusing tales are told of the early days of the Ebell Club. One hears that as extra guests appeared, chairs were borrowed from the neighbors, and judiciously passed over the back fence. And such queer things as they studied—anatomy for one subject. And a story is told of how the clever women students had a chicken for their subject, and having considered it, in the light of science, they thrifflily proceeded to cook it in a chafing dish, and they ate it with much relish.

"Thrill, Thrill, Horatio!" was the motto of the club woman of the older days. One thing the club woman of today have learned in their clubs in to be comfortable, and they have also learned how to be entertaining, well-bred, and hospitable. And it takes finest expression of club life was money to do all these things. The found in the reception given by the Home Club on Thursday. Nothing could have been more elaborately planned, and no reception in any private home could possibly have been more successful.

We all remember the club luncheons of old—meager, indeed, they were, and poorly served. Many a club woman calmly had her luncheon served in her own dressing room before she departed, and then pretended

MILADY'S TOILET TABLE BY EMILY DEMAR

A BEAUTIFUL FORM WOMAN'S GREATEST CHARM.

A beautiful form is woman's greatest charm; and when Nature has been lax in this direction it is necessary to lend proper assistance. Many advocate local applications to round out a scrawny neck or under-developed bust, but external treatment does not go to the source and, of course, cannot accomplish much. The most successful method is the "Vaucaire" treatment, introduced into France many years ago, and its use by la dame Parisienne is the real secret of her possessing a ravishing figure. The basis of this preparation is gallic, which can be obtained from any drug store. First, make a simple syrup, using one and one-half cups of granulated sugar and enough water to make a pint; to this add the gallic. Two teaspoonfuls taken twice or three times each day soon produce the desired result, as gallic is a splendid tonic and feeds the shrunken or under-developed parts, rounding out the figure and giving to woman that beautiful form rightly hers. Care must be used, however, to see that you get the gallic and not a substitute.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES. Jane:—(1) The clogged condition of your skin is likely due to excessive use of powder. (2) The cream of which you write is greasy, will not remove hairs, and is the cheapest, smoothest and most delightful massage cream you can use. Dissolve three ounces of cerol in a pint of water that has been brought to the boiling point, stirring until of a creamy consistency, then use freely on the face, neck and arms, massaging till it disappears. This will clean and clear the skin and you will not have to resort to powder or rouge.

Mrs. B.—I do not think your husband's remarks were made to injure your feelings, because a head of scrawny, straggly hair detracts from the most beautiful complexion. Use a good tonic regularly, and I am sure he will be pleased with results. You can make your own tonic at a small cost if you mix a half-pint each of alcohol and water and put in one ounce of beta-canthol. This, massaged into the scalp, greatly stimulates the hair roots, and the hair stops falling out and will grow long, abundant and glossy.

Isabelle:—I would not recommend the electric needle, as it is painful and unnecessary in removing superfluous hairs. Go to your druggist and get an ounce of delol, and with warm water mix a little into a stiff paste; spread this on the offending hairs and let remain two or three minutes, then scrape off and the hairs will come with it. Be sure and get the true delol, as it is the only preparation that I know of that is antiseptic and does the work right.

Mamie:—Don't use salves or ointments for scaldness of the scalp. What you should do is employ a good head wash twice a week for a time and it will correct this condition. A splendid and inexpensive shampoo can be had with plain eggol. Simply dissolve a teaspoonful in a cup of not water and wash your hair with this shampoo. This latter is really and gently, yet thoroughly, cleanses the scalp of dandruff and excess oil, exciting the delicate tissues to healthy activity. It also leaves the hair brilliant and fluffy. A good hair tonic to use is given in answer to Mrs. B. V.'s query.

Mrs. H.—Stop using injurious face powders and harmful cosmetics, which clog the pores and starve delicate tissues. Use plenty of soap and water to remove accumulated impurities from the pores and skin's surface and apply a good refreshing cream. Do this every night just before retiring and your rough, pimply, colorless complexion will take on a soft, velvety pink and white glow, rivaling any "made" complexion. You can prepare your own refreshing cream by dissolving two ounces of amurel in a pint jar of hot water. Any druggist can supply amurel in the original package, which is not expensive, and a few treatments will clean and clear the skin, giving it a delicacy of texture and rose-toned embossment impossible any other way.

W. T.—I'm glad you like the cerof disappearing cream. If those blotches and pimples come back I suggest you take a good blood medicine to drive them out of your blood for good. Get an ounce of sarsene from your druggist, make a pint of heavy sugar syrup and add the sarsene. Take two teaspoonfuls three or four times a day, and you'll soon get rid of those troublesome blotches and pimples.

Lola:—Whoever told you to take a medicine for eczema? All skin diseases are treated through the skin only. I'm sure if you try borothol you'll get immediate relief. Just dissolve two ounces of borothol in a pint of warm water, add a tablespoonful of glycerine and apply to the affected parts.

EUROPE sharpens shears GOLDEN Fleece

DECK STEWARD SERVING MID DAY LUNCHEON.

MORE Americans are planning to go to Europe than ever before, more ships to carry them and floods of inquiries pouring in every day for accommodations on east-bound liners all the way up to the end of August—that is, now.

The situation at the offices of the transatlantic steamship companies, and the outlook is for the biggest rush to Europe this year in the history of transatlantic travel.

That this season will differ in many respects from any that has preceded, steamship men agree. Not only does it promise to be heavier than any before, but judging from inquiries, the rush is going to continue longer than ever before, and the prediction has been made that even the month of August, which used to see steamships going eastward almost empty, will be one of the heaviest months this year for outgoing ships.

When Nason and his avaricious messmates fixed their rapacious longings on the golden fleece, they could see no better way of getting it than to fit out a ship and go after it.

Modern Europe has improved vastly on classic simplicity. It fits up the ships—none better, and then invites the owners of the fleece to hurry on board, paying richly for the privilege, and come over to be shorn.

Estimates vary, but the year 1911 promises to be known as the year of the great American heira, and the number of our tourists will probably amount to at least 200,000 people, going by first and second class.

DIFFERENCE IN TOURISTS.
The difference between the Americans touring and Americans staying at home was evidenced on the heels of the national embarrassment of finance a couple of years ago, when walls of anguish arose from London to Venice, with Paris in between, emitting the most strident notes of miserable despair. Half the "trading" men of European capitals beheld the crash ahead of them, and nations budgets over there had to take account of the depletion of the national income.

Some of the more intelligent traders even went so far as to call for the national heart-sickness, in the hope of inducing their brother-handicaps to make the fleece-shearing process more suggestive of painlessness, and admonished that even Americans could not be expected to come across forever to let everybody skin them.

It was a needless alarm. The instant prosperity ripped off her first encouraging smile, the dock appeared at the book-ends of the steamers, and this time it was the steamship company directors rubbing chert hands and all Europe easing its itching palms.

Reviewing all the comment, criticism, wit, humor and patronizing indulgence which Europe visits upon its visitors, the unprejudiced American is irresistibly reminded that he is at once the most conspicuous profit-bringer of the bunch and the most superbly scorned among them all. He is the black sheep among tourists, credited with all the ignorance, bad manners, wastefulness, penuriousness, insolence and timidity which can make an easy mark and mar a gentleman.

DECLINES TO ANSWER.

How many years longer he will continued to enjoy the shearing and the part which that attends it is something which the long-suffering American patience meekly declines to answer. But the great steamship lines have such faith in the increase of the tourists business in the future that they are still preparing to put their millions in investments that must be utterly lost if the tide of travel cease to swell higher during the next generation.

A recent German estimate put the number of American tourists at 800,000, with the average individual expenditure abroad of $750, or $225,000,000 handed over to Europe, without the cost of steamship tickets. But these figures are meekly too high.

A genuinely conservative estimate would place the total number now making the European tour from the United States between 150,000 and 200,000 with $1000 as the average total for individual expenditure—perhaps a trifle above the mark, but with something well above $150,000,000 as a fair appraisal of the wealth the travelers from this country so delightedly carry over to leave in the lap of hungry Europe.

Bankers whose specialty is letters of credit for rich American tourists find that it is a common thing for their customers to place from $25,000 to $75,000 ready to their hands while they are abroad, with the average letter of credit standing at $3000. A trip lasting three months usually burns up 66 per cent of the account.

When the annual tourist expenditure in Europe is compared with the amount taken out of the country by returning immigrants—a problem which, from time to time, has engaged the attention of anxious statisticians—it would appear to be as great, or nearly as great, as the latter amount carried back during a period of ten years via the steerage.

ANALYZING FIGURES.

Analysis of the figures of immigration and emigration, at the end of 1907, brought out the fact that during the ten-year period up to that time, the total number of immigrants was 7,752,973, and of returning aliens, 2,486,653, or 32.07 per cent. They had averaged $20 and more in cash assets upon their arrival in the United States, and it was surmised that they took back about $320 apiece on their return, although that estimate was by no means assumed as accurate, and may well have been overrated.

Allowing it to stand, however, those scant two and one-half millions of returning aliens took out of the country, at the most, $200,000,000, or $725,000,000, or $725,000,000 for a single average year out of the decade. The American tourist, therefore, in one year spends in Europe from two to three times the amount carried back by the returning immigrants.

It must be recalled, in this connection, that the returning immigrants—all of them—left behind them in this country committed to the care of the police, a bone of contention, a source of alarm, and a source of expense, and who convey such knowledge by means or mystic signs on the walls, gateways, and doors of houses where the welcome may be lacking in warmth, burglars use various signals by which they provide their colleagues in crime with information calculated to save time and trouble when robbery is afoot.

"You see, it is like this," said an ex-convict to the T-B man a few days ago. "Householders are naturally not going to warn a burglar that they keep a good dog on the premises; that the outside window frame means such and such, or that the police are keeping special watch on the houses in certain streets. And it is very useful to know when you are going to crack a crib, by three marks cut in the bottom of the gate of the garden, for instance, that there is a dog to guard against; and that a little V-shaped piece chipped off the outside window frame means that trouble must be looked for if the window is raised. And when any of the boys see the wall near the gate-post chipped to form the outline of a policeman's truncheon, they are immediately on the qui vive, for it is a sign which indicates that the district is being patrolled by policemen in pairs.

INSIDE INFORMATION.

"Who makes these signs? Perhaps burglars who have worked in the neighborhood and have learned all particulars by letter, and to be seen with his pals while he is still employed there might ruin their plans, especially if the latter's movements are being watched by the police. He therefore communicates his information as he gets it by certain private signals."

My informant mentioned that there were quite a number of codes in existence amongst the various gangs. As a matter of fact, each gang—and as a rule burglars work in gangs—invent their own secret codes of signaling in such circumstances. But there is one ingenious code known to most burglars.

WELL-KNOWN WARNINGS.

For instance, notches cut underneath the bottom bar of the front gate, out of sight, but deep enough to be counted by the feeling in the dark, indicate the number of occupants. An old clay pipe broken in several bits indicates men and how many, and a little buried in the gate-post, means women occupants only. A glass button or oyster shell indicates diamonds or jewels, and a piece of broken plate indicates a piece of broken plate in the house, a sign which means that the burglars that prearrange are kept. A bone carelessly thrown in a dark corner means dog, and a torn rag or cloth shows that he is fierce.

And it is a fact which must often make burglars themselves laugh—that these signals, when a burglary has been committed, are often referred to in the newspapers as clues to the identity of the criminals.

LUCKY ESCAPE.

How valuable these signals are was strikingly illustrated by an incident related by the ex-convict already referred to. He and two other members of a gang decided to rob a house in one of the remote corners of Surrey. They had surveyed the premises, and, a suitable opportunity occurring, they decided to do the job without waiting to get full particulars as to the precautions adopted had remitted by bank and postal facilities during their ten years' stay here, plus the full amount requisite for their own support here during the decade.

That the reduction of time in crossing the ocean to more than half what it was fifteen years ago when fourteen days was not considered a very long voyage, has had much to do with the increased travel to Europe is so generally acknowledged that it is not a matter of argument. The comforts and amusements, including wireless telegraphy, newspapers, sun-parlors, gymnasiums, swimming pools, restaurants and shops where everything from picture puzzles to chewing gum can be bought which the modern steamship offers its passengers is also a very great contributing cause for the flocking of Americans abroad.

There was a time when life on ship-board was dull indeed and when the majority of transatlantic voyagers regarded the duration of the trip across as just so many days out of their lives. Nowadays many people with plenty of money to spend look forward to the passage out and back as among the most pleasant and interesting features of their trip.

PRIDE IN NEVER MISSING.

There is "the lady who hasn't missed a meal at table, and who is naturally the pride of her friends and the envy of her fellow travelers who have their meals served cold on deck, or tea and toast in their state-rooms."

Then there is the man with the marline glasses who is forever scanning the horizon for passing ships and plays a sort of Sister Anne part in announcing what is doing beyond the naked eye limits of the gaze of the crowd that surrounds him. He is constantly seeing spouting whales and icebergs, and he is wise and can tell just what steamer is passing by the number of her smokestacks. There is, too, the mechanical genius who is always getting up parties to go down and look at the machinery, and the sporting man, who proposes the betting of pools and then forms a syndicate to win them.

There is always a cut up from Camden, New Jersey, or some similar metropolitan, and last, but not least, a bunch of cups, a bunch of American girls who are making their first trip abroad and are curious about everything.

How Guarded British Cabinet Secrets Leak Out SECRET SIGNALS BURGLARS USE

LONDON.—"It would be easier," Disraeli once declared in the House of Commons, "for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for prying eyes to penetrate the arcane in which State secrets are hidden." And yet, Disraeli ought to have known, even without the incredulous laughter that greeted his statement, that he was talking nonsense.

Of course State secrets, like murder, "will out," in spite of every precaution to guard them. It always has been so, and, although the leakage was never less than in our time, it probably always will be so, so long as man is human—and curious.

NEWSPAPER "SCOOPS."

In the old days the practice of stealing State secrets was much commoner and easier than today. A century ago, it is said, more than one of the men who used to sweep out the House of Commons made a snug nest-egg by collecting the scraps of papers that littered the floor near the Treasury Bench and giving them to enterprising journalists. By piecing the fragments together many a valuable item of information was found and duly made public.

Even locked drawers and double doors are not proof against the determined secret-hunter. Once, at least, a journalist found his way into the Home Secretary's sanctum, picked a lock and pulled out a "plum" in the shape of a State document of the highest secrecy and value, which he promptly put into the hands of his editor in exchange for a substantial sum. And, not many years ago, a copying-clerk at the Foreign Office took a copy of a very important memorandum on our negotiations with Russia, which came into his hands, and sold it for a large sum to a leading newspaper.

Cabinet Ministers themselves even have not always been safe guardians of their own secrets. When William IV, in 1834, "unceremoniously kicked out" Melbourne and his Cabinet, the fact was kept a profound secret until Brougham chanced to call on the Prime Minister, on his way home from dinner, and Melbourne told him the news in the greatest confidence. No sooner had Brougham said "good-bye" to Melbourne than off he went, straight to the Times' office and, for some inscrutable reason, told the whole story, which was made public next day.

A CHEQUE FOR £500.

Twelve years later, when Sir Robert Peel's administration decided to bring in a bill for the repeal of the corn laws, in spite of the Premier's declaration only a few weeks earlier that he would stick by them, it was said that Sidney Herbert went straight to dine with Mrs. Norton, a beautiful society hostess, and allowed the secret to be wheedled out of him. As soon as her last guest had left, the story ran, Mrs. Norton drove post-haste to the Times' office and imparted her precious news to the editor in exchange for a cheque for £500. As a matter of fact, however, it was Lord Aberdeen, the Secretary, who let the cat out of the bag, within a few hours of the Cabinet decision, by taking the news to the Times editor himself.

CARELESS MINISTERS.

But so varied are the ways in which these secrets may leak out that the wonder is they are so well concealed themselves so well. Carelessness on the part of Ministers themselves has been responsible for many a leakage; as when, in 1828, Mr. Charles Herries left on his library table a list of Wellington's new Cabinet, of which he was to be a member. A visitor, ushered into his library during his absence saw the list, made a copy of it, and handed it to the Morning Chronicle editor.

In another case an important State document was found in a Minister's coat pocket by his valet, and appropriated; and in still another case the impress of a high official's letter on an hotel blotting-pad revealed a secret which caused great consternation, and led to its writer's withdrawal from public life. Nowadays, since 1889, the divulging of State secrets is a criminal offense for which the law provides exemplary punishment.

So far as the printing of important State documents goes, nothing could exceed the care with which their contents are guarded. In the Foreign Office the printing is done exclusively by an old and trusted compositor in a private and carefully guarded room. When it is necessary to give the work to one of His Majesty's printers, as in the case of the draft of a long bill, the copy is given in minute sections, not exceeding three lines of type, to a large number of compositors. The arrangement of these sections in proper order is the duty of a highly responsible and trustworthy overseer, who alone knows the contents of the bill. And the moment the necessary proofs are printed the type is broken up and distributed.

ADVISES VIOLENCE FOR INSULT

NEW YORK.—Because Joseph Krug had spoken disrespectfully of Mrs. Jos. Youngs of No. 72 avenue E, Bayonne, N. J., Youngs had Kruger arraigned before Recorder Hugh Mara. Looking as though he were intensely in earnest, the recorder said to Youngs:

"What you should have done, instead of coming here with a complaint, was to have knocked this man's head off without loss of time. It would have been more manly on your part."

Krug was ordered to apologize to Mrs. Youngs, which he did. Then as was advised not to speak ill of any woman and was released.

"But I love my father dearly, judge," said the girl, weeping. "I want to stay by him. I work in the silk mill and bring home my wages."

"I love my daughter and I also love my wife," said Moskow. "I don't know what to do."

"He is my husband," said Mrs. Moskow.

"And he was this girl's father long before he ever met you," retorted the recorder. "Moskow, you are the boss of your own house, or you should be. If your daughter wants to stay there, go home, all of you, and try to patch up your troubles."

But Mrs. Moskow's attitude indicated there would be no patching up, or if there was any it would be done by an ambulance surgeon.

LONDON.—Like beggars, who, in their house-to-house visitations, learn much which may save a confere from the sting of a shrew's tongue, a dog's teeth, or a fortnight's free lodging at the country's expense, and who convey such knowledge by means or mystic signs on the walls, gateways, and doors of houses where the welcome may be lacking in warmth, burglars use various signals by which they provide their colleagues in crime with information calculated to save time and trouble when robbery is afoot.

"You see, it is like this," said an ex-convict to the T-B man a few days ago. They had surveyed the premises, and, a suitable opportunity occurring, they decided to do the job without waiting to get full particulars as to the precautions adopted ed against burglary by the inmates of the house. Luckily—at least for the burglars—one of the men, while opening the outside gate, laid his hand on the gate-post, on the top of which had been put a rough diagram of a jimmy.

He at once recognized it as a signal adopted by another gang to warn the men that it was no good trying to use jimmies to force anything. However, the burglars proceeded warily, and effected an entrance through the skylight of the greenhouse attached. But they left a way open for retreat, and it was fortunate for them that they did so, for no sooner had they attempted to enter the house from the door inside the greenhouse than electric bells gave the alarm, and they hurriedly decamped. They afterwards learned that the house was occupied by a retired soldier, who had an armory of weapons and a dozen and one ingenious devices ready to give any burglars who might get into the house a very warm reception.

WAS ASHAMED OF HER LOVE

KANSAS CITY.—"Do you still love then your husband?"

When that question was asked Mrs. Ada Crabtree, 3733 Oak street, wife and provider for four years at the home of Clapham Crabtree, mining man, in Judge Guthrie's court this morning, she covered her face and cried.

"Must I answer that question, judge?" she inquired.

"You must, madam," the judge told her.

Another long and embarrassing wait. Clapham Crabtree, the husband who brought the suit for divorce, was sitting directly in front of her. She was asking for the divorce on a cross-bill. She looked at him wistfully a moment and she said:

"I am ashamed to say I do, judge," she said.

Crabtree decided when the case was called for trial he would make no defense, but would remain in the courtroom to hear the testimony. He changed his story when Mrs. Crabtree began to tell her story. When the case was concluded and Mrs. Crabtree was given the divorce and $25 a month alimony Crabtree announced he would appeal the case.

"He had nine children when I married him in Des Moines, Ia., in 1904," Mrs. Crabtree, who now works in a department store, testified.

She said her husband had wasted a fortune in bad mining investments.

He Claims the Right to Beat His Wife

ST. PAUL, Minn.—Joseph Traveske of 300 Chestnut street, maintained in Police Court that he has a right to whip his wife whenever the pleases, and defied Judge Hanft to keep him from it.

"I whip her when she 'sasses me,'" said Traveske. "I will not promise to quit it."

Judge Hanft was inclined to discharge Traveske if he would promise to stop beating the woman, but Traveske refused. He said that he made $12 a week, of which she got more than half, and he considered that this gave him a right to strike her when she nagged him.

The man refused to ask for any Clemency and said he preferred going to the workhouse to making any promise. Judge Hanft sentenced him to fifteen days. Traveske is a laborer, working at the McMillan packing plant.

It Beats Even the Bumblebee

The bumblebee is to be rendered almost superfluous in nature by a machine newly patented by an Indiana inventor—James M. Dennis of Cambridge City.

This, at all events, so far as concerns clover and alfalfa plants, which have depended almost wholly upon the bumblebee for their production, is said. Where there are no bumblebees there is neither clover nor alfalfa. Which is why our government, not long ago, sent several batches of these useful insects to Australia, a bumblebeeless and cloverless country.

Up to date it does not appear that the experiment has "panned out" as well as was expected. But this is a matter of no importance, if the "fertilizing machine," as the inventor calls it, works as well as he claims it does. One such machine, he asserts, is equal for fertilizing purposes to a whole swarm of bumblebees.

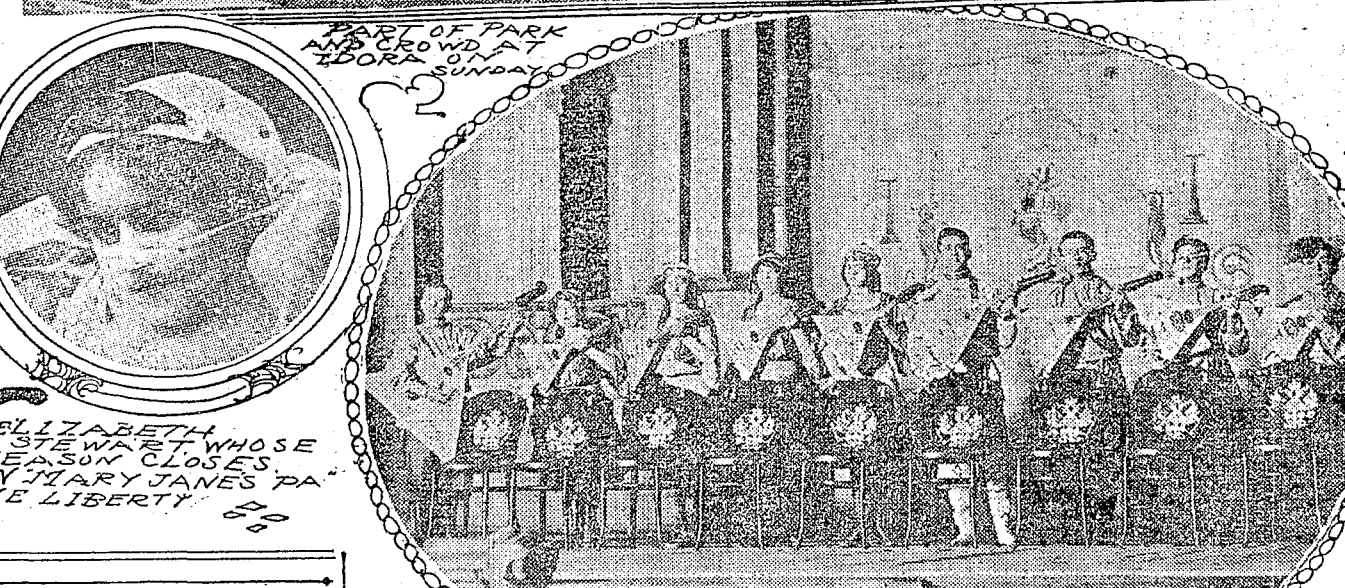

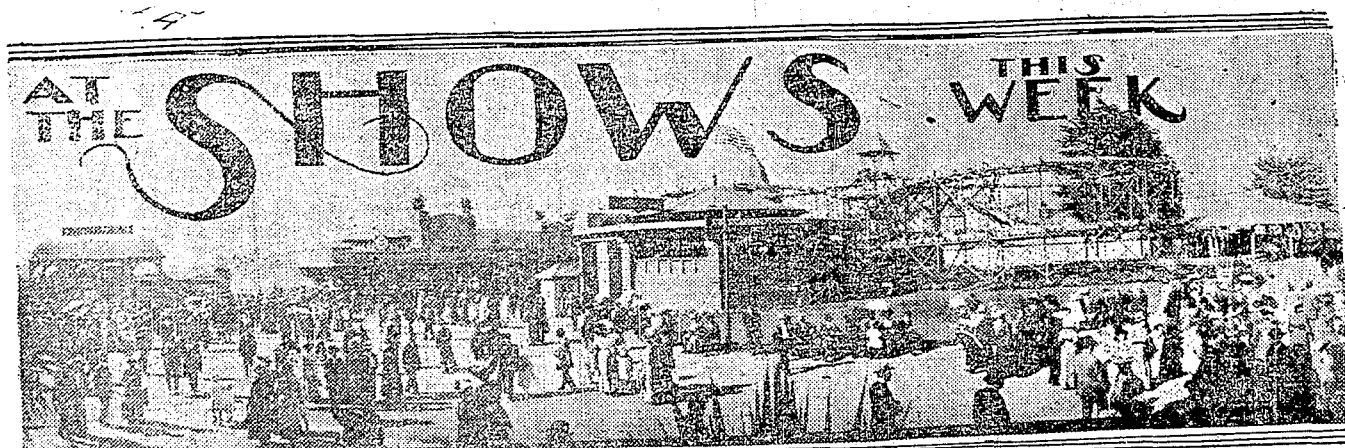

The contrivance is a two-wheeled cart and is intended to be driven by a man over a clover field. In the rear of the axle is a horizontal frame extending almost the entire width of the vehicle. This frame is interlaced with numerous wires in such fashion as to divide it up into an arrangement of square meshes.

It will be understood that the interlacing wires join each other at right angles. From every joining there hangs downward a pair of spring-shaped wire fingers wrapped with fibrous down. The downy fingers thus prepared are made waterproof by dipping them in a thin solution of rubber. This is highly important, because they are the business members, so to speak, of the machine. As the latter is driven slowly over the clover or alfalfa field the horizontal frame, by an arrangement of cams, is made to move a few inches up and down. Four times during each revolution of the cart wheels the downy fingers are lifted gently and dropped suddenly. This keeps the frame continuously agitated; likewise the fuzzy fingers, which brush the blossoms, take up their pollen and deposit it on other blossoms.

In order that clover or alfalfa produce good seed it is necessary that the blossoms shall be cross-pollinated. In other words, the pollen of one blossom must fertilize another. This is a task satisfactorily accomplished by the bumblebee. Mr. Dennis claims that his machine does it equally well and that it can be relied upon to fertilize practically all the blossoms in any patch.

A smaller machine is also being made now for similar use among strawberry plants.

ORPHEUM

"Laugh Week" begins at the Oakland Orpheum today. The finest comedy show, filled with merry hearty laughter from beginning to end, and sparkling with the brilliancy of a diamond—that is the sort of entertainment which will be found at the temple of vaudeville on Twelfth street in the new program that goes on this afternoon.

It is the same big show that packed the San Francisco Orpheum for two solid weeks and was declared by the fastidious folks across the bay to be the greatest vaudeville show seen in many, many moons. Oakland theatergoers will have a chance to face the goodies during one coming week and to decide for themselves whether the verdict of the "best yet" is deserved or not.

Anyone desiring a good hearty, wholesome laugh should see the one-act comedy which W. H. Murphy and Blanche Nichols and their company, will present at the Orpheum. It is entitled "From Zaza to Uncle Tom" and is said to be by far the funniest act in vaudeville. The act is based on the troubles of a road company consisting of three persons—who undertake the production of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" for a one-night show.

The tribulations of Mr. Murphy as Howard Rant, who is trying to rehearse the show, and the antics of Blanche Nichols and their company, will present at the Orpheum. It is entitled "From Zaza to Uncle Tom" and is said to be by far the funniest act in vaudeville.

Alan Dale in reviewing a program he had witnessed at Hammerstein's Victoria theater, New York, said of this act: "Then came W. H. Murphy and Blanche Nichols in the most perfect of vaudeville, 'From Zaza to Uncle Tom'."

Among the latest of the importations of the Orpheum circuit is the new act, "The Russian Troubadours." As singers, dancers and musicians they are one of the most versatile and diverse troupes that Europe has furnished to American vaudeville. They feature, as their stellar performance the playing of the Balalika. The act is spectacular in setting and elaborately costumed in most brilliant and gorgeous costumes.

There are eight men and five girls in the company, all of whom are competent comedians. They are now the only musicians on the American stage using the Balalika.

George W. Jones and Ben N. Deely, who will present their offering entitled "The Gentleman from Mississippi" at the Orpheum, are artists that are well known to all Orpheumites. Mr. Jones will be remembered as the second "The Gentleman from Mississippi" in the Orpheum circuit.

For the week commencing tomorrow evening, Manager Bishop has another splendid offering, "The Gentleman from Mississippi." It is a comedy which the recent notable comedy successes which the Orpheum has presented.

THE GREAT OLD TRUPE OF MUSICIANS AT OAKLAND ORPHEUM

McCullough will be a welcome number on the new bill. A black-face act is scheduled and it has been a long time since one of this moment has appeared here. This newest burnt cork riot by Ned Monroe and Al Harrison, made is entitled "Packing the Third Degree," and is a satire of course on the celebrated play of that name. It is to be said that their sketch offers Mr. Monroe excellent opportunity for the use of his splendid baritone voice.

The Six Imperial Dancers are a sextette of the cleverest dancers that can be gathered together in vaudeville. They dance solos, in duo, in trio, and in concert and it can safely be said that this act has no equal at the present moment in the division of variety. It is the organization of Francis Bohm, reorganized as the leading exponent of the day of stage dancing.

Norton & Russell are two more recruits from musical comedy who have more than made good in the front rank of vaudeville. Norton was formerly with Frank Daniels in "Sergeant Blue" and Miss Russell is very well known as the dashing little comedienne. The act they are producing is a protean character, including the best of popular songs and merry chat, together with the new motion pictures, will complete the bill.

IDA PARK

The lovers of excellent hand music who journey to Ida Park this afternoon or evening will not be disappointed, for the big attraction of the favorite pleasure grounds is Patrick Conway and his wonderful American band. Although the Conway organization plays every afternoon and evening, the Sunday concerts are especially interesting, for it is then that Conway arranges his most popular selections. It is on Sunday that Conway plays more encores, which means that his concerts are longer and contain more popular music than on week days.

As a purveyor of the popular airs and latest Broadway musical hits, Conway leads them all. How he manages to secure the rights to the latest New York musical comedies is the despair of the other bandmasters, yet Conway is always the first to introduce the latest hits. This season he is featuring the best music in "Bright Eyes," "Alma, Where Do You Live?" "The Spring Maid," "The Girl of My Dreams," "Naughty Marietta," selections from the "Hippodrome" and many others, all attractions now running on Broadway, which will not be heard in the west until next season.

Among the classics to be played at today's concert are overture, "Euryanthe," Weber, minuet and gavotte from "Paganini," "Leonavallo," saxophone solo "And Long Live," "Hartman," "Slavonic Rhapsody," Friedman, fantasia.

WILL LAWRENCE OF THE OLD HOMESTEAD

Joshua Whitcomb too long. I don't think so. At first it was a sketch, not more than 25 minutes long, and presented the street scene in Boston in which Uncle Joshua had a number of excitable and legible adventures, and the birthday party in which he made the liveliest sort of meriment homely talk.

"I did my best to give an accurate imitation of two actual personages in Swazey, whom I had known and seen every day in my childhood. The act is now on his way to the old world on his usual quest for novelties, and incidentally, pleasure. He was accompanied from Chicago to New York by Martin Beck, who journeyed to the Windy City expressly to meet him.

There is probably something prophetic in the title "The Come Back" in which Paul Dickey will tour the Orpheum circuit next season.

Edwin Stevens has very evidently decided to spend the rest of his days in vaudeville, which is quite satisfactory to him, with regulation stevedores and a trimmings that will soon go prancing about the Orpheum circuit.

The Planophians will tour the Orpheum circuit next season. The act is as bright and stunning as ever, and where it has played a return date has never failed to draw a large audience.

When playing in San Francisco recently, dainty little Bird Millman was done in oil by the well known veteran artist, Thomas Thoner. The canvas was presented to the little wire nymph.

"The Old Homestead" will appear at the Macdonough theater Friday and Saturday, May 26 and 27, with a matinee Saturday.

"The Lily" coming. With the same company and production that carried the play through its wonderfully successful run in New York City, "The Lily" will be presented by David Belasco and presented by him, will be the offering at the Macdonough theater for three nights beginning Wednesday, May 31.

Seldom has a play or organization been heralded so enthusiastically as this one, and the fact that Nance O'Neill, Charles Cartwright, Julia Dean and Alfred Hickman continue to play the new famous De Maigny family, adds additional interest.

Belasco sends the organization here direct from New York in all of its Belascoan entirety. There will be a special matinee Thursday, June 1.

SIX IMPERIAL DANCERS AT THE BELL

A big production, with bucking broncos and other features typical of the "wild and woolly" will be seen at the Orpheum next season in "Cheyenne Days."

Maurice Gest, who became a son of David Belasco, by the marriage into next season a big ensemble feature entitled "The Darling of Paris."

The worthy heir and namesake of Pat Rooney, with Marlon Bent, will be a feature of Orpheum bills in the near future.

Amy Rickard and Lester Lonergan are now in Vaudeville in a capital little comedy that is scheduled for a date at the Orpheum.

The big noise on the Orpheum circuit this month will be heard in Los Angeles, where a beautiful new theater will be opened. Last month it was in Winnipeg where a new house was added to the chain.

Ameria Stone has left musical comedy for the present and will soon start on a tour of the Orpheum.

One of the most romantic histories of any person before the public today is the life of Odiva, the famous swimmer and diver, who will appear at the Orpheum shipwreck by the natives of Samoa, raised by them until she was taken into the keeping of Englishmen, who educated her. She has the nautical art of the natives and the culture of her own countrymen.

Gathering the Twelve Lost Tribes

GARDEN OF EDEN

ACCORDING to the Bible prophecies, or at least as Mary and Benjamin of Benton Harbor, Michigan, interpret the word there are today scattered broadcast over the face of the earth about 144,000 living descendants of the lost twelve tribes of Israel.

For the purpose of recovering these people and in gathering them there has been established at Benton Harbor one of the most remarkable communities in the world today.

Already the settlement numbers over six hundred and more members are being added almost daily as Mary and Benjamin are, through trusted representatives, carrying on their remarkable propaganda in all parts of the world.

The spot chosen for the proposed round-up of the scattered tribes is one of the most beautiful and healthful that could have been selected. Attractive for worldly pleasures as well as for finding Israel's faith.

The principal industry which this people, who are known as the Commonwealth of Israel, follow is farming. But, in the fruit belt of Michigan, fruit-raising is as likely in their line.

As time goes on, the House of David, the headquarters of the community, is being made more attractive in its surroundings. This, however, is not designed as a source of pleasure for the ingathered Israelites but for the comfort and enjoyment of those who wish to visit them, and make themselves familiar with the people who have settled in the community and their belief.

GARDEN OF EDEN.

Opposite the House of David a large tract of land until recently delighted the eye. This has now been transformed into a veritable Garden of Eden. Eden Springs are here. There are, too, other natural beauties, such as ravines, springs and a lake, all situated within this garden.

The Commonwealth of Israel has its own schools and teachers. Here the children of the community, of whom there are a total of more than one hundred, are taught the common branches of learning. And, their schools are under the supervision of the county school system.

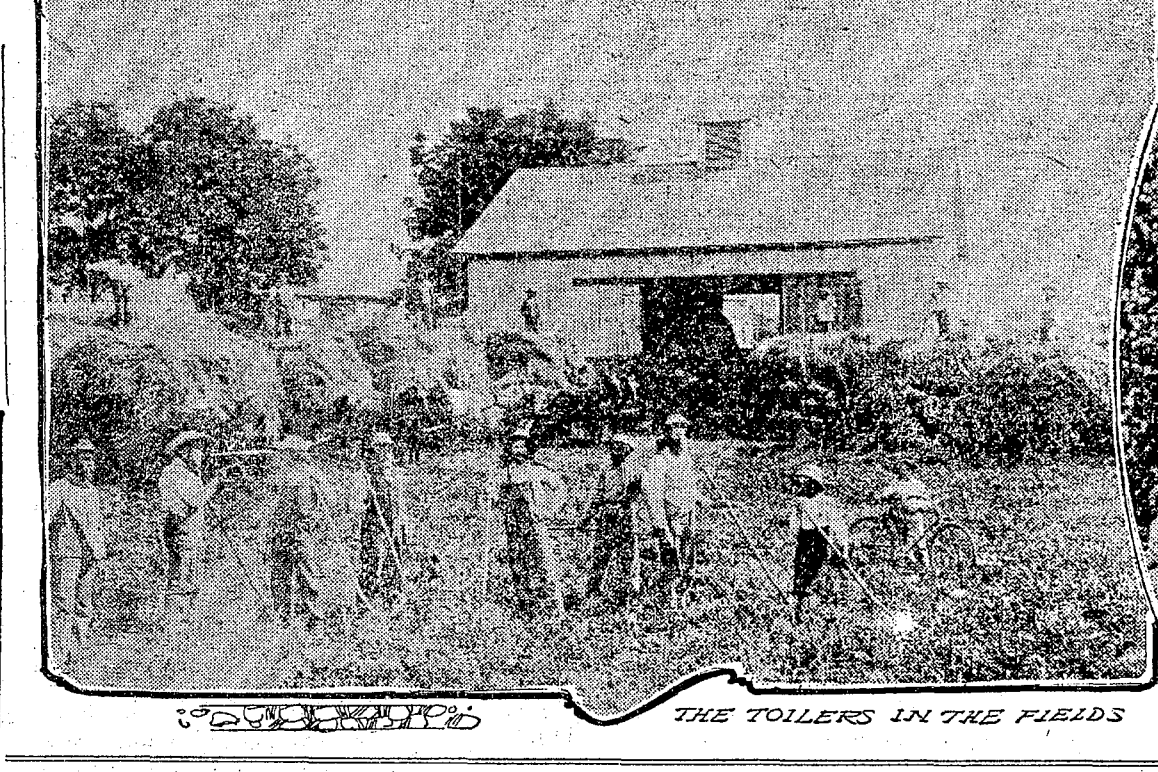

All property is held in common. No one ever thinks of calling aught his own. Whatever service any member of the household may render it is taken as a free will offering, for all are engaged in one common work.

Every member of the House of David wears long hair, and given names are all the designations they have. Short hair is a convict mark, they tell the questioner who asks them to give a reason for wearing long hair. If any further explanation is required, they will tell you that cutting the hair "is a figure of being cut off from the life of the body." And every statement of their they back up by their Scripture authority.

Upon arriving in a city the missionaries of that community secure the privilege to occupy the corner of a street, or some place which will afford an opportunity to address the crowds of persons who are attracted by their presence.

TWO MONTHS' JOURNEY.

Not long since a party of four arrived in Philadelphia. They had made the

THE HOUSE OF DAVID

Israel is, that they may be given the opportunity to learn the laws whereby "They may overcome all sin, and thereby remove the cause of death, or going through the chambers of the grave." And these are being taught at the house established for this purpose.

Ever since the human family became endowed with the reasoning faculty, sects of every variety have every now and then sprung up and endeavored to cope with this mighty subject. The redemption of the body without death.

There are in the world today a variety of cults which have been established with this aim in view. And they are all disseminating their particular form of belief.

The House of David, however, it may as well be said, is unlike any of these, inasmuch as this sect base their claim upon various promises in the Scriptures. And, believing "The time has come to no longer seek death, but life."

According to their understanding, all these things have not hitherto been understood, because the time for the fulfillment of the prophecy was not at hand. The time of the end had not come. Now, however, they see the signs of its fulfillment.

THE EARTH ABIDEETH.

When they speak of "the end" they do not mean the end of the world, but this planet will be destroyed. Not at all. On the contrary, they refer to when it was written: "One generation passeth away and another cometh, but the earth abideth forever."

As Mary and Benjamin read the Scriptures during the 120 years seven messengers were to be sent out, and make plain these teachings. And these are come.

The first was Joanna Southcott, who, in 1732, began her work in England. After her came the brothers Richard, who were followed by George Turner, William Shaw, John Wroe and James Zevel. And now, in successive order, have come Mary and Benjamin, who are the seventh, and therefore being the last they have come to finish the work.

The 120 years will end in 1912. Yet 1916, they explain, and the eleventh hour.

At that time all Israel shall be in safety.

In the Old World, however, there will be great troubles. These will come from war, pestilence, famine, disasters and death.

SCATTERED TRIBES.

MISSOURI WOMEN WILL GAG GOSSIPERS IN THEIR CLUBS

HUGGINSVILLE, Mo.—A unique woman's club has been organized here. Believing that the enmity and jealousy which break up women's social clubs in general are caused by gossiping and the spirit of rivalry which leads each hostess to try to outdo the others in the elaborateness of her entertainment and menu, and each member to try to outshine the others in raiment, this new organization has decided to put a ban on gossip, expensive entertainment and envy-provoking costumes. The three principal laws are:

No gossip, either aloud, whispered or written, shall be permitted at any meeting. Any member guilty of such offense shall be fined. The fund thus raised shall be expended for an annual banquet to the husbands of the members.

Refreshments are to be served at all meetings, but the menu must be strictly limited to two articles, as coffee and cake, tea and toast, or cookies and water.

No member shall be admitted to meetings unless attired in the simplest kind of "everyday" costume.

"The club is not a freak club in any way," said one of the members. "It is really the other women's clubs which are freaks—the literary clubs which do everything but study literature, the mothers' clubs which don't do anything but discuss the late society literature and their neighbors, the art clubs which come no nearer art than a comic supplement, the Shakespeare clubs which meet mainly to exchange recipes and the musical clubs which would enthusiastically applaud the tuning up by a picture show orchestra if they thought it was something of Wagner's."

"I've belonged to all those kinds of clubs and could tell you a few things, if it weren't against our rules to gossip. We have named ours the Hugginsville Fancywork Club, but it is a purely social organization."

Some Coronation Celebrations

MANCHESTER.—A Lancashire lady has already announced her intention of presenting a bright new sovereign to every child born in her parish on Coronation Day.

This is going one better than the clerk of the parish council of Moulton, near Northwich, on the occasion of the coronation of King Edward. His present to every infant ushered into the world in his parish on that day was a beautiful fishmere frock.

MARRIED FOR NOTHING!

At Marshfield, in Gloucestershire, the babies had a field day, the great feature of which was a procession in perambulators. At Watworth a coronation baby show was arranged, with a London hospital doctor as judge and prizes for the best fed and best clothed.

There was no doubt a rush of coronation weddings at Rye, Sussex, where the vicar issued a notice that during the coronation month the marriage ceremony would be performed without payment of the usual fees.

A queer-minded individual at Elmham, Norfolk, had the temerity to suggest that a portion of the coronation celebration fund should be used for the purchase of a public house for the parish! The proposition met with unanimous rejection.

TWO TONS OF PIE.

In accordance with long-established custom, the loyal inhabitants of Denby Dale will doubtless prepare a monster pie in celebration of King George's coronation. That made on the occasion of Queen Victoria's jubilee was eight feet in depth and upwards of two tons in weight. It was baked in a dish weighing 1500 pounds, was drawn by ten horses and cost $1250.

The little town of Wye, near Ashford, in Kent, decided to commemorate our late King's coronation in an original and permanent way. In the chalk on Wye Downs it was resolved to dig a huge design of a crown, on lines similar to the famous "white horses" of Berkshire, and the North Riding of Yorkshire, which would be visible for many miles.

On the same occasion from 15,000 to 20,000 bonfires were arranged for, one of the highest being on the Richmond Beacon, in Yorkshire. At each bonfire fifty rockets were to be sent off simultaneously, or 750,000 to 1,000,000 in all.

ST. PAUL'S ROPE WALKER.

St. Paul's Cathedral has been the scene of some wonderful performances at various coronations. When King Edward VI. was crowned a marvelous exhibition was given from its battlements, according to Holmshead, by an agile Aragonese.

He descended upon a rope, which was secured to an anchor at the gate of the Dean's house. Then he walked up the rope again and performed "certain misteryes" on the said rope, to the great wonder of the assembled multitude and the no less delight of the youthful sovereign.

The woman is sincere in her application and wants the position, she says, because she is sure she can make good, and also that she would enjoy the distinction of being the only woman fire fighter in the world.

Up to the time of her arrest she had worked in a grading camp for two years doing a man's work without being detected. She is big and strong and told the police that she was working as a man because she had been deserted by her husband in Denver.

She said she had a child to support and it was the only way she could get a man's wages.

Chief Willis said he would consider the application.

She Wants a Job in Fire Department

PUEBLO, Colo.—Application for a position as fireman has been made to Fire Chief Willis by Mrs. Sadie Carter, a former Denver woman, who was arrested here several weeks ago for wearing male attire.

They Started All the Trouble

LONDON.—It was the old historic house of Davidson and Newman that exported to America those celebrated chests of tea which being sunk in Boston harbor, gave rise to the war of independence. Not only is this firm the oldest established in England, but it carries on business today on almost the same lines as it did in the days of Charles II.

The business began in Fenchurch street, London, more than two hundred and sixty years ago, and was conducted at the same old place until 1899, when the successors were obliged to remove owing to city improvements. It is now carried on at a warehouse in Creechurch buildings, Leadenhall street.

In 1863 the firm was known as Rawlinson, Davidson and Newman. In 1777 the style Davidson, Newman & Co. was adopted, and is retained to the present day. In the "annual register" for 1799 we read the following: "Died this year, in Fenchurch street, Abraham Newman, Esq. He was one of the richest citizens of London. He acquired 3 million dollars. So forcible was his habit that he went every day to the shop and ate his mutton chop at 2 o'clock with his successors. To each of his daughters he left $500,000." He retired some years before he died. Monckhouse, Davidson, died in 1793. The two partners were buried in one vault and the memorial tablet still exists in the church of St. Olave, Hart street.

This growing firm still carries on business under its old shop sign over the doorway, in the shape of a crown supporting three gilt sugar loaves. Some of these tall quaint cones of sugar may be seen in the window. The complete absence of all show and decoration, the cleanliness of the interior, and the quiet order of the clerks in their long white aprons, impress the visitor with a complete conviction as to the respectability of the shop and the genuineness of its articles.

REGAINS SIGHT AT EIGHTY-TWO

BURLINGTON, N. J.—Having regained her sight after a year's blindness, Mrs. Mary A. Wright, eighty-two years old, who, it is said, is the oldest Sunday school teacher in New Jersey, appeared before her class today amid the waving of handkerchiefs. For sixty-five years Mrs. Wright has taught a Sunday school class. It was thought when she went to the hospital that she never would see again, but one of the rarest operations in the history of optical surgery was performed, and today Mrs. Wright said she was ready to give many more years to the service of the Sunday school.

"In the long time in the hospital I learned important lessons," she said. "One is never to carry tomorrow's burdens today; just take care of today and try to get the best out of it. I tried to be kind willingly, but I didn't get willing. I learned how not to lose today's happiness out of tomorrow's possibilities."

Mrs. Wright then told of the value of friends; how they were worth more than money and how her friends' friends had been answered.

"And now I can see!" she went on joyously. "I can read my Bible. I can see the flowers. I can recognize your faces, and I am so happy I feel twenty-five—yes, fifty—years younger. If I were a man and a politician and felt such gratitude I suppose I would get out a band and have a big parade. But I don't appeal to me. I can't sing, but my heart will be with your voices as you sing my hymn of gratitude, 'I will still serve my King.'"

BLAMES NICKELODEON FOR DOWNFALL

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—Another influence is charged to the moving-picture theater by Albert Yeager of Kokomo, who appeared before the State Prison Board to ask for the release of his wife, now serving a term in the woman's prison for neglecting her children.

Yeager told the board that his wife was a good woman and loving mother until she began to attend the moving-picture shows. After that she went to the 5-cent theaters with other men and stayed away from home at nights, entirely neglecting her family, he said. He stood it for four months, and then filed charges in Juvenile Court.

Yeager said he is not able properly to take care of their three small children, and his wife had promised to return home and conduct herself in a seeming manner if released.

Mrs. Yeager is one of the few women ever sent to prison in Indiana for neglecting their children. Her's is also the first case on record where the moving picture theaters were held accountable

NEW YORK, March 25.—Wheezing and chuckling to himself, John D. Rockefeller, on his arrival in New York from his trip south, refused to give any statement whatever to the avalanche of reporters who swooped down upon him with the information that Frank J. Gould had made an announcement threatening to expose the methods employed by the Standard Oil financiers in getting control of railroads and other corporations. The oil magnate's only comment was a hearty laugh.

The besieging of reporters began as Rockefeller, with his little 6-year-old granddaughter, and his son and heir, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., stepped from the train at New York and were making their way through the Pennsylvania Terminal. But the crowd of news-gatherers were doomed to disappointment, for the oil king remained unflinchingly non-committal and merely continued smiling to himself while the reporters talked, until he reached his carriage and was driven away from the depot.

Oakland Music-Lovers Eagerly Await Coming of Remarkable Mary Garden

Beautiful American Singer Plans to Give Notable Program
Stewart Concert Proves
Up to Expectations

(BY DOROTHY PEPPY.)

Oakland music lovers are eagerly awaiting the arrival of Mary Garden, the American prima donna, who will make her first appearance in this city next Tuesday evening.

Probably no singer of the day has so interested the public of two continents with her personality and exceptional dramatic ability, combined with a voice, when she made her first appearance in this country, less than five years ago. It was with doubtful chance of success. But so marked has been her popularity both with technical musicians and those of less technical equipment that she has gained for herself a place among the foremost artists of the world. Moreover, Miss Garden introduced to the opera-goers of this country the music of the modern French school, with which it had previously been entirely unfamiliar, and has given to this music a vogue second to none. Her name has become identified for all time with certain of these roles, such as "Thais," "Louise," "Pelléas and Mélisande," and it will be from these operas that certain of her selections for this concert will be made.

ARIA FROM "LOUISE."

In her Oakland concert the diva's aria will be from the modern opera "Louise." This is an example of the most up-to-date composition, having for its theme the love of a poor French seamstress for the life and gaiety of Paris, a theme, moreover, in its further ramifications, not unlike that of "The Lily," being seen in the city at present.

To accompany this modern theme is used tone combinations utterly original and found only among the French. It is lacking in melody according to Italian standards, but there is an alliance between text and tone, effecting a beautiful whole. The singer's other numbers are of the better known and more popular variety.

The program to be given here is as follows:

- 1—(a) Allegretto from second sonata, Beethoven.
- (b) Finale from No. 2, Bruch.
- 2—Aria from "Louise," Charpentier.
- (Note:—It was in this opera that Miss Garden made her first sensational success in Paris.)
- 3—(a) Romance, Debussy.
- (b) Passetemps, Debussy.
- (c) Gavotte and Musette, D'Albort.
- 4—(a) Ariette, Debussy.
- (b) At Parting, Debussy.
- (c) Du bist wie eine Blume, Debussy.
- 5—(a) Nocturne, Robert Schumann.
- (b) Polonaise, Chopin.
- 6—Aria from "Thais," Puccini.
- 7—(a) Serenade, Howard Brockway.
- (b) Humoresque, Op. 38, No. 4, Howard Brockway.
- (c) Ballade, Howard Brockway.
- 8—(a) Ave Maria, Bach.
- (b) Gounod.

STEWART CONCERT.
The Stewart Orchestral concert gave a public recital Thursday evening which was remarkably good and won wholehearted applause from the large audience gathered at the Macdonough theater. It was really a gala night for Mrs. Stewart, Grace Davis Northrup, and the orchestra and chorus, all of whom distinguished themselves. The numbers were excellently given and went with verve and spirit, there being none of the usual drag attendant on an amateur performance.

It was encouraging to those who propagated the idea of a musical organization and its successful maintenance by local talent to witness the enthusiasm with which each number was received. Mrs. Northrup's return to Oakland is a distinct acquisition, and her reception showed full appreciation of her talents.

of songs were delightfully chosen and varied with rare charm. The sextet from "Lucia," always a favorite, was excellently rendered and the singers were obliged to repeat the number.

The ensemble work was of uniform excellence and a credit to Alexander Stewart, whose earnest efforts have done so much to bring about interest in the better sort of music.

The program was:

- 1—(a) Grace Davis Northrup, soprano. Chorus 100 voices, comprising the members of the Ebell club, Edwin Dunbar Candell, conductor, and the choir of the First Congregational church, Alexander Stewart, conductor.
- (b) Carolin Nicholson, contralto; Mr. H. D. Mustard, baritone; Mr. Walter E. Nicholson, bass; Mr. Hugh J. Williams, tenor; Mr. Philip Hall, tenor; Miss Virginia de Fremery, accompanist.
- (c) Xavier Scharwenka, Swedish Processional.
- (d) Kindel Frühl, Russian Romance.
- (e) Massenet, Vire Amour (Chorus).
- (f) Widor, Contemplation.
- (g) Ware, Wind and Lyre.
- (h) Gounod, The Merry Wives of Windsor.
- (i) Gounod, The Merry Wives of Windsor.

ARIOLA HEARD.
Pepito Ariola, the Spanish lad of 13, gave a concert at Ye Liberty playhouse on Friday afternoon and delighted his audience.

The program included Beethoven's "Sonata, Aposionata," a group of important Chopin works among which were the "Polonaise Militaire," "Valse" Op. No. 1, "Three Preludes" and a "Nocturne," Liszt's transcription of Mendelssohn's "On Wings of Song," a "Prelude and Nocturne" for left hand alone.

to eat at the club luncheon later. But those are days that have passed. The elaborate refreshments of the Home Club were served in the most perfect manner, and a rare good breeding and knowledge of social affairs characterized the entire reception.

Two prominent women from our side of the bay are to rule over club affairs in San Francisco in the coming year. Mrs. Pond of Berkeley, who is president of the Laurel Hall Club, and Mrs. Howard Hamilton-Hart of Claremont, who has been elected president of the well known Forum Club.

The Laurel Hall Club stands next to Ebell in point of age in the state, and its aims are entirely along literary lines of culture. Mrs. Pond is an extremely capable president, and she has a wide circle of friends on both sides of the bay. The Forum Club, as its name would indicate, is very much in the heart of things, and it has made a wise choice in placing Mrs. Hart at the head of affairs for the coming year. One hears she has many plans for the advancement of the work of the club. The club gives an annual breakfast of much importance, and the social date this year was postponed until the return of Mrs. Hart.

The Harts went to Panama some weeks ago, and returned to California by way of the West Indies, visiting Kingston, Jamaica, and Havana. They are now at their superb home at Claremont, which has been opened for the summer.

The breakfast of the Forum Club took place yesterday at the Fairmont, and 200 guests were seated at the beautifully decorated tables. Mrs. F. M. Wright was the clever toastmistress, and one of the speakers of the afternoon was Mrs. Howard Hart, the newly elected president of the club.

OAKLAND WOMEN TO ASSIST.

Oakland women are to be asked to co-operate with leading San Francisco women, in the new club, the auxiliary to the Panama-Pacific Exposition Commission. Mrs. Lovell White called an important meeting of the club last week, and the speaker of the hour was Mrs. William H. Crocker.

MUCH IN COMMON IN SOCIAL WAY.

It is a good sign of the times that Oakland and San Francisco have so much in common in a social way. Some of our well known debutantes of the winter were greatly entertained in the San Francisco smart set this past season, and at all social functions on either side of the bay one meets people of prominence from the many cities around the bay.

Miss Amy Bowles is to be the maid of honor at the June wedding of Lieutenant Rees and Miss Jennie Lee, and she will entertain for the bride-elect at an elaborate luncheon on June 3d. Mr. John McNear has cards out for a tea in honor of Miss Lee, and she will be assisted by two prominent matrons from this side of the bay, Mrs. Frank C. Havens and Mrs. Oscar F. Long.

One of the most important of the San Francisco dates was the silver wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Montague, a date which they celebrated at their home on Pacific avenue.

Mrs. Montague has many friends over here, among whom are the Albert Millers, the Frank L. Browns, the Charles R. Allens and the P. E. Bowles.

Mrs. Montague recently inherited a million dollars from her uncle, the late Mr. Paige of New York, who was formerly a California pioneer. She is doing much good work with her inheritance, and has joined the White-law Reids in building St. Luke's Memorial Hospital. At her wedding anniversary Mrs. Montague wore the wedding gown of satin, made for her a quarter of a century ago, and a feature of the evening was the fine singing of St. Luke's choir.

Bridge was played during the evening, and the prizes were very beautiful silver loving cups.

TWO LARGE RECEPTIONS PLANNED.

Two large receptions for which cards have been sent out, will probably close the social season on our side of the bay. Two well known hostesses, Mrs. Louis Ghirardelli and Mrs. Gilbert Curtiss, have sent out cards for receptions on May 31.

Mrs. Louis Ghirardelli is entertaining in honor of Mrs. Christian Jorgenson, formerly Miss Angela Ghirardelli. The Jorgensons have been away from Oakland now for many years. They have two delightful homes, one in the heart of Yosemite Valley, where Mr. Jorgenson paints his pictures, and the other at Carmel by the Sea. The young son of the family is in the university, and one hears that the daughter and her interpretation of the selections which she sings, should assure her great success. It is very seldom that a voice as clear and appealing as Mrs. Jorgenson's is heard.

ter, Miss Almee Jorgenson, is a very charming girl. She is a cousin of Mrs. Josephine Crow Aylin, Robert Harnden, John W. Metcalf, Dr. H. J. Stewart, Count Wachmeister, Wallace Sabia, Ude Waldrop and many others.

A large receiving party will assist Mrs. Ghirardelli, among whom will be: Mrs. Willard Williamson, Mrs. Hugh Webster, Mrs. John Spring, Mrs. Clarence Westmore, Mrs. Austin Richards, Mrs. T. C. Coogan, Mrs. Thomas Cushing, Miss Philena Wetmore, Miss Letty Barry, Miss May Coogan, Miss Jessie Craig, Miss Carmel Sutton, Miss Almee Jorgenson and Miss Alma Ghirardelli.

Mrs. Gilbert Curtiss has also sent out nearly 300 cards for the afternoon of May 31, and she will receive her friends in her East Oakland home. She will be assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Lawson Adams, who is one of the most stunning young matrons on the other side of the bay.

If both hostesses were giving bridge afternoons, it might be difficult for their friends, but the hours of the reception are long and guests can easily arrange to attend both the teas planned for May 31.

MANY MOTOR TRIPS PLANNED.

Many motor trips are being arranged for the month of June, and among those who will go to San Diego in their cars are Mrs. Henry D. Bull, and her children, Arthur and Elizabeth Latnam. The M. J. Laymanes will join Mrs. Bull's party on the southern tour. Mrs. Bull is also planning a motor trip to Crater Lake, Oregon, later in the summer.

Miss Christie Taft, Miss Ethel Valentine and Miss Bessie Palmer spent last summer together at one of the delightful lakes in the Sierras, higher up than Lake Tahoe. Many friends came during the summer to visit them, and they did not return to town till the late autumn days.

This year they are planning a June trip to Yosemite, and will go later to the upper Sierras.

As the summer wears on, life is made up of welcomes to returning friends or of speeding the traveler on his way. "Good-by," "Au revoir," "Auf wiedersehen," are often on our lips. But Longfellow once upon a time expressed it better for us—

"And safe from all adversity Thy comings and thy goings be."

MISS WILSON AT MARE ISLAND.
Miss Joy Wilson is spending some delightful days at the Mare Island Navy Yard, the house guest of friends who are entertaining her extensively in her honor. Miss Wilson is one of the popular girls of Berkeley.

WILL STUDY IN EUROPE.
Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Carter are leaving early next month for New York en route to Europe, where they will spend a year in musical study. In the east they will meet Warren D. Allen, who is securing a home after spending several seasons in London where his work on the organ has won for him the approval of the most severe critics.

The last symphony concert of the Carter quartet will be given on Sunday next in Unity hall in Berkeley, an interesting hour of music being announced. The quartet includes Franklin Carter, James de Fremery, George Chatterly and William McKinney.

MERRY PARTY ENJOYS CRUISE.
The members of the Third Club fraternally at the Eumonia Club had as their guests yesterday afternoon 150 of the younger set of Berkeley entertaining them on a cruise of the bay aboard the General Frisbie. The merry party left San Francisco at 1 o'clock, returning at midnight. Supper was served aboard the boat. At California City an informal dance was provided for the diversion of the young folk. A dozen Berkeley matrons chaperoned the party.

PUPILS WILL GIVE RECITAL.
Miss Elizabeth Westgate has announced a song recital in Ebell clubhouse on Friday evening next when her younger pupils will present an interesting program assisted by the piano pupils of Miss Elizabeth Westgate. Several hundred cards are being sent out for the notable occasion.

LAUNCH PARTY ON BAY.
Friday afternoon Mrs. Frederick Stratton entertained at a launch party on the bay, having as her guests the members of the Steindorf Trio, a coterie of twelve ladies, and a host of friends. Each week for choral work, and as many other friends. Luncheon was served aboard the launch which visited the points of interest about the bay.

MISS COLE A JUNE BRIDE.
Miss Cole will join the ranks of the June brides, naming the evening of Wednesday, June 7, for her wedding with Raymond Pond, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Pond. Since the announcement of her betrothal early in the winter, Miss Cole has been extensively fettered. She has planned a beautiful ceremony with which to celebrate her marriage.

WILL ENTERTAIN AT TEA.
The large tea for which Mrs. Gilbert Curtiss has sent out cards for the afternoon of Wednesday, May 31, will be attended by a host of friends about the bay. Mrs. Curtiss will receive at her handsome East Oakland residence and will be assisted by a coterie of the matrons of the smart set.

RAILWAYS MUST PAY FRANCHISE PERCENTAGE

SAN FRANCISCO, May 20.—City Attorney on advised the Board of Supervisors today, in response to a question, that the United Railroads Company cannot claim exemption under the new state corporation tax law from the payment of percentages due the city under the terms of the company's franchises. Secretary Willcutt of the corporation had late written to the Board of Supervisors to the effect that such percentages would be withheld because of the passage of the new law until the company's legal advisers had examined into its probable effects.

Poll Tax Notice

Oakland, March 6th, 1911.
Notice is hereby given that the State Poll Tax of two dollars for the year 1911 is now due and payable at the Assessor's office, room one, Court House, or to Deputy Assessor.

Sec. 3339 of the Political Code reads as follows:
Every male inhabitant of the State over twenty-one and under sixty years of age, except paupers, insane persons and Indians, must annually pay a Poll Tax of two dollars, provided the same be paid between the First Monday in March and the First Monday in August.

Then it shall be three dollars.
Sec. 3846 of the Political Code makes it the duty of the Assessor to demand the Poll Tax of every person liable therefor, and on the neglect or refusal of such person to pay, he must collect the same and add to it one personal property owned by such person.

Under Sections 429 to 434 every person who refuses to pay his own name or the name of any person in his employ, or who in any manner obstructs the collection of the State Poll Tax, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and liable to a fine of $500 or imprisonment in the County Jail, or both such fine and imprisonment.

Only those persons under twenty-one or over sixty years of age are exempt. Poll tax must be paid on demand.

MONEY FAILS TO TALK TO HOUSE SPEAKER

CHAMP CLARK has come forward as a defender of the divine virtue of his speakership. During a recent visit to Philadelphia Mr. Clark took occasion to repudiate the popular idea that all public men are corrupt.

To prove his contentions Mr. Clark cited the worthy estate of former speakers of the House. To be sure and fortunately for his cause he did not mention his immediate predecessor in office, "Uncle Joe" Cannon, for he is a millionaire several times over. But Uncle Joe aside, a careful investigation of the personal history of all the speakers from the ante-bellum period down to the present seems to prove fairly conclusively that Speaker Clark is by no means without good material on which to base his claims.

Indeed, there are many facts available all going to indicate that the vast majority of the speakers at least have remained most abstemiously free from corruption, and to their everlasting credit be it said they have done it in circumstances that makes even honesty a special virtue.

Any one who does not possess even more than a superficial knowledge of the ins and outs of Washington official life cannot help but be aware that no other man in public life is in so good a position to feather his own nest as is the speaker of the House.

PUBLIC NONE THE WISER.

By nodding his head he could make every session worth a cool million to himself and the public at large would be none the wiser. And yet our Speakers have almost invariably kept office poor. Half a century ago Galusha A. Grow of Pennsylvania presided during the first two years of the Civil war, when there was something of a riot of graft in many departments of the government, but he laid down the gavel with clean hands. His successor, Schuyler Colfax, of Indiana, was unfortunate in some of his associations, becoming mixed up, after his election to the vice-presidency, with the Credit Mobilier scandal. Impartial students of history, however, concede that Colfax was a guileless instrument in the hands

FOUR GLASSES OF BEER IS WOMAN'S CAPACITY

BOSTON.—"Four glasses of beer are enough for the average woman, for they are all she can stand without becoming foolish. A woman needs to drink, just as a man does, but she must remember that she can't stand as much, because the longer the hair the shorter the sense."

So declares Mrs. Christiana Berresheim of Roxbury, who at seventy-six still tends bar in her own saloons and is the oldest barmaid in the Bay State and the only one in Boston.

"I think I ought to know a lot about drinking," said Mrs. Berresheim, "for I've had a saloon here many years. I hear people talk of how to tell when a man is intoxicated. A man is intoxicated when he talks loud and swears and acts foolish and when he wants to fight. I've got a motto on the wall which says, 'If you want to fight, join the army.'"

"I have a rule about women and I have found it works all right. If any woman comes in here for lunch and asks for a fifth glass of beer I refuse to sell it to her. If I do not know her. There are a few women I know who can take a glass of whiskey and then maybe six or seven glasses of beer without being foolish, but they are few."

"If a woman works hard—say scrubbing floors or washing clothes—a drink does her good, but she ought to remember that she cannot drink as much as a man, because a man has got a better head."

of cunning men of the Oakes Ames type. An able statesman is not necessarily a shrewd business man; indeed some of the ablest have made ducks and drakes of their own affairs—Daniel Webster, for instance. At the expiration of his term as Vice-President, Colfax was compelled to resort to the Lyceum for support, and he was not much in demand at that. He died poor.

BLAINE REGRETS.

After Blaine came as Speaker the regretted Michael C. Kerr, of Indiana, who died after serving a few months. Kerr had saved nothing, and his salary for the full year, voted to his family, was most acceptable.

Samuel J. Randall was in temperament a rare combination, a blend of a cavalier and the roundhead. Urbane, magnetic, socially a marvel of grace, he was when it came to executing an official trust, a miracle of moral poise.

Tolerant of others and sympathetic with the weakness of humanity, he was the sternest of all judges who sat at the bar, and no dollar ever passed his fingers that had not been honestly acquired. As Speaker, his position was unique. The House was Democratic and high tariffs were out of favor with his party, while he himself was a protectionist of the strictest school. With revenue measures pending in which the industrial North and East were largely interested, he could have thrown the weight of his exalted position in their favor, and by so doing would have aroused no suspicion, and he could have written his own check for such surrender to the interests. A million dollars would have been paid to keep William R. Morrison off the ways and means committee. Randall made him chairman. Continuously in office from 1888 until the time of his death, almost, Samuel J. Randall accumulated no large estate.

J. WARREN KELFER

SERVES SINGLE TERM.

General J. Warren Kelfer served a single term as Speaker and then temporarily retired from Congress so that he might lay up something for old age. Having acquired a competency he returned to the House, of which he is now a member. John G. Carlisle, Speaker six years, United States Senator and Secretary of the Treasury, removed to New York after quitting the Cabinet in order that he might recoup his shattered fortune. He was so poor he had to live in a boarding house until he had earned enough to take a residence and send for effects, and yet he is the man of whom it was said by the calamity howlers of 1896, that he had "sold out to Wall street."

Mr. Carlisle managed to live well and keep his debts paid, but he was always just a little behind until, in his old age, he resumed his law practice. Commanding talents such as his, of course, brought in big fees, and he was soon in easy circumstances. But not a penny of the estate inherited by his heirs when he died a few months ago came out of the public treasury, or from the strong box of a Congressional lobby.

Why Thomas Brackett Reed quit Congress and the Speakership at the very height of his brilliant career, is well known to all readers of newspapers. He had a family and his family were seeing him grow old under conditions that would not permit him to save anything for them or for himself. A firm of New York lawyers offered to guarantee him $100,000 a year. This was one-tenth of what he could have commanded from the lobby, but it was clean, so he resigned and removed to Manhattan, where, so perverse is Fate, he died before he was able to accomplish his purpose.

UNLIKE IN TEMPERAMENT.

Charles F. Crisp, of Georgia, succeeded and preceded Mr. Reed in the Speaker's chair. They were wholly unlike in temperament, except that both were structurally and inherently honest. Reed was a typical down-East Yankee, with no more emotion on the surface than is to be found in a wooden Indian. Crisp was of English birth, but had been reared in the South by parents that were sympathetic and sentimental, both being actors of the old school.

Charles himself adopted a stage career early in life, but abandoned it for the law. Like Reed he got nothing out of public life, and when he died he lived in a modest home in Americus, Georgia. I have read somewhere that it was mortgaged and had to be sold, but I doubt this, as his son was elected to fill out his unexpired term, and is and was then a successful lawyer. He had sense enough to keep out of politics after the expiration of his brief tenure by virtue of a special election until he accumulated a competence.

David B. Henderson, who came before Cannon, also quit Congress, and removed, like Carlisle and Reed, to New York, his sole and only object being the rehabilitation of his fortunes; but his health failed and he went back to Iowa to die.

When one considers that all these men could have earned in private life many times the amount drawn from the government, and when it is further considered that there is always an alert lobby at the capitol ready to adopt the weaknesses and fatten them with pelf, the foregoing record is one which every American citizen has reason to be proud. The Speaker of the British House of Commons receives $25,000 a year and a house to live in; moreover, when he lays down his gavel, he is elevated to the peerage and receives a pension. His reward, compared with the reward of a Crisp or a Carlisle or a Thomas Brackett Reed, is indeed great. It is not a pleasant thing to contemplate the man of 60, after a generation spent doing his country, going daily to business, even in search for a munificent wage.

When the Lid Was Really Off in Old New York

NEW YORK.—"Some of the talk about gambling and crime in New York," said a retired police official, "must seem strange to people who know what the conditions were twenty-five years ago or so. I venture to say that the average citizen today who should be asked where he could find a game of faro or even a public game of poker would be unable to tell. But the average citizen of twenty-five years ago would have had little difficulty in naming a dozen or more such places. Some of them were as well known as the hotels of the city and were run almost as openly."

"There were far games in Ann street and Barclay street that were known to everybody in the vicinity, and of the night games there was a list as long as your arm. Some of the prominent residents of the city made no secret of their frequent attendance at some of the games that were played not only in John Morrissey's place but in Petrie's in Lispenard street, next door to Ireland's Star, which was a noted chop house, and in John McCormick's at 318 Broadway, and in Norton & Murray's in Eighth street just east of Broadway."

"I reckon there were more stories told about Petrie's than any of the other places, for that was a favorite resort of the professionals when they went for a game outside their own houses. You know one of the weaknesses of gamblers is their fondness for playing against some other gambler's bank."

"Two of these stories I remember in particular. Petrie was a trickster and the others all knew it, yet for some reason he did not lose his popularity. He played cribbage one night with a state senator who had the reputation of being the best crib player in the city, but he beat him out of considerable money by holding out two treys and two deuces from the deck. Naturally with that advantage he won handsily."

"At another time Petrie was personally dealing faro for a lot of professionals and tricked them all by leaving a single card, the dead one at the end of the deal, in the box when he turned it over. It was apparently a mistake and he seemed unconscious of having made it when he shuffled the other fifty-one cards and slipped them into the box for the next deal, but there wasn't a man around the table that hadn't seen that one card was left in the box and all of them who had kept cases knew that it was a ten spot. So they prepared to bet heavily on the run when only three cards would remain to come out."

"And I remember it, the last three were a king, a jack and the ten they know was there, so there was tremendously heavy betting on the turn coming Jack, king, or king, Jack. As the house paid 4 to 1 on the winning call and they were sure it would come one of two ways there seemed to be no doubt that Petrie would suffer."

"But Petrie dealt them out King, ten, leaving the jack at the bottom of the box and winning every bet on the board. He had slipped the fifty-one cards into the box so cleverly that one card had gone under the ten that he had left in by an apparent mistake.

WILLIAM V. ASTOR COMES IN PUBLIC EYE AND INTEREST

WILLIAM VINCENT ASTOR, only son of John Jacob Astor. He is the prospective heir to a fortune estimated at $200,000,000.

NEW YORK, May 21.—William Vincent Astor, the only son of Colonel

John Jacob Astor, is especially before the public eye just now, not only because he is the prospective heir to about $200,000,000, but because no other child in the United States inherits the surname of the first great American millionaire.

William Waldorf Astor, the possessor of the greater share of the Astor millions, is an expatriate. He will live and die in England and his children are brought up to be English.

William Vincent Astor was born November 15, 1891, and, although delicate when a boy, is in good health now and strongly resembles his father.

His reported engagement to Miss Catherine L. Hammersley, one of the wealthiest girls in the world, has been denied.

"At his gaming house it was different. I never heard any charges made against the fairness of the faro dealing there, but it was a fact that the best posted faro players fought shy of his tables, though there were plenty of men who played there. There was a keno game running every night, too, that was well patronized and I believe that it was run squarely."

"I didn't play faro or keno myself, but I did play poker quite often, and I could generally find a good game on at the Eighth street house. Murray didn't often play, but Norton frequently took a hand, and there were two or three other notable who were sometimes to be found there, though they more often played in a private room in the old Morton House at Fourteenth street and Broadway."

"Among them was an ex-police commissioner, the one who, as Harry Hill tested, was the best short and plain he knew; and a well known theatrical manager. Besides these there were several well known politicians who came in at times for a friendly game."

"It was really that, though we all played for the money as keenly as we knew how, for it was seldom anybody sat in when that crowd gathered who wasn't personally known and liked, and Norton never had a house player sit in with him when his personal friends were of the party, at least I never knew him to. "There was one night, though, that I had cause, or thought I had, to think he was playing us false, and the suspicion, when it came suddenly, as it did, was a most disagreeable shock, for as I said, I had an uncommon regard for Mike Norton as a man."

"There were five of us playing and the game was fairly stiff. We had usually played at $5 limit, before the table was set at $10 limit, but somebody had just introduced the table stake rule, and as that appealed to us all we had adopted it. Each of us bought $100 in chips at the start and inside of an hour there had been six or seven stacks more bought and the game was over $1000 on the table so that there was over $1000 on the table by the time the game got fairly exciting."

"The ex-commissioner was one, the manager another, Norton another, and I was the fourth player. The fifth was a man we all knew, though he had been in New York only three or four months. In that time he had made a reputation as a sporting man and a daring player at almost any game of chance that was played. He had not been classed as a professional, though there was a growing impression that he probably was one."

"There was nothing of special interest in the play for perhaps an hour, though it grew harder and there were several keen contests, before a curious situation arose."

"The outsider, whose name was Kelly, had won more than any other player, but we thought nothing of that, for we had seen nothing out of the way in his play. He was dealing and I had the ace. The commissioner came in on my ante and Norton trailed. The manager laid down and Kelly raised it."

"Then I looked at my cards and finding a pat flush I raised again. The commissioner dropped and Norton trailed again. Then Kelly raised and I gave it another boost. Again Norton trailed, and his persistence against two double crosses and merely saw Norton's raise. It was perplexing and I was suspicious to a degree, but I determined to see it through and I closed the pot."

"Then I stood pat, and Norton called for two cards, making his previous play still more remarkable. He did not understand it even now, for he played a good game usually."

"Kelly gave him his two and said he would take one himself. And he dealt it to himself from the bottom of the deck. I saw it and exclaimed in protest, but at the same instant Norton's fist flew to the point of Kelly's jaw and knocked him out of his chair. "I never saw anybody more thoroughly and systematically licked than Kelly was in the course of the next few minutes. I was off duty, as I said, and didn't feel called on to interfere, but after it was over and Kelly had been thrown in the street I told Norton that it was lucky for him that he had seen and exposed the trick as he did, for otherwise I would have thought he was playing in with Kelly."

"And I thought for a minute or so that Norton was going to lick me, too."

COONTZ TO HAVE CHARGE OF 1911 PRACTICE CRUISE

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Commander R. E. Coontz of the flagship Idaho is to have charge of the naval academy practice cruise of 1911, which has just been announced.

The Idaho, Indiana, and Massachusetts will be at the disposal of the midshipmen. The ships will leave Annapolis June 1, and will visit Queenstown, Ireland; Kiel, Germany; Bergen, Norway; Gibraltar, Solomon's Island, arriving at Annapolis on the return cruise about August 25, making a total distance of about 10,000 miles.

"She used to smoke plug tobacco," said the granddaughter, but of late smoked ordinary smoking tobacco. We could not get the pipe out of her mouth. She believed it prolonged life and took the place of doctors."

Mrs. Walsh's husband died about thirty years ago. They were married in Ireland. Mrs. Walsh is survived by her grand daughter and two daughters, Mrs. Anna Davis and 2102 North Tenth street and Mrs. Alice Conway of 2116 North Tenth street.

Mrs. Walsh believed tobacco smoke in a pipe had curative powers, and would go about her household duties, smoking. She smoked all day, according to her granddaughter.

Mrs. Walsh died Monday morning. Death was caused by a paralytic stroke, robbing her ten days ago. Up to that time Mrs. Walsh, who possessed remarkable strength for a woman of her age, was quite active and took daily walks about the neighborhood unassisted.

Mrs. Walsh's hair, which was snow white, was turned a vivid black by the paralytic stroke, and neighbors who visited her shortly before she died marveled at the change in color. Her granddaughter, Miss Viola Davis, declared she could see her grandmother's hair turn black, inch by inch, after the stroke.

Mrs. Walsh was known all over the North Side for her linguistic ability and her ability to translate Gaelic script and literature. She spoke Gaelic, as well as some German, and sang in these languages. She was also known as a "jigger" and, according to her granddaughter, would stand up and jig for hours, the while singing an Irish or Gaelic song.

Smoked All Day, BUT THIS WOMAN Lives to 96

ST. LOUIS.—Mrs. Mary Walsh, who, up to the day of her death, at the age of 96, smoked a pipe from morning to night, and declared as long as she had her tobacco she would have no use for doctors, was buried Wednesday. The funeral was held from her late home, 2162 North Tenth street, at 3:30 o'clock a. m., to St. Michael's Church. Burial was in St. Peter and Paul's cemetery.

Going fishing and you want your Uncle Opie to join you. Well, I'd like to, but I think I'll stay right here in this hammock and enjoy this seegar and take things comfortable for awhile. Besides, I've had all the fishing in my days that I care about. You don't get any fish in these inland lakes that amount to anything. Why, you should see some of the fish I used to land off the Florida coast and around in the gulf of Mex. They were considerable fish, and only one of them ever occasioned me any trouble. I'll tell you about that one before you start.

OLD OPIE DILLDOCK'S STORIES

(Copyright: 1911: by The Tribune Company, Chicago, Ill.)

1 If you never had a fight with a monster tarpon, you don't know what real fishing is. I was off the coast of Florida some years ago when I had my first experience with a tarpon. A less nervy and experienced sport than your Uncle Opie would have met with disaster in this case. I had just thrown my line into the blue waters when I felt a mighty tug at the hook, and into the sunlight flashed a whopper tarpon. It was a dazzling sight.

He dived to the end of the line, my reel singing and buzzing like a thing possessed. Then he shot up through the waters like a bullet, raising his long, lithe body out of the ocean, then again dropping to the depths of the gulf. I remember one time when he came up I tickled him under the chin with the tip of my fishing rod. This angered him greatly, and I know if fish could talk he would have said many, many harsh things to me.

2 So I played him for quite awhile, letting him run his course and then gently reeling him to the surface. He fought viciously for a long time, but I finally settled down to a slow grind which I knew ultimately would tire him out. A few moments later he changed his tactics and, rising to the surface, he made a bee line for the deeper waters. I gave him all the line he wanted and permitted him to drag my boat after him with great rapidity.

Occasionally he would flash out of the water. Faster and faster he dragged my little boat and almost in among a lot of boats occupied by native fishermen, who laughed and taunted me as I went flashing by. One facetious fellow told me to sprinkle a little salt on the fish's tail, saying that was the only way to capture alive a genuine full-fledged tarpon. Little did he know what fun I soon would derive from his discomfiture.

3 Reaching the last boat in the row, the tarpon seemed to change his mind about going in one direction, for he turned back and scuttled in the direction from whence he came. My boat was almost upset, so quickly did the tarpon swish it around, but I balanced it nicely as it turned, and played the big fish just to convince him I still was his master. Again the men in the boats laughed loud and long, but only for one brief moment.

In the wink of an eye the fish dived beneath one of the boats and upset it. The second boat he completely circled, the line passing around it like a lasso. The third he bumped high in the air, and it came down and spilled its two occupants into the water. The fourth and last boat he bumped with his huge snout, smashing the end to smithereens. It capsized and the two men in it were compelled to swim for their lives.

4 Around my boat the unfortunate fishermen clustered, hanging on the sides and beseeching me to save them. Some of them were floating around in the water, and others were perched on the bottoms of their overturned boats. I taunted them for a few moments and made them solemnly promise they never again would laugh at a person whom they thought to be in trouble. Exactng this promise, I started to their rescue, meanwhile playing the fish.

The fish was beginning to tire, and, realizing this, I steered him alongside of an empty boat. Then with a certain jerk of the line I landed him in the empty boat, where he floundered for awhile and finally fell back exhausted and completely at my mercy. Knowing this, I reeled the boat close up beside mine, in the interim helping the luckless fishermen to regain their boats. That fish weighed nine hundred and fifty-seven pounds on the scales.

DIAZ QUILTS 40 RESCUED
BLAZE

Entire Mexican Cabinet Intends to Resign Office at the Same Time

Blame for the Revolution Is Now Shifted to Corral and Associates

(By HARRY H. DUNN.)
MEXICO CITY, May 20.—Rumor tonight has it that President Diaz has decided to present his resignation to Congress on Wednesday and that the entire cabinet will resign at the same time. Government officials refuse to discuss the rumor.

Fernando Chavez, special messenger from General Ambrosio Figueroa, camped at Puente de Ixtla, below Cuernavaca, en route to Madero, passed through the outskirts of the city this afternoon. I met Chavez at Micoac, a suburb of this city. He was traveling disguised as a shoemaker and had come from Figueroa by train. He planned to cross the city on foot and then take another train north as far as possible toward Madero's headquarters.

Chavez admitted he carried a message that would probably result in a complete rupture between Figueroa and Madero, but said the message was verbal and he could not make it public.

He said:
"Figueroa is massing all his forces for an attack on Cuernavaca, where the garrison is now composed of 700 men, but has no field guns. I can assure you that Figueroa will not abide by the latest armistice, though he had received notice of it when I left."

BOTH ARE DISGUSTED.
"Figueroa and General Joaquin Miranda are completely disgusted with Madero's dilatory tactics and demand that Diaz step out now or fight to the end. They will not accept De la Huerta as president for one day.
I carry a verbal message from Figueroa to Madero which will result in a complete breaking off of relations between Figueroa and Madero."

Figueroa is rapidly gaining the idea that he can be president and all his men are confident they can whip Madero. The Diaz government is eliminated from their minds, as both Madero and Figueroa have shown that their forces are better and greater than the government army.
The plan to bring the federal troops into northern Mexico City has been frustrated by the capture of Manzanillo by the rebels yesterday.

"Figueroa's plans for entering Mexico City are now completed," said Chavez. "He is coming through an old pass in which is located Fort Ajusco, with another smaller force through the pass from Puebla, over which the Americans came years ago."

"Figueroa has received three rapid-fire guns from Guatemala and two from a trading steamer, which landed them on a little-frequented part of the west coast of the state of Guerrero and were brought up the Balsas river in flatboats piloted by Indians. These guns use Mauser ammunition, of which Figueroa has plenty. The arrival of these guns gives Figueroa and his men full

Thrilling Escape of the Age Inmates From San Francisco Almhouse

Bedridden and Helpless Men Carried to Safety on Burning Cots

SAN FRANCISCO, May 20.—With the bedding of their cots in flames, forty bedridden men were rescued from the second story of "The Last Chance," one of the buildings of the Almhouse, which late this afternoon was destroyed by fire. Sensational scenes were enacted as the rescuers carried the helpless men to places of safety, fighting the flames meanwhile. The rescued are all between the ages of 65 and 95 years and as the flames leaped toward them their cries for aid were pitiful.

Learning that one of the aged men had not been rescued, Miss N. Conway, a nurse, dashed blindly into the burning structure and after groping about in smoke found the half suffocated man and carried him to safety.

HELPLESS OLD MEN.
Housed in the structure were 98 men, most of them feeble and helpless. Fifty-eight were just sitting down to supper when the fire broke out in the roof and they were hastily escorted out of the building. Con Cullen, superintendent of the building;
Joseph Tomalty, a watchman; Ralph Allen, a youth; R. W. Nicholas, an engineer; C. M. Wollenberg, superintendent of the Almhouse, and Steward Nichols and Charles Donohue of the Park Hospital, who rushed to the fire in an ambulance, went to the rescue of the inmates who are bedridden and the entire forty were carried out on their cots. In some instances the bedding caught fire as the men were carried to safety.

Several of the rescued attempted to re-enter the building to obtain some treasured article that had been left in the doomed structure. This necessitated a second effort at rescue on the part of the rescuing party.

$10,000 LOSS BY FIRE.
The fire department was summoned, but the building, a two story and basement structure, was nearly consumed before the arrival of the fire-fighting apparatus. The damage is estimated at $10,000. The fire was caused either by crossed wires or a defective flue.

At the present time the City and County Hospital is being moved temporarily to the Almhouse property and the fire will delay the plans of the officials, it being necessary to house the homeless aged men in one of the buildings intended for the hospital patients.

he returned to the house, would throw his arms about my waist, crushing me my body. At one time last winter, as he was leaving home, he forced me to submit to a 'bear hug' that resulted in the fracturing of two ribs, while at another time the hugging was so severe that the circulation was stopped and my nose bled a stream."

Proescher says he made his discovery from microscopic examinations of tissues from the nervous system of dogs, cats and horses naturally infected with hydrophobia; also of rabbits inoculated with virus.
Twelve dogs infected with virus were examined and these peculiar microbes were found in each. Similar after Mrs. James told of the crime, dogs were put on the trail and in a short time he was identified and confessed the crime. The sheriff vainly tried to get the mob to give up the criminal. The man's prayer for mercy were cut short by the rope, which had been thrown over the cross on the little church.

Taste Only for Actress, Cigarettes and

NEWBURGH, N. Y., May 20.—
Henry Clay Pierce, famous as head of one of the Standard Oil subsidiary companies and many times a millionaire, told an amazing story of his son Roy's extraordinary life and views of matrimony in court here today.
Twice the young man attempted to commit suicide, his father said, when $25,000 a year was refused to his actress bride.
Roy Pierce married the beautiful
Betty Chapman, whose romantic career has thrilled Europe and America alike. Effort is now being made to have this marriage annulled.
Thereon Pierce, a brother of Roy, and a number of attorneys, including
Dr. Carlos F. MacDonald, Dr. Charles
L. Dana and Dr. William K. Draper, also testified. Although aware that her fate, as coupled with that of the millionaire's son, lay in the balance, Mrs. Pierce did not appear. Instead she contented herself with issuing a brief statement in New York.

LIKED ACTRESS TYPE.
"My son," said the father, "told me in December that he had met Mrs.
Chapman in Paris in 1908 and in this country later. He said he had married her, knowing her previous life and character. In fact, he said a woman of her type was more agreeable to him."

"The question is," said my son,
"how much will you give me to make up to her for what she is losing in marrying me?"
"Then my son told me she was receiving $25,000 from another source which she would lose if she accepted my son and she did not feel that it was well to let the money slip away from her until she was certain of as much through him."

"I told my son she was dragging him down and pointed out the necessity of his giving her up. He told me that he was satisfied. He said he wanted her and demanded that at least $25,000 a year be settled upon her as his wife."

"I refused absolutely to have anything to do with it and then he told me that she had said she could get

INDICTED ASSESSOR

'We Cannot Afford to Take Chances
Now,' Declares the District Attorney

Dalton Arraignment Monday

Assistant District Attorney W. H. L. Hynes announced at 11 o'clock last night from his home in Alameda that the arraigment of County Assessor Henry P. Dalton on the two bribery indictments pending against him would take place tomorrow (Monday) morning, at 10 o'clock in the criminal department of the Superior Court. The District Attorney was advised about an hour previous to the announcement that the transcript of the testimony given before the grand jury last Friday would be finished today, and this prompted him to determine upon Monday instead of Tuesday for the arraignment. He conveyed his decision to Hynes and Attorneys Gehring Wynan, representing Dalton, by telephone. A copy of the grand jury proceedings will be delivered to Dalton when he appears in court.

Since his indictment by the grand jury on charges of soliciting and accepting a bribe from the Spring Valley Water Company, County Assessor Henry P. Dalton has been under the constant surveillance of detectives in spite of the fact that he has given bonds to the Superior Court in the sum of $40,000 to remain within its jurisdiction pending the result of his trial. This additional precaution to insure Dalton's presence when his trial is called has been taken by District Attorney William H. Donahue and he thinks it is justified by certain developments and facts that have come to his attention during the last forty-eight hours.

Until there is something more substantial than Dalton's bonds to guarantee that the indicted official will not decamp in the face of the prosecution, the district attorney's office is determined to have detectives watch the county assessor's every movement by day and his home by night.

Yesterday two of the best secret service men that could be had were on Dalton's trail and last night two more efficient sleuths stood guard over him at his handsome residence in the exclusive Piedmont district. They did not invade the premises nor take any post that would make their presence obvious to the Dalton household or observable to the other dwellers in the neighborhood, but they were there all the time and nothing transpired on the Dalton premises that passed their observation.

To Be on Watch

Speaking of the detectives last night, an official whose name cannot be mentioned, but who is interested in the prosecution of Dalton, said:

"We know better than anybody else what sort of a case the district attorney's office has against Dalton and so far as the prosecution is concerned it is not taking any chances with Dalton.
The prosecution does not want the $40,- 000 that the indicted official's bonds represent; what it does want is that Dalton will be on hand to face his trial. As an extra precaution against the county assessor turning up among the missing when his case is called, detectives have been employed to see that he does not leave the city without saying good-bye."

When the question, "Why are detectives shadowing Dalton?" was bluntly put to District Attorney Donahue yesterday his reply was frank and terse.

"We cannot afford to take any chances with Dalton now," he said. "My office has worked up the strongest and most complete case against the county assessor that has ever come under my official observation and for this reason we cannot be too careful at the last moment.
It is true that legally Dalton is no responsible to my office, but to the superior court; however, I think it is my duty as a servant of the people and of the law I have sworn to safeguard to see that neither are cheated of their rights."

Donahue Silent

The district attorney was asked if he had received any warning or other information that Dalton intended to jump his bond, but on that subject he refused to talk. He said he could not be unfair to Dalton and therefore preferred to say nothing that might lead the public to that conclusion.

Yet, while the district attorney was parrying questions and dodging interviewers in his office on the second floor of the court house, the detectives, who were being discussed, lingered about the office of the county assessor on the floor below waiting for the latter to come out and take them on some chase about the city. Dalton remained in his office until late in the afternoon and then went home. In his wake were the sleuths, but if the indicted official knew he was being shadowed he did not manifest it in any way.

Dalton will be arraigned Monday morning at 10 o'clock in the criminal department of the superior court. Judge

UNCLE SAM LOSING MONEY BY NOT USING OIL

OVER MILLION A YEAR LOST TO GOVERNMENT

Mineralogist Sarcastic in His Remarks on Figures of the Navy Department Folks.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 20.—Charges of deliberate discrimination by the United States government against California products were made by Lewis E. Aubury, state mineralogist, at the weekly luncheon of the Commonwealth club today. He said:

"Petroleum is at the present time the cheapest of all fuels. Its cheapness and greater steaming capacity as compared with coal have been the reason why the government with the object of having the navy stationed on the Pacific coast, has been buying oil from the states of California and Texas. The savings for the government if it would use for fuel find that it would reach $1,200,000 per annum.

"Despite this great economical advantage the government continues to ship coal from the Atlantic seaboard for its use on this coast.

AUBURY IS FACETIOUS.

"Some time ago I wrote to the secretary of the navy, quoting these figures to him and asking him why California crude oil was being discriminated against. In reply he said the figures had been exaggerated and that the government could ship coal to this coast cheaper than it could the crude oil.

"In reply I told him that I was glad to have this information, as I was sure it would prove of great value to the big railroads and steamship lines operating out of California for most of them used crude oil for fuel.

"At this point Aubury was interrupted by a member of the club who wanted to know if the matter of burning oil on the battleships had not been threshed out with the navy department by the California congressmen. He said he had found out that the saving in oil would be much less than had been asserted. In reply Aubury said:

OTHER DISCRIMINATION.

"The saving would be just as I have said it would. Why the navy department, in the face of this, persists in using coal, I cannot say. I can only possibly some customers who are interested in coal mines have furnished the secretary of the navy with an extra pair of glasses which he was wearing when he was making his report.

"But fuel oil is not the only product of California against which the government discriminates. The eastern building stone is used, notwithstanding it has been proven that California building stone is far superior.

"California produces not less than fifty million dollars worth of building stone annually valued at $85,000,000. This will be increased in the next two years to $100,000,000, he said.

GALLOWS WAITS ON BIRTH OF A BABY

Strange Death Sentence of a Woman Exciting Sympathy of Humane People.

SAULT STE MARIE, May 20.—From all over Canada letters of sympathy and inquiry are pouring in regarding the case of Angelina Neopolitana, who is in the lockup under sentence to be hanged as soon as her child is born.

The execution has been set for August 5. The date was determined after calculation by the jail doctor. She chopped her husband's head off with an axe on April 16, this year. If public interest in the woman spreads at the rate it has been growing, she is considered likely the Governor General at Ottawa will soon find the case one worthy of his attention.

Word has been received here that petitions for clemency are in circulation in different parts of the dominion. There is a community of opinion in this community on the subject. Most of the letters express astonishment that a woman at this day, no matter what the degree of her mental or moral degradation or guilt, should be ordered into eternity so soon after the birth of her child.

"The middle-age barbarity of judicial procedure in this case is made even more appalling," says one protestant, "by the coldblooded calculation of the officers of the law have now had to make in determining the probable advent of the unborn child."

The Neopolitana woman is a problem to the alienists who have examined her. They do not know whether to ascribe her extraordinary indifference over her fate to blunted mentality and moral perception or to what might be expected to have a terrible, shaking shock to which her mind was subjected when she slew her husband.

"I am ready to die," is the expression the woman keeps repeating to all with whom she comes in contact with. Even with the vision of the gallows growing closer, she steadfastly refuses to make any plea for clemency or to consider an inquiry as to her mental condition. She asked no favors since she was put in the cell. She reads the Bible. If the prospect is terrifying to her, of having her new born babe torn from her breast, or that she may be put to death in due form of law, she does not show it in her manner.

"I am ready to die and meet my Maker," she said today to the keeper of the jail.

LAUNDRESSES WIN IN FIGHT FOR MORE PAY

FRESNO, May 20.—The laundry workers of Fresno have won their threatened contest with their employers before it was fairly begun, and the trouble over the enforcement of the new eight-hour law for women has been settled. The laundresses have all agreed to pay the women the same wages as before.

All but one of the big establishments of this city will continue to work their men nine hours as heretofore.

DIAZ EXPECTED TO RESIGN ON MAY 24

Blame for the Revolution Placed on Corral and Associates confidence that they can take Mexico City. "Madero's laying down" just when he had won this battle, has made Figuerero angry, and I am sure he would not consider any armistice or peace agreement made by Madero to be binding."

CABAL AGAINST DIAZ.

El Patricia, an independent daily with a large circulation, gives prominence to a story tonight which throws blame for the entire revolution upon Cientificos, Creel, Limantour and others. It says they practically fomented the revolution to oust Diaz, who had been growing restless under their domination of all the valuable concessions and interests of the country.

"The Cientificos, however, built a Frankenstein they could not control, and it overthrew them in its mad career. Diaz is considered the minor tyrant, alongside the domination of those men and it is admitted that Diaz alone has made a good president except that he allowed financial sharks to prey on him and render his ideas powerless.

Limantour, in the Banco Nacional, are declared to still have their hands on the nation's treasury. A movement toward Diaz as the only man who can bring peace to this city, and if the rebels can force the Cientifico leaders to agree to this, Diaz will not be surprised to see Diaz at the head of his own troops, despite his great age, and once more the dominant ruler of the situation. The general belief here today among men of business and affairs is that Diaz will find some loophole and will not quit within the month, as he has promised to do.

HEAVY PATROL MAINTAINED.

Diaz's old trick is to play one hand off his enemies against another, and he is now doing this now by attempting to placate Madero and then use him later against Figuerero. But Figuerero now far overshadows either Madero or Reyes in public opinion and can draw the army and navy to either of these two. The Cientificos and Catholics will back Reyes with money but few men in Mexico are Catholics, and if the rebels get in here the Cientificos will not have enough to buy tortillas.

Despite the armistice, a patrol of more than 2000 men is marching round this city night and day, watching for a break from Figuerero. Other bands coming in from Puebla or Vera Cruz. Governor Dehesa of Vera Cruz is here, and is believed to have presented an ultimatum to Diaz regarding the landing of the army. He says he has come here merely to visit Diaz on the occasion of the latter's illness.

Colima, capital of the state of the same name, a city of 2000 people, was taken by the rebels last yesterday without a battle. The rebels numbered 230 and Governor De La Madrid refused the capital over to them.

Miguel Garcia Robles, the former provisional governor by the rebels, Manzanillo, the most important port on the west coast of Mexico, was also captured yesterday and turned over without a battle to a number of American women and children. A report was received from an American ship. The leaders allowed no looting in court and other civil officers, and the rebels were ordered to leave. The new government is going on the same as the old. The rebels are closing in on Puebla and the fall of the city is expected this afternoon.

All telegraph and telephone wires were put at Madero's disposal to stop the rebels' attacks on towns, but bands operating in the south, west and east pay no attention to him.

At the orders from Figuerero to close in on Mexico City.

Madero Changes Mind

(By ALFRED HENRY LEWIS.) EL PASO, Tex., May 20.—One of the impressive features in connection with insurrectionary plans and movements is the energetic way in which the Madero will resolve to do some given thing, and the equally energetic way wherein two hours later they will decide to do nothing of the sort. This four or five times over. But last night's change of mind as to his proposed visit to Mexico City. The morning and afternoon were devoted to arrangements for his descent. An invitation of Diaz himself, upon the capital.

Madero was to have started at once, and, stopping merely to make a few "reassuring" speeches, get there as early as he could. At the eleventh hour he comes out with a statement. He has changed his mind, altered his plans; he will not start for Mexico City as scheduled. Now he has retreated to El Paso, and he has no intention of leaving there. He cannot say when he will go. He hopes soon, but will not put his finger on a day.

CAUSE IS DUAL.

This shift was due to two causes; first, the implicit confidence which these people do have in Madero, and other and second, sure word of a plan on the part of the Diaz government to either kill or capture Madero the moment he came within reach.

Madero's policy of polite diplomacy—gave as his argument for the delay: "It would be indecorous for me to appear in Mexico City while Diaz remains in power." "What chance has his heart said was: "It would be death for me to appear in Mexico City while Diaz remains in power."

MADERO IS WISE.

Madero did right and wisely in thus changing his plans. Thousands will claim that Diaz might step to his present high position. Is it to be supposed that in order to retain it he would balk at the killing of one more? Who says so, or thinks so, does not know Mexico—does not know Diaz. In the death or removal of Madero the Diaz-Limantour administration believes it would pull the king pin of the revolution which would then break down. Madero never showed himself so sagacious as when he came to last night's resolution of deferring his meeting with the dangerous Diaz—doubtless dangerous now brought to final bayonet. Madero's like honor but he also likes triumph. It is perilous to make him choose between the two. He hates defeat, but most of all he hates disgrace, which in Mexican estimation is the sublimation of all defeat.

Success is its own apology; a victory does not have to be explained. Should Diaz destroy Madero, no matter how, the waves of a new revolution would roll over it and burn it as to either manner or method within a week.

MADERO SMILES.

Ex-War Secretary Reyes, homebound from France for Vera Cruz, got off the ship at Havana. By his own word he did so because of Diaz's orders, and will remain in Cuba for the time. He is out with statements intended to purr down the Madero fur. Madero reads the Reyes statements and smiles ambiguously. He cannot but confess, however, that Reyes is attempting at Havana to play a double game of wisdom which he himself evinced in not making any present visit to Mexico City. Just as there was a second Diaz order to kill or capture Madero at the earliest opportunity, so also are there hundreds waiting by Madero's orders about Vera Cruz to kill or capture Reyes the moment he sets foot on Mexican soil.

Men's lives have ever been of small account when gentlemen of ambition sit down to play for thrones. Men's lives were never of less account than here and now in Mexico, while Madero is playing for a Bismarck put it, "with cannon balls, those iron dice of destiny."

WILL FIGHT BULLS.

Tomorrow, red and bleeding, the last bull fight in Juarez will be puled off. While the bulls are being killed and the horses disemboweled, Madero will visit the insurrecto wounded in the Juarez hospitals. This is by suggestion of Viljoen, military advisor to Madero. The record of the day is born of Viljoen's native goodness of heart, plus his instinct for the popular. A wounded Mexican is commonly not much attended to, and little sympathized with. Viljoen, told Madero, it is the time to give your popularity with those poor fellows. Go and see them; shake their hands, give them a handful of dollars on account of arrears of pay. Pull a thorn from the foot of an Indian, and he will call him your friend for life. Kindness and justice to these wounded men in this, their hour of pain, will bind them to your uttermost fortunes with the loyalty of dogs.

Madero will walk down the wane, pale line of cots in the Juarez hospitals. Viljoen, as his agent of sympathy, will visit what insurrecto wounded have been admitted to the El Paso hospitals. Madero would come to see the latter himself, but to do so might prove inconvenient because of the United States warrant which awaits him, and to which he the other day adverted.

MADEROS IN PLENTY.

While Madero himself has remained in Juarez, his father, mother, sisters and others of his family have abided in El Paso. No one who ever saw the two brothers would believe that they were the same. There were many of the Madero family, I dare not say how many. So many, indeed, that now they have departed for San Antonio, the Sheldon corridors appear as empty as the desert.

REDDING KISSED BY MARY GARDNER

Composer Smacked Twice by Singer as She Arrives in San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 20.—Mary Garden kissed Joseph D. Redding twice when the singer and the librettist of "Nabuccodonosor" today arrived at Townsend streets as the special train of the concert party pulled in from Los Angeles. Miss Gardner says so, and Mr. Redding will not deny it.

That is all that is known for writing a good libretto. The original "Nabuccodonosor" of the Herbert-Redding opera had been visiting the southern California region in which the opera scenes are laid, and the two were in dinner car when Mr. Redding greeted her at the train she yielded to the sudden impulse of outdoing the Los Angeles incident, in which just one of her kisses was bestowed upon the composer.

Miss Gardner is glad to be in San Francisco. She made a rapid automobile whirl about the city as soon as her arrival. She had been transferred from the special train to the St. Francis Hotel.

"My going to Mexico City shall be for the purpose of using all my political influence to get a prompt re-establishment of peace," states Madero. "I go neither as a minister nor as an adviser. When I resign from the provisional presidency I will be nothing more than a citizen. As such I shall be free to do as I please. The version that a double regency shall be established for de la Barra and myself comes from Mexico City and has no foundation at all. Such a regime could not exist."

TELLS OF PLANT.

Babcock began the toasts by giving an account of the power house and its purpose. He then introduced D. J. Patterson, architect of the building, as the first speaker.

M. J. Miller, who designed the steam equipment of the building, was asked to be present, but his paper on "The Use of Steam Power" was read by J. F. Ferrier.

DISTRIBUTION EXPLAINED.

H. Y. Hall, also of Babcock's office, who designed the electrical features of the power house, told of the many new features of the plant.

Among those present were W. P. Eckert and Frederick Hoover of the Southern Pacific.

Though the power plant uses crude oil at present for fuel for the "Steam generators," the plant was constructed that coal could be used if occasion should arise.

Insurrectos Hold Up Train at Zacate, But Do Not Loot It

LAREDO, Tex., May 20.—Insurrectos held up a train at the station at Zacate which is located between Monterey and Matamoros, according to the stories of passengers reaching here today. They did not molest the passengers, but disarmed rurales who were aboard the train on guard duty.

Minas, in Nuevo Leon, was captured, without a battle by revolutionists on May 17. Minas is a mountain town of 900 people beyond Sabinas Hidalgo. It is not on a railroad.

SAN ANTONIO, May 20.—Senors Braniff and Obregon, who arrived here last night from El Paso and left today for Mexico City.

De La Barra States Mexico Will Soon Recover Its Energy

MEXICO CITY, May 20.—"I beg to state that I believe now that the restoration of peace is practically an accomplished fact and that the many differences presented by the complete re-organization of the Republic have been successfully overcome. The nation will recover its energies, shaken by the late distressing experiences, and will shortly regain the position it had achieved in the concert of civilized states as a church."

Continuing he said: "The patriotism of the Mexican people and the good will of their foreign friends can be relied on to this end and the latter may rest assured that the present temporary troubles over, they can continue to count on the support and protection of the government and the sympathy and friendly sentiments of all Mexicans."

Diaz May Live in Chapultepec After Retirement

CITY OF MEXICO, May 20.—It is in the beautiful Chapultepec Park, surrounding the historic castle where President Diaz makes his summer home, that he will probably live after his retirement from office. Situated six miles from the city, this inspiring spot of nature is a solace and comfort to the man of multitudinous cares and burdens. There has been hardly a day during the last several months that President Diaz has not sought refuge amid the forest of gigantic trees and profusion of flowers of Chapultepec Park.

To Jose Yves Limantour, minister of finance, is given credit for preserving and increasing the wonderful wild beauty of the park. Mr. Limantour has made a study of forestry. The historic interest of this forest retreat dates back to the time of the Montezumas. It was in this delightful spot that the emperor of the Aztecs was wont to seek rest.

Mayot's Rebels and Federals Clash in Vicinity of Packard

MEXICALI, Mex., May 20.—A skirmish between Colonel Mayot's force of Mexican rebel garrison, under Francisco Quijada occurred today near Packard, four miles of here on the Inter-California railroad. No lives were lost. Further fighting is imminent.

WEDS DESPITE ROBBERY.

Manuel J. Cabral, the young Niles rancher, who was held up and robbed of $400 last Tuesday night, near his home, was married yesterday to Miss Lucy Silva. The money that had been robbed of, represented savings that he meant to use toward the furnishing of a home for his bride. He was not daunted by the loss.

NEW S. P. PLANT IS BANQUET HALL

Architects Sit Down to Feast in Powerhouse for Electric Lines in Oakland.

The opening of the Southern Pacific power house, which is to supply power for the local lines of the railroad company on this side of the bay, was celebrated on Friday night by a banquet at the power house given by A. H. Babcock, electrical engineer of the Southern Pacific, in whose office the plans for the power house were drawn. The San Francisco members of the American Institute of Architects were the guests.

The meal was prepared in dining car which was run into the power house for the occasion, Babcock picking out a chef famous for his Southern dishes. More than 200 were present.

Man Richly Endows an Institution That Saved Him From the Gutter.

NEW YORK, May 20.—One year ago William L. Ralston of Pittsburgh wandered into the Rescue Mission on First street, Elizabeth, N. J., a physical wreck, and without a cent in his pockets. Today he pledged $50,000 to the mission in recognition of the successful efforts of Superintendent Howard T. Sheekler to make a man of him. He is able to make the gift through the death of his aunt, Mrs. John Ralston, who leaves him $300,000. Ralston returned to Elizabeth today from Pittsburgh, where he had been to settle the various business matters necessary before he could get the legacy. The money will be turned over to him within a month.

Eloper and Husband Reconciled, Is Claim

Mrs. Horace Wylie Is to Join Father and Children Abroad.

NEW YORK, May 20.—Mrs. Horace Wylie, wife of the Washington and New York clubman, who eloped last December with Philip Hichborn, sailed today for Europe. Mrs. Wylie was accompanied by her four young children, Andrew, Craig, Katherine and Margaret. According to information obtained today, Wylie is in Europe. It is understood that Mrs. Wylie and her husband have been reconciled and will live abroad.

Joseph Pistolesi Is Sane, Say Authorities

Was Placed in the Napa Asylum, But He Must Now Stand Trial.

SAN RAFAEL, May 20.—Joseph Pistolesi was brought back from the Napa Insane Asylum this afternoon and will stand trial on the indictment which charges him with perjury in having sworn that the girl he married last January, Edna Snowden, was of legal age. His trial was set for last Monday, but several days previous he went insane and on Monday was committed to Napa. The authorities there declared him sane. In jail here tonight he says that for a week his mind has been a blank.

Heavy Peter's Pence Ousts Ship's Purser

NEW YORK, May 20.—Peter's Pence ousted the purser from his cabin aboard the liner Venezia, when she sailed for Mediterranean ports today because the heavy steel box that Cardinal Gibbons placed in the cabin was large to be put into the ordinary safe and a new safe was installed. The Rev. J. A. Canane of Baltimore was the cardinal's messenger to the Pope. The box containing Peter's Pence measured 3 feet 7 inches in length, 2 feet 10 inches in width and about 10 inches deep. It weighed 150 pounds and as this was practically all gold, the value would be about $25,000. The contents had been seized by the Italian Ambassador at Washington and sealed. This was done to prevent the box being opened at Naples.

BAPTIST YOUNG PEOPLE OF COAST WILL MEET

The Pacific coast convention of the Baptist Young People's societies will be held in the First Baptist church, Jones street and Telegraph avenue, June 17, 1 and 2.

Among the speakers will be Professor Ira M. Price of Chicago university, the Rev. J. M. Sampey of the Southern Baptist Theological seminary, W. N. Hart, Mrs. M. S. Lamoreaux and F. A. Wells of Chicago.

TAFT AND CUMMINS RUNNING MATES, FRIENDS SAY

Proposition Is No Joke, Says One of Its Strongest Advocates.

MISSIONARIES NOW IN SOUTH FOR PRESIDENT

New York Assured for Renomination, According to the Political Talk.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Political men will be shocked—not the least of all Senator Albert B. Cummins of Iowa—to learn that the friends of President Taft are agitating to making of Senator Taft's running mate in the 1912 campaign.

"With the President's renomination assured, who do you figure on for vice-president?" was asked one of the President's friends.

"I figure on Senator Taft," was the reply. "The correspondent laughed at the idea of one of the leaders of the insurrection taking second place on the Taft ticket."

"It may not be so much of a joke," urged the Taft man seriously. "The Senator is a Republican and he would have been nominated for vice-president in 1904 if the Iowa people had agreed on him. Of course he has grown since then; but there are few men that would positively refuse the nomination for vice-president."

SENTIMENTS UNKNOWN.

Senator Cummins' sentiments on this latest development of the presidential situation are not known. Meanwhile the Taft campaign is on. In reality it was inaugurated last September when, September 15, Taft made it known that at the expiration of his term there yet remain pledges of his that have not been fulfilled and of American people would demand that he remain in office and fulfill them, the President will be at the command of the people."

At about that time it was determined by the President's friends that a straightening out of the kinks was one of the immediate necessities. The plan to secure the resignation of Secretary Ballinger was devised, but it fell through because of a bungie.

It is interesting to know that the credit for the conception of this plan is due to William Loeb, Taft may also be remarked that it is quite likely Loeb will be summoned to serve as Republican national chairman in the 1912 campaign.

MISSIONARIES IN SOUTH.

Missionaries are now in the South and favorable reports are coming in. From other sections it is said good reports are being received. The new New York delegation is now assured to Taft, it is reported.

The Taft people are not really fighting any other well defined candidacy. They do not believe La Follette can secure a considerable number of votes and the mention of the name of Hughes does not create a ripple of comment.

What the friends of the President are aiming to do now is to heal, as far as possible, the breach in the party and in every way possible the progressive wing of the party is being placated.

As to former President Roosevelt, it is positively stated that he will not attend the national convention. He is neither for nor against Taft. He has informed his friends that he desires to be let alone.

WHISKY AND CIGARETTES.

"At that time Roy was taking from thirty-five to forty drinks a day and smoking from forty to sixty cigarettes daily. In the evening after I had told him what my decision was, that there would be absolutely no concession to him, he went to his room and was found unconscious in his room as the result of an overdose of morphine."

"We sent for physicians and after a great effort on their part, his life was saved. This was about the situation until January 9 of this year. Then he renewed the subject of money."

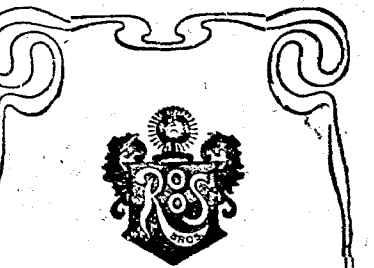

"At that time he declared to me that he must have the money and must know in two hours. I refused to give money and Roy said that he could not live without her and that she would not live with him unless he gave her money freely. He did not come down to dinner that evening and at 9 o'clock, as he had not been seen, a visit was paid to his room."

"The doors were locked. Repeated knocks failed to bring a response and the door was broken in. He was again in an unconscious condition. Physicians were called and he was taken over him the entire night before they were able to bring him out of the comatose condition he was in because of the drugs."

"In his room at that time was found a diary he had kept telling of his love and affection for Mrs. Chapman, with a record of the places they had visited and the evenings they had spent together. There were also several hypodermic syringes that my son had used to inject morphine into his arm."

After he had left the stand the judge asked Henry Clay Pierce why he had not brought the suit instead of leaving it to another, Judge Segar, as the nearest friend. Mr. Pierce said that he had decided to have nothing to do with the case more than he could help.

U. S. CAVALRY TO BE REPRESENTED

Army Officers and Mounts to Represent Country at Horse Show.

(By HOMER DAVENPORT.)
NEW YORK, May 20.—The sailing today on the Minnetonka of Major F. Foltz, 15th Cavalry; Captain George Vidmer, 11th Cavalry; Lieutenant Gordon Johnston, 7th Cavalry; Captain Guy V. Henry, 12th Cavalry; Lieutenant E. M. Graham, 10th Cavalry, and Lieutenant A. R. Chadsee, 16th Cavalry, is a matter of more than usual importance to army officers in particular and to all the horsemen of the country. These officers, who take with them twelve carefully selected thoroughbreds, will represent the United States in the Olympian Horse Show in London in June.

The team of horsemen is the first ever sent by the United States to take part in the Olympian competitions. They will be pitted against the best of England, Germany, Italy, France, Belgium, Austria, Spain, Russia and Norway, and should they win the honor will be tremendous.

No part of the army maneuvers in Texas is being more carefully followed than the work of the cavalry horses. The importance of having the very best animals available. Along the same line is the "sublimity" and "strengthening" of the government's breeding farm for Morgan horses in Vermont.

Plans are now being discussed for one of the most remarkable tests of the stamina and general qualities of the different breeds of horses which has ever been undertaken. It is no less than a race to cover more than 3000 miles from coast to coast, open to all horsemen, and to all breeds of horses. Such a race would give a decisive answer to the question as to what breed of horses will best stand the strain of service conditions in time of war for cavalry mounts, and would be of inestimable value to the government in bringing its cavalry to the highest state of efficiency so far as its mounts are concerned.

While the plans for the contest are not far enough advanced to make any announcement at present, they will be carried to completion in good time.

GIRL FIGHTS THIEF, BUT LOSES PURSE

SAN FRANCISCO, May 20.—Miss Gertrude Levy, 2333 Washington street, gave battle to a youthful thief who snatched her purse from her hand early this afternoon while she was walking along Scott street, near Washington. During the struggle the young woman's veil was torn from her face. Again and again she struck her assailant over the head with her parasol.

The thief, however, clung to the purse until he had wrested it away. Miss Levy called for help. Several pedestrians tried to overtake the thief, but failed. The purse contained $3 and some articles of little value.

FIRST INTERCOLLEGIATE BALLOON RACE PLANNED

TREATY BRANDED FRUIT OF FIFTEEN YEARS' LABOR

Stead Sees Great Things to Come for the Entire World Out of New Arbitration Document

(By WILLIAM T. STEAD.)
LONDON, May 20.—When I read the draft of the proposed general American arbitration treaty, I felt like singing "Nunc Dimittis." It is indeed a document that anyone sees within a brief term as fifteen years the realization of an ideal which when first propounded seemed so utterly beyond the bounds of practical possibilities. When in 1898 I published my pamphlet "Always arbitrate before you fight," my plea was distasteful alike to arbitrationists and militarists. It was not until the first Hague conference, nearly got involved in a duel because of my hot insistance upon my favorite specific. That specific was not arbitration in the strictly judicial sense of the term, but what before cases are sent before the tribunal both disputants pledge themselves to accept the award whatever it may be. My contention, on which I stood almost alone in those days, was that no state would ever arbitrate matters of life or death if all appeal to the sword was barred in advance as a preliminary condition of calling in the services of an arbitral tribunal; whereas if the rights of appealing to the sword was reserved, anything might be left to arbitration with tolerable certainty that in 999 cases out of 1000, the right of appeal would never be exercised.

VITAL CLAUSE.
When the first Hague conference was making I proclaimed that a clause relating to an international commission of industry which might be held to inquire into questions of fact without any preliminary pledge for which the conclusion of their report was one vital article of convention. These commissions, I pointed out, would be arbitral tribunals all but in name, and it was the vehemence of my protest against Roumania's demand to exempt the questions of honor and vital interest from the scope of these commissions which brought me to the edge of a duel with the Roumanian delegates. Roumania, however, triumphed and the honor and vital interest were inserted. I had the satisfaction during the Russo-Japanese question, of seeing my contention justified, for the suspension of the honor and vital interest clause had to be agreed upon between Russia and England before the Dogger bank dispute which threatened instant war could be referred to an international commission which settled the matter amicably.

WERE OBSTINATE.
So obstinate, however, were the hide-bound pedants of international diplomacy that at the second Hague conference that convention came up for revision and I could not induce the English and American delegates to rescind the limiting clause notwithstanding the experience of the Dogger bank incident. Hence my surprise and delight at finding in the American arbitration draft tardy but complete recognition of the principle for which I had contended almost single-handed for fifteen years. That principle is not that which is embodied in the clause sending all disputes to arbitration which now as before demands prior pledges to accept the award whatever it may be.

ASHBROOK CONFERS WITH L. D. BRANDEIS
WASHINGTON, May 20.—Representative Ashbrook, of Ohio, chairman of the house committee on the postoffice department, conferred yesterday with Louis D. Brandeis of Boston, regarding the purpose of the committee to engage him in directing the inquiry into the postoffice department. Following the conference, Brandeis left for Boston and Mr. Ashbrook stated that the negotiations had not been concluded. Whether Mr. Brandeis will undertake the inquiry will not be determined definitely for several days.

CHINESE KIDDIES GIVE RECEPTION

Entertain Superior General of Their Order as Guest of Honor.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 20.—The Chinese Catholic children of San Francisco gave an entertainment this afternoon for John J. Hughes of New York, superior general of their order, who is visiting in San Francisco.

The entertainment was held in St. Mary's hall, California street, and was in the nature of a tribute to Superior General Hughes. The audience was made up of adult Americans and Chinese, and the children were the recipients of much applause for their meritorious performance.

The program consisted of drills and the singing of church music and the national anthems. The song which made the greatest hit and received the most applause was "San Francisco."

At the conclusion of the performance, General Hughes spoke to the children, thanking them for the entertainment and expressing the wish that San Francisco would meet with great success with its exposition in 1915.

The committee in charge were Mother Saint Ida, Miss Griffith, Miss Barnett and Mrs. Herman.

WOMEN OUTLIVE MEN, IS CLAIM

Statistics Prove Fair Sex the More Likely to Attain Old Age.

NEW YORK, May 20.—Women live longer than men, according to statistics in the comparative longevity of the sexes, prepared by Dr. L. H. Stewart of Lawton, Okla., for a New York medical organization. The investigator finds that according to the census returns, there are 4000 women in this country of whom 2500 are women.

Dr. Stewart further declares that women require less oxygen than men, endure more heat, stand more rarified air, suffer less from anaesthetics and also "are more likely to survive hanging."

Men die suddenly more often than do women, and men suffer from baldness more frequently. It is also found that there are more variations from the normal among men than among women, but geniuses, including mathematical prodigies, are more frequent among men. On the other hand, idiots and cranks are less frequent among women.

EXPECT 5,000,000 BALES OF COTTON

Texas Growers Look for Big 2,000,000-Bale Increase Over 1910.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, May 20.—Last year Texas produced, in round numbers, three million bales of cotton, one-third of the entire crop of the cotton belt of the nation. This year the cotton farmers are predicting a five million bale crop in Texas. This prediction is based upon three conditions: Increased area devoted to cotton, better farming as a result of the work of the agricultural schools in the state and of the constant suggestions made by those who have produced the greatest acre results, and the most seasonable conditions for a period of ten years.

In all parts of the state large ranches have been broken into cultivated areas and devoted to cotton, and according to reports, the conditions of the crop never were more promising at a corresponding season of the year than they are today.

As a section of the state reports so much as a suggestion of the boll.

LAW TO REQUIRE WIRELESS ON SHIPS

Every Effort Will Be Made to Prevent Disasters of the Sea.

NEW YORK, May 20.—Ocean-going ships are to be required by law to carry wireless telegraph apparatus capable of transmitting and receiving messages for at least 100 miles. The new law, which goes into effect July 1, applies to any passenger-carrying ocean-going steamer carrying 50 or more persons, including passengers and crew, which calls at American ports. The United States government has given official notice to the hydrographic office of America.

A great fleet of vessels, for the most part of the tramp class, is anchored at most continually in the vicinity of the Statue of Liberty. The crowding is so great that many of the vessels have been forced to encroach upon the main chan-

MARTINEZ TO HAVE MODERN LIGHTING

Businessmen Are Working to Provide Tungsten Lamps for Residence District.

MARTINEZ, May 20.—This city is to have a complete new street lighting system within a short time, according to the report read last night at a meeting of the Business Men's association by O. K. Smith, member of a committee, recently appointed to investigate the matter. That the present system is inadequate has been asserted by engineers. Under the new system the old arc lights will make way for tungsten and incandescent lamps in the business and residence sections respectively. There are about 60 of the old type incandescents throughout the city.

The committee, which was composed of O. K. Smith, A. E. Blum, C. H. Hayden and J. H. Morrow, included in its report a statement that a municipal lighting plant at the present would not be advisable owing to the service available from the Pacific Gas & Electric Company and the Great Western Power Company.

AMERICANS FRIGHTENED BY LONDON'S HIGH PRICES

Coronation Said to Be Getting Wide Berth; Queen Mary's Dress Demands Have Effect

(By CHESTER OVERTON.)

LONDON, May 20.—London hotel-keepers and shopkeepers received a rude jolt this week when, dispatches from America stated that departing steamships were not filled as many Americans were giving the coronation a wide berth on account of extortionate prices demanded for houses and hotel apartments.

A campaign was promptly started to counteract this impression, but the fact is that the hotels by agreement have trebled their regular rates for June and refuse to reserve accommodations for visitors arriving after June 1. The reply, "booked up during coronation," has been given to all applicants at the central hotels for the last three months. Nobody believes they really were "booked up," they are merely holding out in expectation of extracting large sums from prodigal Americans who are not at the moment. Even long standing patrons have been informed they would either have to surrender their rooms for coronation week or pay double or treble rates.

NO LACK OF ROOM.

On the other hand, nobody who is planning the trip need fear for lack of accommodation. Certain West End hotels may be filled despite their high-handed methods and extravagant prices, but a few minutes further out there are hundreds of typical English private hotels where any number of visitors can find comfortable accommodations amid surroundings fully as attractive as those nearer Piccadilly.

Central London is already full, in at least one sense of the word. The streets are so crowded with traffic that it often takes a motor bus or taxi half an hour to go half a mile. This "coronation crawl" is so maddening that men in a hurry are often seen leaving their taxis in the middle of the crush and proceeding afoot. In order to arrive at their destination in time, Nassau street at the noon hour faintly describes the condition of the Strand, Piccadilly and the neighborhood of Leicester Square. Many American faces are seen among the crowd, of course, but the vast majority of strangers are colonials or country people attracted to town in the hope of absorbing some of the much advertised and much needed American dollars.

ABSENCE OF QUEEN.

The significant absence of Queen Alexandra from the Victoria memorial unveiling this week is now being publicly commented on. This, combined with the official announcement that during the month of coronation the Queen Mother will be absent from London, has already begun to intensify a shrewd suspicion that the health of Alexandra is not so satisfactory as official reports imply. This general disquietude is reflected in the increasing rush of hotel keepers, shopkeepers and speculative builders of stands to take out policies in Lloyd's insuring against postponement of the coronation through some untoward event in the royal family.

Even the majority of members of Lloyd's who pride themselves on their willingness and capacity to insure everything and anything, now refuse to accept any more postponement business at any price. A few daring spirits did write a certain number of nate. Mrs. MacDonald has had a very uphili-social fight in London, as her husband's wealth has often compelled her to be abroad for months at a time, but she has secured a strong ally in Mrs. Hilda Williams, a shining light in the Edwardian set, who astonished London the other night by giving a dinner to 120 people at Claridge's Hotel, followed by a magnificent ball.

Lady Deedes, who is making a good recovery after her operation for appendicitis, has no intention of missing the coronation and will entertain considerably later on.

The Countess of Granard is earning a great name as a hostess. She manages to mix the wrong people up in the right way. Her second large dinner party at Forbes House was an immense success, the principal feature being the appearance for the first time in the "inner smart set" of the Canadian Marchioness of Donegal, whom Lady Granard has recently taken up.

William Waldorf Astor is to issue invitations for his two state annual concerts, which are candidly admitted to be the duller entertainments of the season.

Mrs. Sears Ramsey has arrived in London with her son and daughter, Miss Elizabeth Sears and Harold Sears, on her way to Beaulieu in the new forest, which they have leased from Lord Montagu for five months.

WHAT CURES ECZEMA?

We have had so many inquiries lately regarding eczema and other skin diseases that we are glad to make our answer public. After careful investigation we have found that a simple wash of Oil of Wintergreen, as compounded in D. D. D., can be relied upon. We would not make this statement to our patrons, friends and neighbors unless we were sure of it—and although there are many so-called eczema remedies sold, we ourselves unhesitatingly recommend D. D. D. Prescription.

Because—We know that it gives instant relief to that torturing itch. Because—D. D. D. starts the cure at the foundation of the trouble. Because—It cleanses, soothes and heals the skin, clearing away pimples and blotches over night. Because—It enables Nature to repair the ravages of disease.

Because—The records of ten years of complete cures of thousands of the most serious cases show that D. D. D. is a day recognized as the absolutely reliable Eczema Cure.

Drop into our store today, just to talk over the merits of this wonderful Prescription. We will also explain the value of D. D. D. as a household remedy.

ARTICLE NO. ONE

Here Is the First of a Series of Articles Explaining a Profitable Investment Opportunity of Interest to Every Person With Money to Invest Even in Very Small Sums

THIS is the initial article of a series of interesting, announcements of vital interest to every serious-minded person seeking a POSITIVELY PROFITABLE INVESTMENT. It concerns an enterprise that, by reason of its vast benefit to the public, cannot fail to be successful; and as improved real estate is the security offered to the stockholders, there is ABSOLUTELY NO RISK attached to the investment.

The Security Building Company, an established Oakland home building corporation, has reached the point in its development where more capital will enable it to advantageously extend its field of operations, and offers its preferred stock to the public at $1 per share par value.

With every share of preferred stock, there is given a bonus of one share of common stock. Now, this stock must not be confused with stock in similar corporations, or corporations of any nature, for that matter.

To begin with, the Security Building Company is a firmly established concern, with a reputation for absolute integrity in all its transactions; and without selling a dollar's worth of its stock could go on doing business indefinitely, but with more capital broadening the field of operation the profits of the corporation will be materially increased.

The Security Building Company makes its profits by discounts, real estate commissions, insurance commissions, profits on homes sold to its clients, and 7 per cent interest on the deferred payments of its clients. It cannot be effected by panics, for the interest on the money already out would be ample to pay dividends for some time to come, and the principal coming in from its homes would be sufficient to continue building operations indefinitely.

Another point: The Security Building Company will always enjoy an independent position; it carries no dead wood in the way of unimproved real estate. Every piece of land it acquires will be immediately improved and be income bearing until the day it is finally paid for. With no bills to meet except the current expenses of the month, it will never be unable to meet its obligations, and will always have a balance sufficient to pay its dividends.

Purchasers of stock in the Security Building Company CANNOT lose on their investment, for their stock will be readily marketable, or may be turned in for real estate in the Company, or as the initial payment on a home for themselves.

Now, as to the profits: There will be a 6 1/2 per cent dividend on preferred stock in July, 1911, with the assurance of at least a 7 per cent dividend in January, 1912, and this in addition to what may be expected from the earnings of the common stock. This dividend is very conservative when the profits by similar concerns have been as great as 26 per cent, but we intend to go into this in a future article—watch for it, and in the meanwhile write on the coupon below for our interesting booklet covering the subject.

We Will Build You a House in Any Locality You Choose For a Very Small Payment Down—Balance Monthly

The Security Building Company will build you a house in any locality you choose from plans of your selection—the terms will be made to suit your income. We are now building several homes in the best sections of Oakland for clients,

OFFICERS WATCH DALTON RESIDENCE ALL NIGHT

Who Will Be the Assessor if the Office Becomes Vacant, Is Political Question of the Hour

William S. Wells presides over the criminal docket, but at present he is indisposed and Judge J. E. Prewett of Placer county is sitting for him. However, the visiting jurist is not likely to be called upon to arraign the indicted official. Both Dalton's counsel and the district attorney have practically agreed upon a local judge to handle the case and in view of the fact that Judge William H. Waste received the indictments from the grand jury it is altogether probable that he will conduct the arraignment. This proceeding will be brief. Usually it consists of the reading of the indictment or information and the entering of the plea. Sometimes the defense waives the reading and pleads. This may be done in the instance of Dalton. Both indictments will be called up and barring the granting of a delay the indicted county assessor will plead to both charges. Then the date for the trial of one of the cases will be set. The district attorney has decided to go before the jury with the charge of "asking and accepting a bribe."

More Serious Charge

This is the more serious offense charged against Dalton and conviction upon it carries a maximum penalty of fourteen years in the penitentiary. The district attorney hopes that Dalton can be brought to trial before or in July and it may be that by this time Judge Wells will be ready to take charge of the case.

There is little doubt but that Dalton will make the fight to the bitter end. He will attack the indictments and every other move that the district attorney's office makes with every legal weapon that the law allows. This will prolong the fight and may delay the actual trial. Then, in case of conviction, the county assessor no doubt will appeal from the judgment and how long the case is likely to drag after that is impossible to say. It is not likely that the district attorney's office of San Francisco to land Abraham Rufus in San Quentin.

District Attorney Donahue will personally conduct the prosecution of Dalton, assisted by Assistant District Attorney W. H. L. Hynes, and it will be the third time since he assumed office that he has participated actively in a trial. The first time John Claudine was convicted of dynamiting the property of J. H. Gallagher of San Francisco, in East Oakland, and is serving a life sentence in San Quentin. The second time Attorney John S. Delaney was convicted of looting the office of the public administrator, for which crime he is now serving a term of six years in San Quentin. At both of these trials Assistant District Attorney Hynes was associated with his chief.

Justice of the Peace Aaron Turner, sitting for Judge Mortimer Smith, dismissed the police court bribery case against Dalton yesterday morning. This case was based upon the information filed immediately after the arrest of Dalton. The county assessor and attorneys Edward E. Gehring and Burton J. Wyman waited in the hall for the trial of the case. They were the steps up to the bench and prosecuting attorney W. J. Hennessey, by direction of the district attorney, moved that the information be dismissed. Justice Turner entered an order granting the motion and this ended the proceedings.

Many Names Have Been Mentioned for the Assessorship

In the event that County Assessor Dalton is removed or retires from office, who will succeed him? That is the question which is now agitating politicians. There are many well-known residents of this county who would be pleased to receive the appointment, the authority for which resides with the board of supervisors of Alameda county.

This authority is granted by subdivision 19 of section 4041 of the political code. Among the enumeration of the powers of supervisorial boards appears the following:

"To fill by appointment all vacancies that may occur in any office filled by the appointment of the board of supervisors and elective county or township officers, except, etc."

The office of county assessor is an elective one, and, accordingly, in the event of a vacancy occurring in it, the same would have to be filled by the supervisors. A vacancy may be caused by removal, declaration to serve, conviction of a felony, or an offense involving a violation of official duties or whenever the election or the appointment has been declared void.

WILLING TO SERVE.

It is possible that one or other of these causes may lead to a vacancy in the office of the present county assessor. The supervisors, however, would not have to seek far for citizens of Alameda county who would be willing to step into the breach.

Among the aspirants for the place as well as those who are being pressed for the position by their friends may be mentioned John W. Mott of this city, George E. Gross, F. H. Clay, E. F. Garrison, Johnstone, chief deputy clerk; Clarence Morrill, postmaster of Berkeley; Walter Woolsey, a prominent real estate man of the same place and who has on several occasions been mentioned in connection with several important public positions in that city.

There are none of these who do not, it is believed, possess ability to the greater or lesser degree to perform the duties of the office and this fact would have to be taken into consideration by the supervisors. It is believed that there is none of them who has not some friends on that board.

THEY MADE CLOSE RACE.

I. R. Clay has long been a resident of Oakland and, at the same time, one of the liveliest of the younger business men of the city. He is in the insurance line, the president of a young and husky insurance organization, the leading founder of the state organization of local insurance agents, a former president of the Oakland chamber of commerce and one of the most ardent boosters of this city. At the last county election, in the fall of 1910, he came within a few hundred votes of securing the position which Dalton now holds, notwithstanding that the latter had all the advantages of an old campaigner.

There is not much chance of City Assessor Gross securing the office for a variety of reasons. Under the new charter, he is ex-officio assessor of the city of Oakland, having only recently been elected to that position as also to that of city auditor. There would be some advantages to be gained by his transferring his allegiance from the city to the county but it is understood that other city officials who were elected at the last city election, largely on the ground that it was desired to have the old municipal administration sustained, are opposed to any change now that they have been elected, and one of them is Gross himself.

JOHNSTONE HAS FOLLOWING.

Andy Johnstone has a following for the position. As is well known, he is and, for a number of years, has been, deputy county clerk of Alameda county. He has been wonderfully successful in the position, being one of the best informed men in public affairs, not alone in this county, but also throughout the state. He is really one of the most competent men who has ever filled the position of deputy county clerk. It would be difficult to replace him. He has the advantage of a strong and warm friendship on the part of several members of the Board of Supervisors.

E. F. Garrison, who is the county auditor, would not oppose appointment to the position of assessor, but his friends are of the opinion that it would be advisable for him to remain in his present position for the reason that he was elected to it only a few months ago, and thus avoid a break in the county offices which would require the induction of new men in at least two places.

NO POLITICS, SAYS MERRILL.

Postmaster Clarence Merrill of Berkeley acknowledges that his friends have suggested him as an aspirant for the position of county assessor, but declares he would not seek the place.

"It is early to consider the appointment of another assessor," said Merrill yesterday. "I understand that my friends have suggested me for the position, but I don't think I would accept the office if it were offered to me, although the salary is twice as large as that I am now receiving. I do not desire to enter politics."

Walter Woolsey of the same city, whose name has on several occasions been mentioned with offices in that section, has many friends. He would receive the vote of Supervisor Foss, who is also a resident of Berkeley, but it is not likely that he would be endorsed, at the most, by more than one member of the Board of Supervisors. Woolsey is connected with the real estate firm of Little & Woolsey of 2119 Shattuck avenue, Berkeley. This firm represents the Southern Pacific company in all land matters in Berkeley. Woolsey is the son of J. B. Woolsey of 2230 Woolsey street, a pioneer of Berkeley, who was a supervisor of Alameda county in the '60s. He is a brother of Dr. Frank Woolsey and Dr. Roy Woolsey, both prominent in Berkeley.

STRONG CANDIDATE.

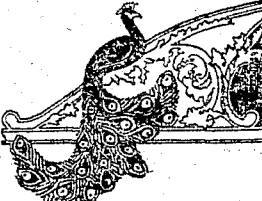

With respect to the candidacy of former Assemblyman John W. Mott, it is said that he would receive at least two and possibly four votes of the Board of Supervisors, which would insure his election. Mott has been a resident of this city almost all his life. He has served in several official positions both in the city and county governments and has discharged the duties of all of them with ability and fidelity. He has been a member of the legislature for two terms and after the death of the late County Recorder Grim, was appointed by the supervisors to the vacancy. While he was the incumbent in the office he reduced the expenses of the same without dispensing with the services of any attaché, and at the same time gave a service in the office to the people which had never been equaled before. Mott was the means, at the second last session of the legislature, of showing how Assessor Dalton was receiving more than five times as much salary from his office as was any other official of this county, and, as a consequence, the legislature reduced the same to $7000 a year.

NEW WOOL SCHEDULE WILL REDUCE-TARIFF

WASHINGTON, May 20.—The revised wool schedule will be ready for presentation to a house Democratic caucus within ten days, according to announcement made today by Chairman Underwood of the committee on ways and means. House leaders are confident it will be accepted by the caucus and put through the house by united Democratic vote.

It will not provide for free raw wool as urged by William J. Bryan. A revenue duty will be retained, that money may be raised for the needs of government, but there will be a heavy slash. Both of the duties on raw wool and on woolen manufacturers.

S. F. TAX RATE IS RAISED ONE CENT

Assessor Dodge Shows That City Has Lost by New State Law.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 20.—Assessor Dodge estimates the assessed valuation of San Francisco this year at $460,000,000. According to estimates of John Kelly, chairman of the Supervisors' finance committee, this will mean a tax rate of about $2.01 on each $100.

The assessor declines to make the general increase in the assessment asked for by the finance committee and the Supervisors.

Assessor Dodge arrives at his total of $460,000,000 by taking from his estimate of $535,000,000, filed last Monday, $75,000,000, which he is confident will not more than cover the loss of corporation taxes despite earlier estimates of $63,000,000 for this deficit.

In his report to the supervisors Dodge says:

DODGE'S FIGURES.

"It was estimated in 1909 that the city would lose only $52,000,000 of such property. This estimate was based on the assessment roll of last year.

"In the last two years the assessment of such corporate property has been increased more than $12,000,000, thus increasing our loss for the present year to more than $75,000,000.

"The assessments of banks and quasi-public corporations have been increased more than $15,000,000 in the last two years.

"It will thus be seen that the loss of revenue to the city at the present time is much larger than it would have been two years ago if the present system had been in operation."

HOW KELLY RECKONS.

Chairman Kelly of the finance committee arrives at his estimates of the probable tax rate in a simple manner.

"The last rate," he said, "was an even $2, including both State and city taxes.

"The new law is supposed to work out equitably both ways, what we lose by the reduction of the total assessment would be made up, it would seem, by adding to our former city rate the State rate. This would give us an even $2 as the city rate.

"But the various new amendments, constitutional and municipal, has so increased the city's expenses that, despite the natural growth of our property values, a little addition to the tax rate as suggested will obviously be needed. Hence the extra cent."

NAVY A WINNER.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 20.—Navy won the two mile variety race from Syracuse by four lengths. Time: Navy 11:02, Syracuse 11:18.

John J. Rogers, then owner of the Phyllis, said Callahan to Kansas City. Sam told Rogers he would be sorry.

CHAUFFEUR SUES HEINZE FOR $5000

Declares That the Millionaire Struck Him in a Dispute Over Fare.

NEW YORK, May 20.—Fritz Augustus Heinze, the millionaire copper man, is being sued for $5000 damages by Joseph B. Hubbard, a chauffeur, for alleged assault.

The trouble between the copper man and the chauffeur followed a dinner party at the Claremont one night in April, 1909. B. C. McVey of the United States Furniture Company and his wife and Heinze's wife composed the dinner party. Finishing Heinze and McVey called the taxi-cab and directed the chauffeur to drive them to the Cafe Boulevard on Second avenue.

After the two women had alighted and started into the cafe with McVey, Heinze and the chauffeur got into a heated argument over the fare. McVey said he had noticed as he got out of the cab that the meter registered $4.40. The chauffeur wanted to charge $6.70, and that caused the row. Hubbard insisted that Heinze assaulted him, but McVey declared he never saw any blows passed.

CORNELL WINS FROM YALE AND PRINCETON

PRINCETON, N. J., May 20.—The Cornell, Princeton and Yale crews finished in the order named in the triangular regatta on Carnegie lake this afternoon. The surprise of the day was the showing of the Tigers, who followed only three lengths behind Cornell and were eight lengths ahead of Yale.

The race was for one three-fourths miles and the time Cornell 9:01, Princeton 9:10, Yale 9:45.

Princeton caught the water first, but the Ithacans were quick to recover and shoot to the lead. Yale was a trailer from the beginning. Throughout the race Cornell never rowed above 34 strokes to the minute. The Tigers rowed 33 till the final sprint when they hit 35. The Yale stroke was 33 and 40.

MAN WHO DISPROVED

COOK'S CLAIM 'MARRIES

NEW YORK, May 20.—Professor Herschell Clifford Parker, adjunct professor of Columbia university, who led an expedition up Mount McKinley for the purpose of disproving Dr. Cook's claims to having ascended that peak, was married this afternoon to Miss Evelyn Naegele, daughter of Charles Frederick Naegele, the portrait painter.

Professor Parker and his bride will take a honeymoon trip to Alaska by way of Arizona, California and the Gulf of Washington.

CONDUCTORS LEARN MYSTERY HANGS ON

Tour East in Train de Luxe and Incidentally Boost California.

NEW YORK, May 20.—"To learn a little about eastern railroading, to boost California and to, whoop up some fun," eighty members of the Order of Railway Conductors from the Pacific states and a score of wives and daughters have arrived in New York on a 10,000-mile journey.

They are traveling in a Southern Pacific special de luxe train, and service cars including diner, observation and sleeping cars and are making the longest trip ever made in one train. The party left San Francisco and thus far have visited San Antonio, New Orleans, Jacksonville, Richmond, Washington, Philadelphia and New York. They will go to Buffalo and take in on the return trip the northern cities including St. Paul and Vancouver, arriving in San Francisco June 8. The train will have traveled on seventeen railroads before the trip is over.

"We think we know considerable about railroading out west," said Charley Baughman, chairman of the excursion at the Hotel Marlborough, where the conductors were quartered, "but we thought it would be a good idea to get a few pointers from other parts of the country. One thing you have got us beat on is in training passengers. They get out quicker in the east than they do in the west and that saves a lot of time. I haven't figured just why yet, whether it is because the easterners are in more of a hurry or whether the conductors have got passengers trained by 'shooing 'em,' but it's a point worth thinking over in train operation."

AGED FIRE CHIEF COMMITS SUICIDE

NEW ORLEANS, La., May 20.—Thomas O'Connor, the aged chief of the New Orleans fire department, shot and killed himself at his residence on Julia street, shortly before 5 o'clock this afternoon. The bullet entered his head just above the right temple.

Shortly after dinner the chief told Mrs. O'Connor that he would take a ride Saturday afternoon and witness the raising of the Southern League pennant at Pelican park. A few minutes before the shooting Chief O'Connor stood on his front porch gazing intently on the sidewalk. His hands were folded and he appeared distressed, although at the dinner table the chief gave no indication of being troubled or that he had any intention of ending his life. He stood on the porch for some minutes. From there he went to the dining-room, seated himself in the rocker and fired the fatal shot.

MYSTERY HANGS ON

Question of Suicide or Elopement of Wealthy Frenchman With Girl, Puzzles.

PARIS, May 20.—The French police are confident that the arrival of the Canadian Pacific steamer Manitoba, due in Quebec Monday, will solve a suicide mystery which has puzzled them mightily and that the suicide "will turn out to be an elopement in which a business man of 50 and a pretty governess of half that age are the principals." The Canadian police have been requested to meet the steamer.

About two weeks ago there was found on one of the bridges over the Seine a neatly folded overcoat, hat and cane of M. Dabbadie of Evreux. Visiting cards in the pocket identified the property. The folded overcoat eliminated the theory of robbery.

The case began to fill the newspapers when inquiry at Evreux disclosed that Dabbadie was one of the best-known and most highly respected citizens of that place.

Mystery deepened when nothing came of dragging the Seine. Business had often brought Dabbadie to Paris. On this trip he was last seen by a cousin at whose house he had been visiting. He then seemed happy and carefree. His finances were in excellent shape.

While press and public were in the depths of wonder why such a man should attempt suicide, news came of a pretty governess named Helena Benoit, who had charge of Dabbadie's children for two years and quit his employ a few weeks ago, saying she intended to go to Canada to live with her brother. It appeared Dabbadie had treated her with as much consideration as he lavished on any of his family.

On leaving Evreux the young woman gave the name of the ship on which she intended to take passage from Belfast. The police failed to find her on the ship's list. They made the rounds of hotels and learned that at two of them where Dabbadie had stopped at various times the names of the Manitoba's passengers referred to are on the registers. They found also a steamer agent here who had sold two tickets to Canada by the Canadian Pacific ship to persons giving those names. Evreux furnished the next link in the chain of circumstances in the form of a letter to a friend here from Mlle. Benoit, bearing the postmark Belfast, May 12. That was the Manitoba's sailing date from Liverpool, calling at Belfast the following day. Thus the eyes of France are on the ship now nearing Quebec, quite as intensely as two continents a year ago followed another liner over the same course when Crippen and Miss Leneve, not suspecting pursuit, were seeking to blot out their past in the new world.

GOLD DREDGERS ON WAY TO YUKON

The Last Consignment of the Machinery Sent Away From Moore & Scott Yards.

The last consignment of the two large gold dredgers which Moore & Scott have built for the Yukon Gold Dredging Company was shipped from the yards yesterday. The dredgers were taken apart to facilitate their transportation by steamer to Dawson. They are the first steel gold dredgers ever built in the United States and much interest has been evinced in mining circles in the successful outcome of the scheme to dredge the bottom of the bed of the Yukon river. Several experts from the shipyard of Oakland and San Francisco were at the United Engineering Works yesterday looking at the steamer Watson, which lost its rudder and a portion of its steering gear while coming down from Puget Sound. It is understood that the Alaska-Pacific Company will call for bids for the repair work which will be extensive.

The steamers Rodondo and Carlos are at the United Engineering Works. The former will have its boilers repaired, the latter a general overhauling.

The vessels tied up at Long wharf yesterday: The Phoenix, Captain Kerkitz, loaded cement for Eureka; the Brunswick, Captain Hamma, unloaded 250,000 feet of lumber from Fort Bragg; the Strathearn, Captain Mackey, from Chilli, unloaded 100,000 sacks of sulphur; the J. B. Stetson, Captain Johnson, from San Pedro, loaded cement for Seattle.

STOCKTON ON RECORD FOR A SANE FOURTH

STOCKTON, May 20.—After hearing the plea of the representative of the City Council today, acting as a committee of the whole, voted to pass an ordinance for a sane Fourth of July, as has been done in San Francisco, Sacramento and Oakland. The ordinance prohibits the sale of fireworks and the use of the same in Stockton at any time, but public displays of fireworks may be given with permission of the authorities.

CAMORRIST TELLS OF HIS CRIMINAL LIFE

VITERBO, May 20.—The interrogation of Amadeo was resumed at today's hearing at the trial of the Camorrist and had not been finished at noon, when the court adjourned till Tuesday. Several Italian Senators sat with the foreman and the use of the facts to his testimony of yesterday had revealed more details of his criminal life and the crimes in which he shared with Cuocolo.

WRECKERS OF BANK THREATENED WITH PROSECUTION

Depositors Name Committee

HEAVY BORROWERS SEVERELY SCORED

State Officer's Report Indicates Early Settlement, in Part, of Claims.

REDDING, May 20.—Depositors of the Bank of Shasta County held a red-hot meeting this afternoon, July 250 being present, with Mayor George H. Gronwaldt presiding. A committee of five was appointed to prosecute criminally those who are believed to be responsible for the wrecking of the institution. The committee comprises: Mayor Gronwaldt, John William Hare, Louis Moore, J. H. McIntyre and James H. Byrne. They were instructed to employ special counsel to assist District Attorney Chapman and take independent action if necessary.

An assessment of one per cent of the amount of deposits was levied to raise money to defray the expenses. The discussion showed that the depositors were not so much incensed at the bank officials as they were at the heavy borrowers, and it was asserted that former Bank Superintendent Anderson, J. H. Herry, H. H. Newell, F. W. Anderson and C. H. Cunningham should be prosecuted.

PROSECUTION THREATENED.

Charles H. Brannard, chairman of the executive committee, speaking of J. E. Terry, who owes the bank something like $105,000, and the Cash Lake Lumber Company, debtor to $127,000, said: "I do not believe that they will pay one dollar until they are brought face to face with prosecution." His statement was loudly cheered.

George M. Mitchell, special deputy for State Superintendent of Banks Williams, submitted to the depositors a statement of the condition of the bank's affairs on this date, being the first time he has taken the public into his confidence.

In general terms Mitchell says he finds the condition much more favorable than he anticipated on March 25, when he took charge.

In his report to Mayor Gronwaldt, president of the depositors' association, Mitchell condenses a statement of liabilities and assets, eliminating capital, surplus and undivided interest as liabilities, showing on March 25:

Loans and overdrafts	$759,729
Bonds, stocks, other securities	165,540
County warrants	11,915
Bank premises	30,450
Cash and items	29,091
Total	$986,091

LIABILITIES.

Individual deposits	$528,588
Demand certificates of deposit	170,428
Term certificates of deposit	11,915
State and county deposit	45,000
Drafts outstanding	21,446
Total	$777,387

This statement leaves a margin of $208,704 for the depositors, provided all the loans could be collected.

SHOWING ENCOURAGING.

"This showing is encouraging," writes Mitchell. "And besides the bank having property that is now represented by loans and which is under lease (and working) and bonded for a sum that will net the bank $200,000."

Mitchell says that at this time he cannot predict what per cent of the deposits will be paid eventually, but he is certain a substantial dividend can be paid before January 18, the last day on which claims can be made against the bank.

When the bank failed there was $28,128 in the vaults. Mitchell's cash statement, made to the depositors, follows:

Cash on hand March 27	$28,128.15
Cash items	1,057.74
Collected (this receivable)	2,469.91
Interest paid	1,728.96
Overdrafts paid	2,759.14
Profit and loss	500.00
From other banks	1,362.39
Expense	1,322.23
Total	$87,391.57

CASH PAID OUT.

Deposited in Savings Union	$33,920.49
Bank, San Francisco	45,000.00
Taxes	179.78
Offsets	4,828.72
Expense liquidated	1,362.39
Deposit Bank of Northern Cal.	1,987.75
Interest	107.13

SAVINGS BANK SOLVENT.

The condition of the First Savings Bank of Shasta County, failed with the Bank of Shasta, is very satisfactory, reports Mitchell. The savings bank has $33,920 on deposit in the Union Savings Bank, San Francisco, and enough good secured loans to make good $268,306 due its depositors and, besides, pay back to the stockholders their $100 capital stock.

Half of which is owned by the Bank of Shasta County.

Loans outstanding are being collected by the Bank of Shasta County as rapidly as possible, but so far no suits in foreclosure have been brought against the mortgagors.

RELIEF COMES TO BOILING CHICAGO

Mercury Drops 14 Degrees in Two Hours and the May Sweater Ends.

CHICAGO, May 20.—Relief came to Chicago's sweltering millions this afternoon as promised by the weather bureau, after the longest period of uninterrupted hot May weather ever experienced in the city.

From 83 degrees above at noon the mercury dropped 14 degrees within two hours. A cool breeze from the lake and rain which at times fell in a heavy downpour, were the causes.

Two deaths partly due to the heat were reported before the backbone of the torrid spell was broken.

"Chicago will enjoy a cool weather for at least four or five days," said the weather forecaster. "The change will not be radical. The weather will be comfortable, but not actually cold."

The relief from the hot wave was generally east from the Mississippi. Frosts were reported yesterday from Wyoming and Colorado.

NEW YORK, Ky.—After attending the funeral of her supposedly dead fiancé, Miss Theresa Fried has been married to Paul Maurer, who was thought to have been killed in a railway accident.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—A monument to the hitherto neglected grave of Charles L'Enfant, who served during the Revolution and planned the city of Washington, will be unveiled on Monday at Arlington cemetery.

Major L'Enfant was first commissioned captain, then major of the corps of engineers. He served upon Washington's staff and made a record for valiant and efficient service, being wounded in South Carolina.

After the war he entered into the practice of architecture and engineering, laying out the city of Buffalo, making additions to Independence hall, Philadelphia, and plans for a magnificent house and garden for Robert Morris to vie with Versailles and other French mansions.

L'Enfant secured plans of all the principal cities of Europe, studied the problem on the ground, with George Washington and devised a scheme new in city planning. Selecting prominent points on which the principal buildings and monuments were to be erected, and from the monumental structures the street were to radiate.

Paris and other cities have followed the principle established by L'Enfant. He spent the last days of his life at

MONUMENT FOR GREAT ARCHITECT

The Memory of L'Enfant to Be Honored by City He Laid Out.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—A monument to the hitherto neglected grave of Charles L'Enfant, who served during the Revolution and planned the city of Washington, will be unveiled on Monday at Arlington cemetery.

Major L'Enfant was first commissioned captain, then major of the corps of engineers. He served upon Washington's staff and made a record for valiant and efficient service, being wounded in South Carolina.

After the war he entered into the practice of architecture and engineering, laying out the city of Buffalo, making additions to Independence hall, Philadelphia, and plans for a magnificent house and garden for Robert Morris to vie with Versailles and other French mansions.

L'Enfant secured plans of all the principal cities of Europe, studied the problem on the ground, with George Washington and devised a scheme new in city planning. Selecting prominent points on which the principal buildings and monuments were to be erected, and from the monumental structures the street were to radiate.

Paris and other cities have followed the principle established by L'Enfant. He spent the last days of his life at Chatham Castle Manor, the estate of William Dudley Diggs, where he died in 1825 and was buried. His remains were removed to Arlington in April, 1895.

CHICAGO.—Mrs. James A. Sexton, a tiring president of the Dames of the Loyal Legion, defeated her daughter, Miss Laura Sexton, for the position of treasurer. Contest between mother and daughter was spirited.

WASHINGTON.—Determined to prove her aged millionaire husband insane, Mrs. Stilson Hutchins, socially prominent in New York, Washington and London, today flatly refused an offer from her stepson to increase her allowance $12,000 annually if she would withdraw the lunacy proceedings.

ST. LOUIS.—When Gertrude Slater, a pretty brunette, opened a satchel given to her by her husband, Edwin L. Slater, a former Pullman dining car conductor, and found, so she says, love letters written to him by women in various parts of the country, also photographs of several of them, she engaged M. Hartmann to bring a divorce suit for her.

Judge Withrow gave her a divorce, custody of her two children and judgment for $25 a month alimony. Slater's attorney did not put him on the witness stand.

HUBBY GAVE HER WRONG GRIP; THEY ARE DIVORCED

The trial of the suit was started in Judge Withrow's court Wednesday, and the contents of some of the letters were so warm with affection that a wag in the room suggested the windows be lowered.

Mrs. Slater said her husband gave her his satchel, containing the letters and his uniform, by mistake, thinking it one containing his laundry which he took with him.

The letters were written from Chicago, Terre Haute, Dallas and Houston, Tex., and several other cities. Several were signed "Dorothy." In one of the epistles Dorothy set forth she was nearly famished for something to eat, but would read Slater's letter, which would answer instead of food.

"I love ever worth the pain," she asks, and adds: "You seem so different from others, and have reached a depth of my character heretofore untouched. I have an aching void that I can't understand. I love you for your mother's sake."

In another letter "Dorothy" says she is glad Slater does not care as much for his other girl friends as he used to. She tells him her heart has been dead two years, and that she and her sister, Ray, talk often about his beautiful eyes.

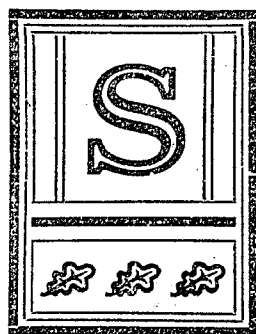

"Bess," the writer of another letter Mrs. Slater says she found in the satchel, sends her photograph, and "Elsie," who is an author, sends a copy of one of her books with her photograph pasted at the top of her letter. She closes with "I love you so," and signs herself "Slater."

BELL JANGLES as Wheeler Plucks Feathers From Wings of Eagles :

THE KNAVE

CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA Rejects Mary Austin's Play for Heron Drama :

SAN FRANCISCO, May 20.—Was Woodrow Wilson about to be "canned" as president of Princeton when he was elected Governor of New Jersey? Such a story is afoot in San Francisco, and Livingston Jenks, capitalist and Bohemian Club wit, is given as the authority for the tale. When Jenks was appealed to, he said no less an authority than Benjamin Ide Wheeler whispered the dread words in his ear.

In any event, the statement did not get abroad until Wilson had appeared at the banquet here. The Princeton man was a good deal of a disappointment to those who tried to capture him. In fact, the thing became so good a joke that everybody had to laugh.

Governor Johnson was not invited to preside, or to speak, but Theodore Bell was—and Bell isn't half as much of a college man as is Johnson. That's why the Governor didn't show up. Garret McEnerney, who was asked to preside, isn't a college man at all. There was quite a laugh when President-Governor Wilson referred to him as "my distinguished Republican progressive on the left"—McEnerney being neither Republican nor progressive.

When the guest of the evening made his now famous declaration about how men are ostracised or financially boycotted instead of being bribed—"If they find men who do not do as they want them to do in politics, why those men cannot get accommodations at the banks"—some men who recently have been in the thick of club politics said sourly:

"That's just what they've been doing to us at the Bohemian Club."

At all events, Wilson left a lot of chatter behind him; but the general impression is that he is one of the catchiest speakers who have come this way in a long time, and when he wants to "put one over" as he did the other night, he does so in a pleasant way and sugarcoats his pill.

And She Will Continue to Remain

While our ministers and amateur moralists are debating and quarreling over what they think they are going to do with Anonyma, and the world-wide question as to her position or effacement, they might take time to read old William Edward Hartpole Lecky's "History of European Morals," and if they get nothing else from his chapter on the position of women they will run across one of the noblest passages in English literature:

"Herself the supreme type of vice, she is ultimately the most efficient guardian of virtue. But for her, the unchallenged purity of countless happy homes would be polluted, and not a few who, in the pride of their untempted chastity, think of her with an indignant shudder, would have known the agony of remorse and of despair. On that one degraded and ignoble form are concentrated the passions that might have filled the world with shame. She remains, while creeds and civilizations rise and fall, the eternal priestess of humanity, blasted for the sins of the people."

Why Not Try Them Out Before Us?

We have in our midst two actresses who play "Lady Macbeth." I refer to Julia Marlowe, who has essayed the role indoors and out, and Nance O'Neil—"that Lampson girl" of the old Oakland days. You may or may not recollect that Ashton Stevens, who couldn't stand for Miss O'Neil in anything else, declared she was the greatest "Lady Macbeth" on the stage—and that was in the days when she was a sort of Trilby to the pot-bellied and bandy-legged Svengali of McKee Rankin.

Well, if our managers had any real get-up to them, why shouldn't they work up a contest between these two eminent exponents of a well-known role. Let's see them both on the stage—Greek theater preferred. If the thing is properly advertised and worked up, tickets could be sold at any old price and the "house" would overflow.

What Wheeler Was Driving At

Evidently those Elks and others who are making a stir because of President Benjamin Ide Wheeler's commencement-day address haven't seemed to get at the central meaning of what the university head was driving at. He said:

"You will be advised to join all sorts of fraternal societies, not alone for the purpose of friendly association inherent in these bodies, but with the clannish and sordid purpose of getting business or practice, of being shielded from criticism, or of being advanced politically. . . . Those men are a peril to the State who make use of the Royal Arch, the Eagles, the Elks and similar organizations in order to obtain public leadership or advancement in politics."

Well, now, if you will just recall that Governor

Hiram Johnson was sitting alongside of President Wheeler at the time, you will begin to open out the story. Can you remember who ran against Johnson for Governor? Sure enough, it was our old friend, Theodore A. Bell.

Now, do you happen to recall that Mr. Bell is what might be known as a jinerino? He is an Eagle of the loftiest pinnacle and brightest plumage, an Elk of the greatest spread of horns, and is the keystone of the Royal Arch. And you may or may not know that Hiram W. Johnson thoroughly detests Theodore A. Bell. And the Wheeler speech was right on top of that Woodrow Wilson banquet where Garret McEnerney and Black of the United Railroads had invited Bell to make an address—which, by the way, was a poor one—and had not invited the Governor to speak at all.

So, with these facts before him, it will not be hard for a blind man to see with his teeth what President Wheeler was driving at when he voiced them croel, croel words.

And Now the Palace Is the Sole Survivor

The Hotel del Monte clubhouse has reduced the price of its drinks to "fifteen cents straight." What a fall was there, my countrymen, from the old aristocracy of "two-bits!"

But the fashionable hotel near Monterey had to come to it. The fashionable hotels in Southern California that charge all sorts of prices, during the busy season, for everything but drinks, never dared to get above the "bit." Now Del Monte comes to the "long bit."

Time was, as all the fellows whose beards are gray can well remember, when San Francisco was full of fashionable drinking places here drinks cost a quarter each. One by one they have fallen by the wayside. I think the old Cliff House bar, upstairs, was the last to fall—and that was before the fire.

And now the Palace Hotel bar is the last representative of the old California aristocracy of drinking. It holds out against all seductions to lower its rates. It does not cater to the polloi. Even the St. Francis never dared do anything nobler than the "fifteen cents, straight" rate. Hold on! Perhaps the Fairmont still charges a quarter—but it has been so long since any live person ascended to the crypt-like bar that I've forgotten. But what will happen to the two-bit bars when all three big hotels go under one management, as they evidently are to go? That is one of the questions for the old fellows to ponder over. Will the two-bit bar soon become entirely extinct?

Sacrifices Men Make for Clubs

A. J. (Gus) Bowie has returned from Japan. The papers wrote of him as a capitalist of Yokohama, altogether forgetting he had been one of the foremost mining engineers of California and the West. His wife was the daughter of Friedlander, the grain king of the seventies. Bowie finds himself almost unknown, and will hurry back to the Orient.

But what I started to tell was of how men cling to clubs and how much they pay to belong to them. Bowie is a member of the Pacific-Union here and the Union League in New York. The dues each are $10 per month. Bowie has been away nine years. In that time he hasn't seen either of his clubs. His club dues, not including assessments, have amounted to $2160 in those nine years—$2160 just for nothing.

If men made as many sacrifices for the State as they make for fads like clubs, what a wonderful nation we would be.

The Revenge That Failed

The literary culturists who make of Carmel-by-the-Sea a mecca and a shrine have decided not to produce Mary Austin's "Arrow Maker" at their open air theater this year. They are not even going to produce her "Ysidro," though she offered both of these plays for their selection.

The play selected for this summer's performance is Herbert Heron's "Montezuma." This bears the same title as the grove play by the late Louis Robertson produced by the Bohemian Club at their Midsummer Jinks a few years ago. A critic tells me that though Heron's work is not nearly as poetic as Robertson's, it is a far better play for production purposes.

But the interest in the Carmel-by-the-Sea production centers chiefly on the fact that Mary Austin's "Arrow Maker" has been rejected. This play was said to have been written by Mrs. Austin to revenge herself on her former collaborator—what was his name? He was a Shakespearean interpreter from Oakland, and he went off collaborating with Geraldine Bonner, leaving Mary Austin to do her dramatizing alone. So the "Arrow Maker" was to show to the culturine colony the full measure of Mrs. Austin's revenge. But that revenge was not to be.

And speaking of outdoor plays, George Sterling has written a notable little drama for The Family's "Flight

The Electric Sign Nuisance

I see that it is a flour company that now wants to disfigure Telegraph hill with one of those spraddling electric signs. Unmindful of the fact that the beer company that made itself disgustingly conspicuous on Nob Hill lost money and business every month it maintained its disfigurement, this flour company had the folly and impudence to request that its sign be permitted on public property.

Some good women very promptly and properly protested before the Board of Supervisors. Then the flour company said it would lease some private property and erect its sign anyhow, defying everybody.

Have the advertisers of these beer and flour companies gone crazy with the heat? Don't the flour people know that those women can—and probably will—stop the sale of ten times as much flour as the out-of-place advertisement can possibly attract? The beer men found that the Nob Hill sign cost them trade. The flour men will be sure to learn the same lesson. Our hills are not to be disfigured with impunity.

Chasing Jobs

There is disaffection in the local Republican party. With the advent of the Municipal Conference of 1911 hostility to that organization arose in the local governing body, which is dominated by the Lincoln-Roosevelt League and other friends and supporters of Governor Johnson, that latter having undertaken to manipulate local as well as State political affairs. The Municipal Conference has indorsed James Rolph Jr. for mayor and committed itself to the making up of a ticket of eighteen supervisors.

It had been supposed that Governor Johnson favored the candidacy of Rolph, but some of his henchmen in the County Committee, notwithstanding that body indorsed Rolph, speak lightly of the Municipal Conference. They refer to the members of the movement for good government and the offices in irreverent phrase, even calling them "yellow-bellies."

The insurgents in the county committee are led by A. G. Boggs, vice-chairman of that body, who bears the title among his associates of "Sitting Bull." Boggs has in his band a number of political braves who are on the warpath for appointments under the State or any other administration that has patronage at its disposal. "Sitting Bull" has set an example for his warriors by being in turn a candidate for Harbor Commissioner and Chief Wharfinger and now is making a fight for Assistant Chief Wharfinger. But Boggs' field of political endeavor is neither narrow nor contracted and he is willing to do battle for a Federal job with equal valor.

The Municipal Conference, having undertaken to choose a Board of Supervisors, "Sitting Bull" and his band would like to assist them in this effort for civic improvement. But the "yellow-bellies," to date, have displayed no keen appreciation of this proposed sacrifice on the part of the local committee patriots. This has caused murmurs of dissatisfaction and threats of reprisal among the malcontents and intimations have come from some of them that they will go over to the enemy in the next national campaign if the jobs are not quickly forthcoming.

Unless they are placated the scene of "Sitting Bull" and his warriors marching upon Washington D. C., and making one desperate charge for jobs is not impossible. Although small in numbers now they may augment their ranks from the politically disappointed in the various States through which they march until they will rival Coxey's army.

In the meantime, and notwithstanding these dire and war-like threats, the fight over the harbor front patronage is undetermined and the Municipal Conference of 1911 is proceeding with an unflinching courage to the selection of eighteen supervisors for indorsement by the public at the primary next September.

Proposed New Fair Grounds

One of the latest suggestions in connection with the selection of a site for the Panama-Pacific Exposition is that the administration buildings be situated near Van Ness avenue and Market street, where, it is said, five blocks are available for this purpose. These administration buildings could be made permanent structures and a fine arts building, a coliseum or auditorium, and other buildings intended for purposes of a lasting character, could be constructed.

From this point Van Ness avenue, under the proposed plan, could be made a beautiful boulevard by which the main suite of the big fair, at Harbor View, might be approached. There are 320 acres at Harbor View said to be available for exposition purposes. An additional 100 acres would, according to those interested, furnish all the space necessary to meet any possible requirement. The Federal Government has 200 acres at the Presidio that are regarded as ideal for this purpose and an effort is being made to get the consent of the War Department for the use of 100 of these acres. The Government is using less than twenty acres of this 200 for the purposes of a drill ground.

The recently retired Secretary of War, J. M. Dickinson, was disinclined to permit the use of these acres for fair purposes and referred the exposition directors to Congress for some action by the latter body. It is believed that Henry L. Stimson, the new Secretary of War, may be in a more friendly mood and will make the desired concession.

In the meantime the committee on exposition site is hard at work investigating the advantages and disadvantages of the various sites under consideration. It has topographical maps in plaster, and made to scale, of each proposed site, as well as models of the suggested buildings, also made to scale, and with these the members are endeavoring to arrive at a conclusion as to the relative desirability of the sites.

Why Johnson Was Absent

The failure of Governor Johnson to attend the banquet given Woodrow Wilson by the University clubs has been much discussed both in college and political circles. Wilson being Governor of New Jersey and an university man, and Johnson, Governor of California, and also at one time a student of the University of California, it had been thought both meet and proper that the latter should participate in the honors tendered the visiting candidate for the Democratic nomination for President of the United States.

Etiquette would seem to also demand the attendance of the resident Governor. But Johnson apparently viewed it otherwise and was called south on special business, preventing his participating in the courtesies extended Governor Wilson.

One interpretation of Governor Johnson's attitude in this relation is that he wishes to hold himself free from any entangling alliances so that should La Follette fail to secure the Presidential nomination, he, Johnson, may be at liberty to vote for any Democrat whom he believes can defeat Taft.

Sullivan's Big Talk

Joe Sullivan, politician and Police Commissioner, has long been regarded as a sphinx for silence, and heretofore all attempts to get him to talk on affairs of an official nature have proven ineffective. But during the past week Joe has suddenly, and to the great surprise of his associates, passed from the mute to the talkative class and also shown himself to be a ready letter writer. His declaration by voice and pen that he is the double of Leffingwell, the Mayor's secretary, is in contradiction of his reputation for a discreet conservation of speech that he has long borne.

To a reporter who was seeking an interview on one occasion Sullivan refused to respond. When the newspaper man urged that he made his living by interviewing people, Joe replied, "And I earn my $100 a month by keeping my mouth shut." Hence the astonishment at his sudden loquaciousness.

At one time Sullivan was a Democrat campaigning under the banner of Gavin McNab. He was of that rare type of Bourbon classed as modest and difficult to find. As a reward for his services in a campaign he was offered a clerkship. Joe expressed the belief that he was better qualified for a janitorship. This he was given and for a term did faithful service with broom and duster at the then city hall. But now he is a Police Commissioner and also has developed a fund of speech that comes as an approximate shock to his friends of many years.

Bows to Boss Kelly

The scramble for appointments under the Harbor Commission at the port of San Francisco has brought within the spotlight of politics many things in turn. One of these is that George Hill of the new commission is on the staff of Mike Kelly, the Oakland boss. Following the adjournment of a recent meeting of the Harbor Board, Kelly was heard, not overheard, for the transbay boss was speaking in loud and positive tones, giving orders to Hill that "all my men must be retained anyway."

Kelly has about a dozen men on the harbor front of this city, and his instructions that they be retained were given with the air of proprietorship and command affected by some political bosses. Commissioner Hill's attitude was that of submission and obedience and the order probably will be obeyed.

Commissioner Hill has publicly announced that he is not yet ready to lay down his hand in relation to his demands for Alameda, but when he does his patronage claims for that county will be made known. This show-down, when it comes, will probably be of interest not only to Alameda, but to other parts of the State, as it will disclose exactly what Kelly's orders to Hill are. Not unlikely many names will be added to those already on Boss Kelly's roll of patronage on the water front of this city.

APPEAL IS MADE FOR ORPHANAGE

School for Colored Girls Needs $12,000 for Maintenance and Improvements.

An appeal has been sent out by the management of the National Industrial and Orphans' School of Beulah Heights for a donation of $12,000, to be used in the maintenance of the establishment, which has as its object the training of colored girls and other unfortunate in the domestic sciences. A tag day has been arranged for May 26, at which time those who have associated their interests with that of the school will endeavor to raise the greater part of that sum.

The school was founded September 1, 1910, by Dr. and Mrs. C. H. Duval, who contributed largely to its equipment. It is their desire to more thoroughly equip the several departments and purchase a horse and wagon to be used in the delivery of products.

Rides Without a Saddle, but Clever Horsewoman Easily Wins First Prize

ANNETTE DEANER, who was awarded the first prize at the Flower Show.

Miss Annette Deaner of 824, Thirtieth street, this city, who was awarded first prize at the Berkeley flower festival last week for the best saddle horse, is known as one of the finest horseback riders in this vicinity. Her horse, which she rode in the flower festival parade, is a handsome Kentucky thoroughbred, and brought forth expressions of admiration all along the line of march.

Miss Deaner was a striking figure in a handsome black mink suit, black velvet cap and black gaiters. She is the only woman rider about the bay who rides without a saddle, and this, together with the fact that she rode sideways and with surcingle and blanket only, gave her a distinction which no other rider in the parade had.

Her horse is a dark bay and he was gaily decked for the parade in a wreath of red carnations and ferns with a large red ribbon bow on his bridle. Miss Deaner has never had a lesson in horseback riding in her life, but has ridden since she was a child. At Sacramento three years ago, Miss Deaner won first prize at the state fair for the best horsemanship and finest horse and equipment. She has also carried off first prize in two Yolo county fairs.

RETIRED MERCHANT DIES AT OLD AGE

Henry J. Fuchs, an aged Mason, died at his home, 6405 Regent street, Oakland, yesterday afternoon. He was a former merchant of Grass Valley, having come from that city three years ago. Fuchs was a native of Arzberg, Germany, 73 years of age. He came to California in the early '50s. He is survived by six children, Carl Fuchs, a graduate of the university, Christopher

B., a university student, and George H. Herrmann, Henrietta and Katherine Fuchs. Valley remains will be shipped to Grass Valley for interment in the family plot. The services will be held tomorrow morning, the pallbearers being John Thomas, Nat Argall, Bennett Ople and Paul Sears of Grass Valley.

STEAL GOLD WATCH. SAN FRANCISCO, May 20.—Sneak-thieves broke into the room of Peter Peterson, 574 Third street, yesterday and stole a gold watch valued at $16.

AWAKE OFFICIAL FOR MARRIAGE LICENSE

MARTINEZ, May 20.—County Clerk J. H. Wells was aroused from his bed late last night and asked by Harmon Finch of Selby to grant him a license to marry Miss Mabel Fowler of Fresno. The bride-to-be had come from her Sonoma county home expressly for the ceremony and the late hour did not daunt the pair. They were married at the home of Finch in Selby, where he is employed in the smelter.

STRAIN OF LIVING INDUCES LUNACY

Crowded Condition of Cities With Attendant Vices and Misery Promote Lunacy.

NEW YORK, May 20.—The stress and strain of every-day living, alcohol and its various effects upon the system, are the reasons given by Albert Ferris, president of the New York State commission of lunacy for 28.06 per cent of the male cases of insanity and for 50 per cent of the female cases. Excessive noise, poor ventilation and constant artificial light are given as further causes leading to temptation and dissipation and ultimate insanity, according to a statement made by Ferris today.

"The probability is that cases of insanity will be attributed to stress and strain will increase in number as the difficulty of transportation, overcrowding and exhaustion, nervous anxiety as regards personal safety owing to the crowded conditions in streets and cities, the temptation to gamble with consequent unrest, anxiety and disappointment.

"The only remedy is to prevent the production of insanity by teaching the hygienic life and the avoidance of special causes we know to induce mental impairment. This education must begin early in life. The proper raising of children is of first importance. Also it is important that the State take up the teaching of prevention of insanity, so they may save lives that may be jeopardized.

HEREDITARY INSANITY GROWS.

"The tendency to hereditary insanity is very strong. In many families insanity appears in each succeeding generation. People with insane inheritance should never be allowed to marry. Unless the States are willing to take advanced ground and present the propagation of the unit, it will be necessary to hold in custody patients who are morally insane who otherwise might be at large.

"Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin and New Jersey have laws for the sterilization of imbeciles and certain irrevocable insane of both sexes.

"New York State hopes to join the Government in a strong policy of exclusion of the mentally defective which may result in amendment of the present immigration law. It is very advisable that other states, especially states like Minnesota, Washington and those on the border should follow the example of New York in this regard. I believe that the State should always be reported after having served a sentence for insane criminals."

EMIL JOULLIN TO PLAY AT BENEFIT FOR GUILD

SAN FRANCISCO, May 20.—The Ladies' Auxiliary Guild of the St. Thomas Aquinas Church will give a benefit concert Tuesday evening under the direction of Emil Joullin, son of the painter, Amadeus Joullin. Emil Joullin is winning distinction as a violinist, and at this concert he and Raymond Mosher will play Grieg's Sonata in F for violin and piano. The violinist will also be heard in other numbers. Others to assist are Miss Grace Fazio, soprano; G. C. Buelner, baritone; Mrs. M. Fitzsimmons, harp, and the Misses Edith M. Jones and Marie de Forest, accompanists.

Oregon City Gives Warm Welcome to Boosters From Bay Metropolis.

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore. (On board the Merchants' Association train at Klamath Falls), May 20.—To San Francisco's enterprising wholesale merchants belongs the distinction of having brought the largest and the most elegantly appointed special train into this wonderful little city whose population has been doubled in less than two years. The people turned out on mass to greet the special. Business in the city was suspended for an hour, all the business men gathering at the new $50,000 Southern Pacific depot to participate in the welcome. The Klamath Falls band, one of the boasts of the city, was on hand.

A score of automobiles were ready to take the trade advocates around the city. They jumped into automobiles and were driven up town, where for five hours they did serious missionary work among the merchants, all of whom patronize San Francisco firms in preference to the Portland wholesale houses. The San Franciscoans never for a moment forgot to boost the fair. Before 8 o'clock every merchant in town had been interviewed by the wholesalers.

RECLAMATION'S WONDERS TOLD.

Tonight the business men attended the Iris theater, where a reception was held with Klamath businessmen as the hosts. The treat of the evening was an illustrated lecture on the local government reclamation work which will transform thousands of acres of semi-arid agricultural lands into rich farms. The committee of local businessmen have so arranged their program that there will not be an idle minute during the stay of the party here. Tomorrow will be devoted to a sight-seeing trip which includes a steamer ride across Klamath Lake, arriving at Eagle Ridge Tavern at the northern end of the lake. The wholesalers will be guests at a hunters' luncheon.

The steamer will visit Rocky Point and Pelican Bay near the late E. H. Harris, man's loge. The visitors will inspect the government reclamation work, which is nearing completion.

VISITORS MUCH FETED.

In the evening the San Francisco merchants will call on the local merchants around the special train. The local committee, headed by Mayor F. J. McLaughlin, will take care of the visitors during their stay here. The men who are assisting Mayor Sanderson are: Judge W. S. Worden, E. R. Reames, president of the Chamber of Commerce, and J. Scott Taylor and A. C. Wrenn, editors of the Klamath Falls paper.

Klamath Falls is one of the most progressive cities in southern Oregon. Its furnishings are new and its streets compare favorably with those of large cities. The Klamath Development company is building a large hotel in the center of the city. Not long ago, the city voters decided to build a municipal light and power plant and they are now seeking to take other steps in the same direction. A short distance out of the city, the government is rushing work on its $50,000,000 irrigation project to which all Klamathans point with great pride.

How to Beautify Plainest Complexions

(Toilettes.)

"The growing popularity of face lotions is in keeping with our natural progress," says a well-known beauty writer, "and before long they will have supplanted powders and cosmetics. A very fine line can be prepared at little cost by dissolving a small original package of mayatone in eight ounces of witch-hazel. This, applied to the skin daily, frees it of pimples, blackheads or other blemishes, and will give to the muddy or lifeless complexion a rich embellishment and natural health-tint impossible with powder or rouge.

"This mayatone lotion is greaseless, and prevents the growth of hairs. Many women use it to prevent tan and it is employed to protect the skin from harsh winds and changing weather."

A BURGLAR'S AWFUL DEED may not paralyze a home so completely as a mother's long illness. But Dr. King's New Life Pills are a splendid remedy for women. They gave me wonderful relief in constipation and female troubles, writes Mrs. M. C. Dunlap, Leadville, Tenn. If ailing, try them. 25c at Osgood Bros.

COLLEGE ATHLETES TO BE INSURED

The University of Washington Adopts Unique System.

SEATTLE, Wash., May 20.—The associated students of the University of Washington, under whose direction all athletic events at the university are held, completed arrangements yesterday with a local insurance broker for the issuance of insurance policies to indemnify the association against loss through the injury of any members of the various athletic squads.

Treatment of injured football and baseball players and track men has put the university association to much expense. It is to overcome this and the loss caused by the falling off in attendance when some star is out of the game because of the injuries that the insurance plan was adopted.

FORMER INSURRECTOR KILLS SELF IN HOTEL

EL PASO, Tex., May 20.—The body of Charles Cook was found in a local rooming house with a bullet hole in the forehead. Cook is believed to have been a railroad man from Douglas, Ariz., and was at one time a member of the insurrectionary army in Mexico. The coroner's jury returned a verdict of suicide.

ASK WOMEN TO AID OPIUM FIGHT

China Enlisting World Wide Support in Crusade Against the Drug Habit.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., May 20.—Appeals for concentrated action from the women of the United States to suppress illicit or open traffic in opium in China were contained in letters read today before the Women's Board of Missions of the Cumberland Presbyterian General Assembly from "Gani Sing Quah, superintendent of the Canton Mission of the Cumberland church."

"It is to the everlasting shame of Great Britain," declares the Chinese missionary, "that this traffic has not now been thoroughly suppressed."

Reports on the use of the moving pictures in the Chinese missions to exemplify the life and teachings of Jesus Christ formed an interesting feature of the women's session.

reinforced soon by the arrival here of W. J. Burns, the detective whose operations resulted in the arrest of the men and the defense says that Clarence Darrow, the Chicago attorney, will reach this city in a few days to assume the duties of leading counsel for the accused brothers.

Meanwhile the McNamaras and Orlie E. McManigal, whose alleged confession resulted in the arrest of the other two, are conforming well to the regulations of the county jail where they are held. They are visited only by their attorney and a few labor union leaders, but sympathizers who are not permitted to see them frequently call at the jail and leave food and fruits. McManigal receives a daily visit from detectives who say that he often recalls something connected with the dynamiting charges and thus gives them clues for the procuring of further evidence.

No legal steps are expected to be taken until June 1, the time for the McNamaras to enter their pleas. The prosecution believes the defense will attempt to have the indictments quashed at the time if the attorneys for the men intend to take the step at all.

Pension for Aged and Infirm Workers.

We pension soldiers who are maimed or disabled in the service of their country. Aged and indigent veterans are provided with homes where they can pass the remainder of their days in comfort. By common consent all the civilized nations are agreed that is a just and wise policy.

Gradually the pension system is being extended to policemen and school teachers who pass long periods in the public service under conditions which forbid the acquisition of fortunes or even a competence adequate to their needs when old age and infirmity incapacitates them from further usefulness in the callings in which they have passed the flower of their days. This again appeals to the wisdom and humanity of the age.

But the worker in private employment is yet unprovided for. Out of his wages he has reared a family, perhaps, paid his rent and doctor bills, and taxes on his scanty possessions, but when he is old and worn out there is no provision for his declining years unless he becomes a burden on his children. There is the poor house and the pauper relief fund to be sure, but they are not the sort of provision due to a self-respecting man who has spent his life in useful toil.

The workman is more valuable to society than the soldier. On his shoulders he bears the weight of industrial development. The genius of the inventor cannot do without him nor can all the subtlety of finance devise a substitute for the man who delves in the soil, carries the hod, lays the brick, shovels the coal and directs the pulsating energies of the engine. The man in overalls is the supreme lord of the whole industrial system, the mainspring of commercial activity and the essential factor in producing wealth.

In agriculture it is the man behind the plow that is indispensable in making the soil yield up sustenance for the race. We rave over the heroism of the man behind the gun, but there would be no gun and no man behind it but for the man behind the plow who wrests in humble toil from the earth the food all must eat.

Nobody has yet suggested that the man who wears himself out in producing food for mankind should be pensioned or provided with a comfortable home in his old age.

In mechanics it is the man with the hammer who drives the machine and fashions the articles which give mankind joy and comfort. He builds the plow and the gun, rears the dwellings and puts into form and place all the things which go to make up civilization. He is at once the conservator of human progress and the articulate expression of its skill and energy. When the chill of years weakens his frame and saps the strength in his 'thews, the government does not grant him an annuity in recognition of his useful service nor build him a home in which he shall dwell as an honored guest. If he has not saved enough from his earnings to keep him in his declining years he becomes a burden on his family—that is, unless he will take the livery of a pauper and go to the poor house. It were different had he followed the drum and let others perform the tasks which must be performed if nations would prosper and society live.

Happily modern thought is beginning to realize the injustice that is being done the worker. In Germany and England philanthropic statesmanship is devising methods by which penury and privation may be averted from the toiling masses when their days of usefulness are ended. Already in Germany a method has been devised to provide old age and service pensions for aged and disabled work people. A pension fund is made up from three sources—the employers contribute a part, the workers another part and the government the remainder. From this fund weekly stipends are paid to incapacitated workers who are within the scope of its diffusion. The scheme is by no means perfect yet, but it is a good beginning and will doubtless develop in time into a full protection against the most atrocious fault of our modern industrial system—the abandonment to misery and starvation the helpless poor condemned to toil all their days for a recompense too scanty to afford a margin for saving.

And who shall say it is not just? Is it not humane? Does not wisdom dictate that the state should provide against involuntary indigence when useful service is no longer possible? Is the fetish of military prowess to forever cloud the human understanding and prevent justice being done to the men and women who feed and clothe the world? The man with the gun has his use, but the men with the hoe and hammer have still nobler uses. They should be protected from want in their old age, and the protection should not come in the form of charity. Society should not spit on the bread it hands them nor put the iron of degradation in their souls by classing them as paupers when it offers relief on such shameful terms that many prefer to steal or beg to taking it.

One of the problems David Lloyd George, Chancellor of the British Exchequer, is working out is a plan to decrease pauperism in England by removing its most prolific cause. He is trying to devise a system of old age pensions that will relieve aged and incapacitated workers and at the same time lift a crushing burden from the shoulders who have to support old and enfeebled relatives while trying to clothe and feed their wives and children. Mr. George has found that the old grandfather or grandmother, or both, is the old man of the sea on the shoulders of the British workman. The more helpless the infirm relative is the greater the burden he inflicts upon those who have to bear him. His extremity brings a painful conflict on his children, who have nothing to spare and are torn by an affection divided between parents and children. What is given to the aged parents is taken from children of their own.

Mr. George says this is not a healthy social condition. He says it is a condition that can be vastly improved if not relieved entirely. In his opinion the condition tends to deteriorate the race physically and morally and to loosen those family ties which form the basis of our society. He believes that the safety of the nation depends upon protecting the home and preserving the family affections, and in his opinion the best way to do this is to protect the aged poor from want and the degrading category of paupers.

That is Socialism, some say. It is no more Socialism than paying pensions to soldiers and policemen. But shall nations be deterred from doing what is just, wise and humane because somebody says it is socialism? If it be the right thing, it may be called by any name. The Sermon on the Mount would be regarded as rank socialism by many if it were not the utterance of Jesus. It was called treason and blasphemy at the time it was delivered. There is now the same shying at words by people who are seeking excuse for failing in their duty toward their fellow men. Christian civilization has survived the taunt of treason and blasphemy hurled at the Preacher of Galilee, and the policy of protecting the worthy poor against want in their old age will survive despite the charge that it is socialistic. It is Christian, it is humane, it is necessary, and that is the only test that it should be judged by.

IT'S UP TO FATHER!

—LOS ANGELES TIMES

Again the Murderous Joy Rider.

In San Francisco the other night some joy riders ran an automobile at breakneck speed into a party of young people. A girl was killed and a young woman badly injured. The motor car sped on and the police have ever since been trying to find out who were riding in it. Had the persons in the car possessed ordinary humane instincts they would have stopped to ascertain what injuries had been inflicted and tried to be of service to the injured. The fact that they ran away and have since concealed their identity is an evidence that they were violating the law and were brutally indifferent to the consequences of their criminal recklessness.

Murders of this character are becoming all too common. When the culprits are apprehended the usual defense is perjury. Drunken hoodlums run over and kill people and then lie out of it. It seems to be the fashion for judges to take their word as conclusive against the evidence of unbiased witnesses and the people they outrage and injure. People who suffer from the mad antics of drink-crazed joy riders seem to have no redress, the official disposition seeming to be to hush the matter and let the malefactors go unpunished.

If matters go on as they have been going in the past people will begin to take the law into their own hands and obtain by violence the redress denied them by the courts. This would be bad, but desperate diseases call for desperate remedies. Nor would it do any harm if a few of the ruffians who drive cars at furious speed through the thoroughfares at night were summarily killed.

Not long ago an Italian in New York shot to death the driver of a brewery wagon who had run over and killed his child. The driver was employed by a rich brewer who is a power in local politics. A policeman called to the scene heard the driver's statement and told him to go about his business as he was "all right." Then the maddened parent shot the driver to death. Had the policeman done his duty the murder would not have occurred. Because the representative of the law failed in his duty, the grief-stricken father took the law into his own hands.

It need occasion no surprise if incidents of like character do not occur in this locality. The immunity given criminal joy riders is breeding a sentiment of infirmity in the public mind that may have tragic results. But it is possible that a little shooting will clarify the situation and contribute not only a better observance of the law, but to a better administration of its provisions.

Some antiquarian has discovered that the harem skirt was brought into fashion in Rome four hundred years ago by Lucrezia Borgia—daughter of Pope Alexander VI. The pontiff put the offending garment under ban and so did two of his successors. But without avail although several noble ladies were publicly flogged for appearing in the streets wearing harem skirts. In one instance a Roman beauty was stripped of her garments in the street and sent home naked. Still the fashion raged. When the authorities ceased to persecute the harem skirt the ladies eschewed for something new but equally ridiculous.

Colonel William Kent's fences still stand on government land in mute testimony that the persons who had his cattle company indicted are liars and conspirators against honest men and good government.

It seems that no city is in the fashion nowadays unless it has a bribery scandal. Perhaps that is why they welcomed Loumer home with a brass band.

Twenty Years Ago Today

Hidden treasures are numerous nowadays and not much excitement is manifested, so when some friends of the late Gustave Dressler discovered $1185 in $5, $10 and $20 gold pieces hidden away in the mattress of his bed at his home in East Oakland, they took it in a matter of fact way. The money was taken from its hiding place on the day when Dressler was taken sick and today it was turned over to the public administrator.

C. M. Lemery of East Oakland is the inventor of a steam wagon to be built of aluminum and intended to be used in Africa.

Frank Waller, William Boody and John M. Calhoun rode to San Jose yesterday on their bicycles, covering the 100 miles round trip in 11 hours.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Davitt of Ireland are on their way to Oakland via Montreal. Mr. Davitt, the noted Irish Nationalist, will give up politics for a year or so and live with his family at the residence of Mrs. Canning, 854 Sixteenth street. Mrs. Davitt was formerly Miss Mary Yore of this city and a niece and heiress of Mrs. Canning.

The first spring meeting of the Oakland Jockey Club will terminate with the races tomorrow afternoon at which time a fine program will be given.

W. J. Dingee feels very certain that he will be able to raise the $10,000 bonus demanded by Joseph Macdonough for building a fine new theater at the corner of Fourteenth street and Broadway.

M. J. Keller, of the Board of Trade, says that the adoption of the ordinance to place a tax on the mercantile establishments as it has been presented to the council is a bad thing for the city and it is probable the organization will take steps to defeat the measure.

An inventory and appraisal of the estate of Henry Donnelly, deceased, has been filed with the county clerk, showing that the estate is worth $57,256, consisting of stocks, bonds and real estate.

At the annual meeting of stockholders of the Pacific Iron and Nail Company, the following were chosen as directors: H. J. Sadler, William Wright, W. F. Mau, Martin Sachs and R. Sadler.

The much-talked-of fight between James Corbett and Peter Jackson at the California Athletic club in San Francisco is a thing of the past and the question of supremacy between the two pugilists is still undecided. One thing is certain and that is that Jackson is a disappointment and not the fighter he was cracked up to be. When the sixty-first round was finished Referee Hiram Cook stepped into the ring and declared the battle "no contest" and that ended the affair.

James Crisp Perry, who figured as "Grandpa Perry" in the great Blythe will contest, was thrown from a buggy and killed near San Rafael yesterday.

GREASE CAUSES FIRE.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 20.—A fire caused by the overturning of a pot of grease, caused an alarm to be sent in from box 184 at 6 o'clock this morning. The blaze was in Peter Lusich's restaurant and was extinguished with but little damage.

Depopulation in Scotland.

The returns from the census recently taken in the British Isles have caused a more insistent demand for the passage of a government land purchase bill for Scotland. Each year sees the land more and more given over to shooting preserves and sheep grazing. The crofters are being steadily dispossessed and driven from the country. This depopulation of the rural districts is now reflected in the census returns for the cities. Scotland is at a standstill and shows evidence of entering upon a period of decline. During the last decade the rural population has declined and the decline has been barely offset by the increase in the cities. All the larger cities show a disappointing lack of growth. The returns from Ireland are quite different. For half a century the population of Erin steadily declined, but under the influence of the land purchase act and better local laws the population of Ireland has begun to increase. The change for the better in Ireland is as significant as the change for the worse in Scotland. A peasantry in exile and cities going to decay present a mournful protest against land monopoly and the curse of a landlordism which prefers sheep pastures and grouse shooting to industrious tillers of the soil. So the Scotch are demanding the same relief that was given Ireland.

After the Imperial University succeeded in framing a bill giving Alsace-Lorraine partial autonomy as a state of the German empire that was acceptable to a majority of the inhabitants of the two provinces, the measure seems doomed to failure because of the jealousy of Prussia's power on the part of the smaller states of the German confederation. The Imperial Chancellor has enough votes to pass the bill in the Reichstag, but a majority of the Bundesrath, as the Imperial Council is called, is against the proposition. Prussia embraces sixty per cent of the territory and contains nearly two-thirds the entire population of the empire. Prussia's king is the Kaiser of Germany. Prussia dominates the Reichstag, but she sends only seventeen of the fifty-eight members of the Bundesrath. Under the proposed act the Kaiser would have the power to control the Alsace-Lorraine representatives in the Bundesrath, which the minor states of the federation regard as equivalent to increasing the power of Prussia in the Imperial Council. As in all matters of internal policy the Kaiser is a Prussian. The odd feature of the situation is the fact that the great body of the inhabitants of Alsace-Lorraine are still French in sentiment although German in language. It is because of this loyalty to France that they are not granted complete autonomy. They are now merely imperial provinces.

COUNCIL BLUFFS' DOG POLICEMAN

George J. McGovern of Council Bluffs has a dog which, while not on the payroll, is a regular member of the police force and has done good work in arresting and assisting in the conviction of thieves.

McGovern is a policeman, and consequently the dog, known as Cap, often goes with him to the station and accompanies him on his beat. Upon many occasions within two years Cap has arrested suspicious characters and held them until they could be taken away by a patrolman.

The other day Cap arrested a thief, took him to the station, and turned him over to the sergeant. By reason of having done this he has been placed upon the police roll and designated as "Cap, No. 23."

McGovern and family were moving their household possessions. Part of the goods were at one house, guarded by Cap, while the balance were at the other habitation. Those in charge of the dog attracted the attention of a young man walking by. He stopped, and noticing a number of articles out in the yard on the lawn, picked up a small oil painting and started to carry it away. Cap growled, and the thief started to run.

He soon was overtaken by the dog. Cap fastened his teeth in the young man's pantaloons and commenced to pull him toward the police station. The young man kicked and squirmed, but the dog hung on. When he tried to go in an opposite direction the dog sat down on his haunches. Then, when he would go in the direction which seemed to please the dog, he surrendered.

The young thief went along with the dog until at the door of the station; then he tried to break away. He was held with a viselike grip until a policeman came. The dog weighs 118 pounds and is 4 years old.—Chicago Tribune.

HOW TIMES HAVE CHANGED!

Queen Mary forbids décollete gowns, hobble skirts and cigarette smoking. The picture hat also goes in the discard. But Queen Mary faces—not a rebellious court but a rebellious clientele of guests. Queen Elizabeth disputes the legitimate sovereign's reign, and the ladies who intend to shine in the preliminary and the chief event, immediately prospective in the history of the English court, have banded together in evasion and defiance of the sovereign edict.

How times have changed! Suppose it were the glorious days of the irascible Queen Bess! Would there be low-cut dresses at that function? Not that anyone could observe. Would any dame of quality dare undertake the hop-along gait imposed by the hobble in the presence of the "Spinster Queen"? If she did she'd get her ears boxed, or worse; provided there has been an edict against hobbles, as there is in the present case.

What woman, however independent of spirit, would have ventured to smoke a cigarette about the royal castle or grounds, if the imperious Elizabeth had made it plain that cigarettes were not on the card? The only chance for such nocturnal felicity would have been after hours, when the lady and the "cig" were retired in the privacy of their own room. And then it would have been a visible for the lady to have blown the smoke out of the window if she wished to remain capable of blowing smoke at all. When Bess was Queen there was no possibility of a successful strike of fashion against the sovereign whim. But today all that is tradition; and fashion laughs at sovereignty with impudent politeness—flaunts its big hat, exposes its charms, hobbles about and blows cigarette smoke on the side, as it were.

Really, either in London, in Russia, or elsewhere on this mundane sphere of ours, just now, there is no other queen but fashion. There are others who will blurt out tyrannous demands and edicts now and then; but her demand and her edict alone command obedience.—Portland Telegram.

GIRL LIFE-SAVERS

What a happy thought is that of the winsome Chicago maid who proposes a whole squad of girl guards on the beach at Atlantic City.

Strange that no one has suggested it before—it is so sensible!

Her idea is that the girl guards give their attention especially to women and children who take too great risks in the surf.

Very good, but women and children are not calling for help every minute. So, in the meantime, when the girl guards are not giving their attention to feminine and juvenile bathers, they could rest while curious thousands of unabashed men give their attention to the skirted swimmers.

If the fact became known that the girl guards confined their rescue efforts to women and children, men would not tempt fate in the hope of having some fair brunette battle with the breakers to lure him on a blissful journey back to safety.

To the contrary, danger would be lessened because, for obvious reasons, with the girl guards whiling away their idle time sitting on the beach, fewer men would go beyond the safety line in the ocean.

As a precautionary measure, in a sense, the idea is good.—Philadelphia Times.

NEED OF GOOD PLAYS

"We do not need plays for posterity," says Daniel Frohman, "but plays for the present."

The advice is recommended to all aspiring dramatic authors. The lack of a satisfactory contemporary demand is as obvious to the casual theater-goer as to the professional manager, and it should occur to playwrights that to please their present-day public is their best possible guarantee of posthumous fame.

Some doubt may exist as to whether what now suits Broadway will suit the next generation. But a play that meets the wants of an audience today may be safely left to take its chances with posterity, given that it possesses merit. Neither Shakespeare nor Moliere concerned himself with what the twentieth century would think of his work. They wrote for the moment and in doing so wrote for all time.

The American stage, as Mr. Frohman says, needs "authors with ideas." It needs them, indeed, more than any other field of literature. Optimists discern the beginnings of an American drama worthy of the name. But it is anomalous that with its munificent rewards dramatic authorship in this country should have lagged behind all other forms of literary productivity. There are indications that in the future some of the talent that has found its bent in essay-writing, poetry and oratory may find expression in the drama. But even here the boon is reserved for posterity, as it is denied to a contemporary public. Sadly in need of plays of real substance and vitality.—New York World.

News of Woman's Clubs of Alameda County

With the end of June the women's clubs will close their doors, according to the by-laws of three months. This does not mean that activities will altogether cease, for during that period of rest numerous committees will be busy in training the new workers for the coming season. As president of Alameda District Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. Anne Little Barry, reports that the summer work will be in charge of the various departments during the year and will suggest to them the lines along which their energies will be directed. The training work of the summer months which will not abate is that committed to the officers and committees in preparing the clubs for the year's next year assemblies in San Francisco.

It is expected that a number of the national officers will visit the coast to confer with the local hostesses during the summer.

The delegates from the local clubs who were in attendance at the annual meeting of the California Federation of Women's Clubs, which was held last week at Long Beach, have returned to present their reports to their home clubs. The annual meeting of the Federation on Monday will give an hour to these interesting accounts before assembling for a luncheon at the Waldorf Astoria.

Mrs. C. W. Kinsey, chairman of the district committee on California history and the author of the paper on "The Early History of the State," the paper and map will be given by Mrs. John A. Van Allen, of the Santa Ana Valley Club of Hayward, on "California Indians." Mrs. W. I. McDonald will be the author of the paper on "D. U. Tolstelmier will preside as hostess.

The members of the civic section are in the midst of their session, the month of April, in the Belmont.

Ebell will close its years work on Tuesday evening when Mrs. Edith Coburn Noyes is presented in a program of interpretative readings. Mrs. Noyes is the founder of the Boston School of Dramatic Expression and spends each summer on the coast. She is said to be one of the most finished readers in this country. Clubwomen are looking forward to her appearance in Oakland with much pleasure.

There will be no meeting of the Oakland Club Wednesday afternoon, the celebration of California Day being postponed in compliance to the women of the Oakland Home who are giving their large benefit and card party at the Home Club. The last meeting of the year will take place on Wednesday evening, May 31, when the members of the dramatic section present Meeterlinck's "Blue Bird." An informal dance will follow the entertainment which will be open to the public.

Casa Guidici Circle, whose members have been devoting their study during the past few months to the general theme, "The Dark Lady," were given an unusual treat last night when Mrs. Herbert Sanford Howard read "The Dark Lady." The widely discussed drama is a difficult one for an interpretative reader to attempt, but Mrs. Howard met herself equal to the demands of the play, and gave a sincere understanding of the various characters, the magical atmosphere, and the charming personal life of the main character. One of the notable programs of the winter. Mrs. Howard is the only pupil of the Casa Guidici Circle. Mrs. Ada Dow Currier, who has coached Mrs. Howard in the best known stars of the dramatic stage.

A five hundred party was the delightful way in which the women of the Criterion Club closed its season on Wednesday last. Mrs. Al Latham presiding as hostess at her Bay street home. A prettily served tea and a fish pond with an appropriate gift for each member of the club rounded out the day.

The Collegiate Alumnae is planning an old fashioned picnic for Saturday, May 27, at the Presidio. The basket luncheon at the noon hour will be followed by the annual business meeting and election of officers. When the routine business is disposed of Miss Ida Juller will present a unique program after which old fashioned games will be played under the direction of Miss Pearl Dewing. Miss Connelia McKinnis, Miss Nancy Sprague and Miss Jessie Berry make up the nominating committee preparing the list of candidates.

The Home Club closed its year of Thrifts afternoon last with a brilliant reception following the luncheon at which the retiring officers and committee chairmen gave reports. The following were present: Smith trust were particularly honored as guests at the reception the boards of the Home Club were present. Much the Home Club members are identified and invited. Those for whom the places of the Home Club had been the luncheon board were Mrs. Harrie Cobble, Mrs. Granville Shuey, Mrs. George E. M. Gray, Miss Marlon Ellis, Mrs. Josiah Keep, Mrs. W. W. The Fourth of July is this year to be celebrated by the suffrage workers of the state at Washington Independence Day, extensive preparations being made to send a speaker to every city and village. Exercises are to be held. Yellow balloons bearing the suffrage slogan are to be used freely in decorations. Another unique way by which these active women are reaching sympathizers is by sending pictorial postal inscribed in foreign tongues to every home represented by the foreign vote.

Dr. Charles Aked of San Francisco will address a rally of suffrage workers on the evening of June 15, in Macdonough theater, for which much preparation is being made.

The annual May breakfast which is arranged by the women of the Young Women's Christian Association, will be a benefit for the travelers' aid fund will be held on Thursday of this week. The occasion is being planned as an elaborate one. A dainty menu will be served from 7 o'clock in the morning until 2. The tables will be placed on the lawn surrounding the Administration building, and the grounds between the barracks and Castro and Fourteenth streets. Among the matrons and girls of the army set Purry had said he would make no attempt to float her. The captain and crew are

It is believed that Rev. Frank W. Sanford, founder and head of the society, was not aboard, but on the society's yacht Coronet. What has become of the forty-two persons, including women and children, who left Maine on the Kingdom last fall, is not known. It is supposed they are on the Coronet or have been landed somewhere to form a colony.

DENVER, May 20.—As nearly 1000 Mystic Shriners were proceeding from the lodge rooms at El Jebel temple to the banquet hall to celebrate their semi-annual banquet here last night, George E. Fell, a prominent Mason, in some unexplained manner, plunged over the balustrade of the stairs, landing on his head three stories below. He was instantly killed. The banquet was abandoned.

Money May Be Paid in Oakland

Notices of assessment for the United States Internal Revenue tax are being sent to the heads of corporations in this district from the collector's office in San Francisco. The taxes are payable at the office of the deputy collector, in the Tribune building, Eighth and Franklin streets.

The Chamber of Commerce requests Oakland firms to turn in their taxes at the Oakland office that the city may get the credit in the figures of tables sent out by the treasury department at Washington. The tax is delinquent after June.

Last year a large amount of tax which should have been credited to Oakland, says San Francisco owing to the taxpayers believing that the money must be paid there.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 20.—Parliament today finished practically all the business of the session except the ratification of the American reciprocity agreement. The house of commons adjourned until July 18 and the senate until August 9. Both sides have arranged meetings covering practically the whole recess.

The Liberals will conduct a campaign of education in favor of ratification and the Conservatives will conduct a campaign of education in favor of rejection.

BREAKFAST TO BE SERVED ON LAWN

Y. W. C. A. Preparing for Its Annual Reception Thursday Next.

The Young Women's Christian Association is making elaborate plans for its annual breakfast on May 25, at the administration building at Fourteenth and Castro streets. "Breakfast" is to be served from 7 o'clock in the morning until 2 o'clock in the afternoon. These affairs are usually attended by several hundred persons, including business men, and the proceeds derived from the day's work will be devoted to promoting the work of the travelers' aid branch of the organization.

Many of the tables will be spread beneath the trees on the broad lawns surrounding the building. They are to be prettily decorated and each presided over by a hostess with her corps of assistants. Many prominent women of Oakland and Berkeley are interested in the promotion of the success of the occasion.

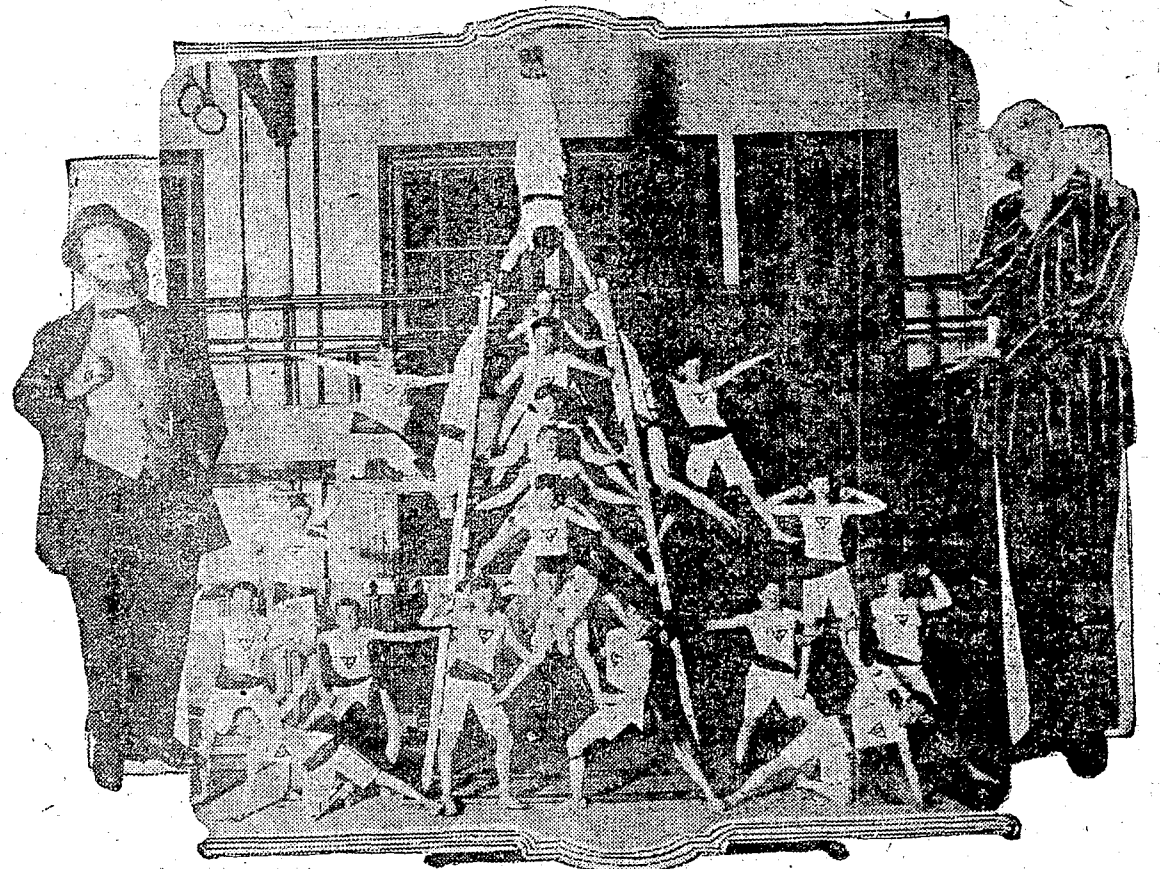

The general committee includes Miss Ethel Olney, Mrs. E. L. Lavenex, Mrs. Alexander Stewart, Mrs. M. M. Hurd, Mrs. Arthur Moore, Mrs. Arthur Tellman, Mrs. F. G. Harper, Mrs. William Morrison, Mrs. Charles W. Kellogg, Mrs. E. R. Vance, Mrs. Van Slyke, Miss Alice Flint.

The committee in charge of the decorations includes Miss Eva Powell, Mrs. Frank M. Greenwood, Mrs. J. B. Richardson and Mrs. C. J. Long.

Among the prominent women who will have charge of tables are:

BOYS OF Y. M. C. A. WILL GO CAMPING

The first annual camp of the boys of the Oakland Y. M. C. A. will be held at Moss Beach, June 7th to 21st, on the Ocean Shore railway. The camp will be under the supervision of T. S. Caldwell, director of boys' work, and C. F. Martin, the physical director of the organization. They will be assisted by a competent corps of workers, each to have charge of six boys. There will be special instructions in swimming under careful direction. No firearms will be permitted. The object of the camp is to encourage outdoor life among boys and to add zest and energy to the health and welfare of the campers. Every precaution to insure the health and safety of the boys will be taken. The location of the camp is one of the most inviting and picturesque spots along the whole California coast.

NEW STREET CAR SERVICE. SAN FRANCISCO, May 20.—The Noe Valley Promotion Association has induced the United Railroads to establish "short cut" service between Mission street and Hoffman avenue, on the West Twenty-second and Twenty-fourth streets line, between the hours of 5 and 7 o'clock in the afternoon. This service relieves the congestion in the rush hours.

The Oakland Y. M. C. A. will give a gymnastic carnival next Thursday evening at its gymnasium. This carnival will open at 8 o'clock and will consist of various athletic features intermingled with musical and humorous numbers. The purpose of the carnival is to give the public a demonstration of what has been accomplished in the physical department since the association began its work, a little over three months ago.

It is expected that more than three hundred of the association's members will participate in this affair, the participants being entirely limited to members of the organization. The squad has been trained by a staff of the physical directors of the Y. M. C. A., consisting of C. F. Martin and his two assistants, C. H. Toole and T. C. Johnson. In addition G. H. Prund, superintendent of physical culture in the Oakland public schools, will aid and participate.

The program to be given is in its entirety as follows:

2—Comedy feature: "Mutt and Jeff," in the persons of Philip Hall and Thomas Covington.

3—Highland Fling, Robert Robertson of the Business Men's class.

4—Comedy boxing.

5—Single Stick Drill: Horizontal and Parallel Bar exercises; senior class under the direction of C. H. Toole, assisted by R. Perry and Robert Robinson.

6—Soller's Hornpipe; 36 Junior and Intermediate class boys.

7—Acrobatic: The "Frank Book Troupe," assisted by A. and H. Widdell and C. Pesse.

8—Grand Salute Fencing Bouts; French art of fencing, directed by G. H. Prund, superintendent of physical culture, Oakland public schools; Miss Rosa Prund, Emil Fritsch, G. H. Prund.

9—Pyramids-Roman Ladders; Business boys.

10—Wrestling; Messrs. F. Andrews and H. Nielson; Senior class.

11—Club Manipulations; Dr. H. L. Dietz and Ben Durnig.

12—Horizontal and Parallel Bar exercises; Senior class.

13—Pyramids and Tumbling; forty business boys and boy leaders.

Mrs. Belle Wentworth at the piano.

This entertainment will mark the close of the gymnastic season of the association, although classes will be continued throughout the summer, with preliminary work already under way.

Kensington Park

North Berkeley's Choicest Addition

Superbly located on a slightly knoll in the first elevation of the beautiful Berkeley Hills; its lots are reached by practically level winding boulevarded streets, and each commanding a view unparalleled by any of the many beautiful home parks on the Alameda county bay line. The vista includes seven counties, embracing in its scope a panorama of the Pacific Ocean, our Golden Gate, San Francisco Bay and the cities of San Francisco, Oakland, Berkeley and Richmond.

Kensington Park is readily reached by the Key Route, Southern Pacific, with two separate direct lines now on the eve of giving service over their completed roads; or by the Oakland Traction Company from its terminal at The Circle; a right-of-way has been granted and street car service to the gates of Kensington Park is assured in the near future.

The streets of Kensington Park, varying in width from 50 to 80 feet, will be completely finished without cost to the purchasers of lots; contracts for all this work have been let, and it is being continuously and rapidly pushed to completion. Specifications call for the highest class of materials and include the installation of sewers, water mains, cement gutters, curbing, sidewalks and the macadamizing of the streets.

The soil, free from rock, is extremely light, fertile and particularly adapted to the culture of flowers; while the climate, owing to its sheltered location and a minimum of wind, is all that could be desired.

Many of the lots have a growth of oaks, and those bordering on the creek are covered with beautiful bay and other trees.

EXTREMELY LOW PRICES

Lots are all fifty feet or more in frontage, with depths varying up to 300 feet, and have been placed on the market at prices ranging from $900.00. Adjoining properties, less desirable in character, are selling rapidly for from one-third to one-half more than the prices placed on the lots in Kensington Park.

OUR TERMS ARE LIBERAL

We can, if the purchaser so desires, arrange for a nominal cash payment and the balance in small monthly instalments extended over a period of from six to seven years.

RESTRICTIONS

Adequate building and other restrictions have been placed on the property, insuring to each owner not only an unobstructed view, but an assurance that Kensington Park will be maintained as a residence district of the very highest class.

Handsome descriptive booklet containing beautiful views on and from the property, a magnificent colored panorama, together with plat of Kensington Park subdivisions and the fullest details, can be had on application, either in person or by mail, at the office.

OUR OFFICE WILL BE OPEN ALL DAY SUNDAY, MAY 21ST, AND WE CORDIALLY INVITE THOSE WHO DESIRE TO INSPECT "KENSINGTON PARK" TO CALL AT THE OFFICE AND BE TAKEN TO THE PROPERTY (A 10-MINUTE DRIVE) IN OUR AUTOMOBILES.

DANGERS OF FAT

HOW FAT AFFECTS THE STOMACH

The stomach is the seat of digestion, wherein are separated from food the nutritious elements that build and sustain our bodies. When the stomach ceases to change the fat producing elements of food, into muscle and sinew, there comes an excess of fat, where there should be firm, hard flesh. This excess fat collects in most undesirable places, impeding motion until movement becomes an exertion. The layers of fat check the stomach's natural movements for digestion of food—thus increasing the trouble. But so many people have found relief in the famous Marmola Prescription that there is hardly any necessity for obesity. And now that Marmola Prescription Tablets can be obtained there is even less excuse for two much fat. Dieting and exercise are rendered unnecessary by this new form of fat reduction. Marmola Prescription Tablets are sold by all druggists or the Marmola Co., 75 Monroe Ave., Detroit, Mich., at 75c the case. They quickly and harmlessly reduce the overfat body at the rate of 10 to 18 oz. a day, improve digestion, clear the complexion and promote bodily health.

GULF COAST TO BE GREAT PLAYGROUND

Every Facility at Hand to Make Section National Summer Park.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, May 20.—That the Texas Gulf coast will, in a very few years, become one of the national playgrounds becomes more and more evident as improvements add both to the attractiveness and utility. Along this coast, all natural conditions for pleasure are present. The entire coast line is indented with beautiful bays, fringed with live oak and many other semi-tropical trees. Five years ago there were but one or two places along the coast equipped for bathing purposes and containing hotels for the accommodation of guests.

STOCKS ARE FIRM WHILE FUTURES RULE STRONG

Standard Oil Decision Makes Little Impression on Wall Street.

NEW HIGH RECORDS ARE WEEK'S FEATURE

Prospects of Peace in Mexico Reassure Timid Bankers of Europe.

(By RALPH EMERSON.)
NEW YORK, May 20.—Of course the Standard Oil decision has been the one big thing in the stock market the past week. The result has been more market than has been seen for some time.

Since the close of the stock market last Monday, railroad and industrial shares have advanced from 2 to 6 points, with a number of stocks selling on Thursday at the highest price of the year. New high records for the year were made this week by Westinghouse, Amalgamated Copper, General Electric, Union Pacific and Atchafalaya.

Compared with the low prices for the year, most of which were made in February, at this week's high levels, International Harvester shows a gain of 19 1/2 points, General Electric 16 1/2, Union Pacific 15, Atchafalaya 13, Northern Pacific 12, Steel, Reading and Westinghouse 10 points and Pennsylvania 8. Pennsylvania was the only stock to make its low record for the year on last Monday.

DECISION IS PERPLEXING.

A wholly impartial witness of the public reception of last Monday's news—the familiar man from Mars, for instance—would have found some difficulty in piecing together his impressions. If acquainted with the older traditions of our race he would possibly assume that the Standard Oil had been placed as a burnt offering on the public altar and that every one thereafter believed the angry god to be appeased.

Something of the perplexity of the man from Mars has been reflected in the week's casual comment on the market's action after the decision. Not so with the stock exchange. The value of a catching phrase was never more convincingly demonstrated than by this week's immense popularity of the explanation that the "court has written 'reasonableness' into the anti-trust law."

Now Wall Street is not free from a certain amiable weakness of human nature, which consists in saying things which it does not exactly understand, and in saying them with the greater confidence because it believes no one will ask it what they mean. It is an etiquette in matters of this sort which excludes as bad form the insistence, in the midst of a friendly conversation, upon a clear explanation of such mysterious phrases.

There are those who assert with great definiteness that the opinion by using such phrases as "determined by the light of reason" and "right to contract when not unduly and improperly exercised," has somehow or other reversed all previous decisions. But there are others who believe that these declarations place in simple language what had been previously intimated in the Supreme Court's judgment under the act of 1890 and with great definiteness in such enunciations as Justice Brewer's "Northern Securities" opinion of 1904, the Chief Justice's decision of 1907 on the Standard Oil and Attorney-General Wickersham's brief in the tobacco case in April, 1911.

WALL STREET DISCOUNTS.

One striking fact in connection with the decision and its effect on the market is the fact that the stock street to anticipate and "discount" and grant events. But looking back at the position of a week ago the wonderful thing is that the stock exchange prices, while all was still in doubt, should have held so steadily at a level which on the average was little below the very top of the year. Financial comment referred to this as the market's preparedness for whatever the Supreme Court might decide. But it meant more than this, it was a reflection also of the conviction finally reached among shrewd Wall Street operators that the integrity of values and the security of property rights would not and could not be upset by any verdict of the court.

In a large degree, therefore, the market really discounted Monday's decision and the rise that occurred thereafter may be ascribed to the buying in of short contracts and to purchases by the rank and file of outside speculators who had not been able to perceive how strong the previously existing market conditions really were. By reason of the elimination of the short interest and the entrance upon the scene of a host of new traders whose idea is to go immediately ahead, the position is far less solid than it was. With its usual tendency toward rushing to extremes the speculative community has enthusiastically proclaimed that the Supreme Court has opened a new era for American business, that the long-standing difficulties in the situation have been removed and there is nothing for Wall Street prices to do but start in to anticipate and "discount" and grant events.

That such a view may be productive of risk and danger ought to be preferably apparent to sober reasoning.

BASIC CONDITIONS IMPROVE.

However, as has been frequently suggested, fundamental factors are improving rapidly in some directions and slowly in others, where the gains from month to month and from one quarter of the year to another quarter are quite satisfactory. To thoroughly readjust the economies of the country to a basis sound enough to carry us along without money or labor troubles for two or three years will require six or eight months or more of slow business.

War with Mexico, at worst intervention, has been removed as a disturbing possibility by the election of President Diaz to resign and to establish a cordial entente with Madero. This situation was at one time very disturbing to banking interests here and in Europe. The possibilities of peace have made them more disposed to reopen financial activity.

The influences most potent for trade renewals are the large supplies of money at low rates and the continued assurances of satisfactory crops. Money is bound to be plentiful and to average a rate making very profitable the purchase of bonds, notes or stocks in the next six months. It is too early to make business calculations for 1917 on the assumption that the yield of wheat, corn, oats, cotton and hay will not only be sufficient for domestic requirements, but permit of normal surplus for export. It is not presumptuous, however, to reckon on fair crops this year from the present known conditions and record acreage in all directions.

RIVER BOOMING, LEVEES IN DANGER

Great Damage Already Done by Overflow in the Delta Region of Colorado.

PAXTON'S STOCKS SOLD FOR DEBT

Property of Dead Mining Man Under Hammer to Satisfy Banks.

YUMA, Ariz., May 20.—Three hundred thousand dollars damage has already been done, it is estimated, to the dam recently completed by the United States government at Bee river, on the west bank of the Colorado river, by the summer rise of the stream, and as the crest of the flood has not yet reached this point more damage is looked for. The Colorado yesterday broke through the levee about 400 yards north of the dam, washing out nearly 200 yards of the levee and later made a similar break three miles further north. The main dam is small and will probably be closed without difficulty.

High water in the Colorado is expected for two weeks yet and it is believed that five or six miles of levee and a new dam at Bee river will be necessary to protect the country west of the river through next season.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 20.—The sale of the stocks pledged by the late Charles Paxton to the Anglo and London Paris National bank, and in which an interest was claimed by the Bank of California, was held today in front of the local Mining Exchange.

Contrary to the general opinion of the brokers, all the securities sold higher than the prices quoted in the exchange during the regular sessions yesterday.

The total amount received from the sale was approximately $50,000.

James L. King acted as auctioneer and the bidding was spirited. All Paxton's fellow members on the exchange were present and vied with one another in boosting the different securities.

The feature of the sale was the trading in Mexican. Paxton owned 8000 shares of this stock and it has increased some 400 per cent since his death.

The closing price on the local exchange yesterday was $4.60. The first sale at the auction was $4.65 and the stock advanced steadily until the final transaction was at $4.72 1/2.

Union could be bought in the local exchange yesterday for $1.60. The Paxton stock, consisting of 6100, sold at prices ranging from $1.70 to $1.75. And so on down the line, each security sold higher than the market value.

Paxton, it will be remembered, pledged these securities with the Anglo and London Paris National bank to procure $44,000 in order to pay his divorced wife her back alimony.

The Bank of California asserted a prior claim on the stocks and they were thrown yesterday on the market under an arrangement between the two banking institutions.

Everybody Uses the Telephone Directory!

That is why it has become such a valuable advertising medium. The Oakland and Bay Counties Telephone Directory is consulted by an average of 650,000 people every day, and its use is steadily increasing.

A Telephone Directory advertisement is bound to be seen. It is permanent and persistent. It is the nearest thing to perpetual motion in advertising.

The Telephone Directory as an advertising medium is particularly useful to concerns catering to telephone trade.

The telephone has helped your business grow, and Telephone Directory advertising will accelerate and increase its growth.

Grand total.....	$10,624,900

The foregoing figures tell in epitome the story of the generous sums of money which are invested in public and private improvements at present under way on a large scale in this city, or which are about to be invested therein. To complete the tale, however, should be added thereto an amount approximating $150,000 per week, representing the investment in homes, flats and stone buildings of unassuming design and value, but which in the aggregate involve the outlay of many thousands of dollars and give employment to many thousand pairs of hands.

A number of these enterprises are under way, contracts for others have been awarded and contracts for yet others are about to be awarded, hence it is a surety that all will be in a more or less advanced stage of activity before the close of the current year. Many of them—probably most of them—will be in course of construction by the middle of summer, thereby adding many dollars daily to the pompous payroll of the municipality. Increasing the prosperity of the city as a whole and adding to Oakland's already enviable reputation as the most progressive business center on the Pacific slope.

PROJECTS UNDER WAY.

The public projects under way at this time are the erection of a million-dollar city hall, and the establishing of a system of docks which when completed will extend from Sessions' wharf in the estuary to north of the Key Route basin along the harbor-front. Work on the municipal building is not as yet very far advanced as the contracts embraced in its erection were but recently let. Excavation for the foundation is, however, being hurried to completion with the view to beginning work on the super-structure not later than July.

Far as is feasible local people will supply the multifarious building materials used, and local artisans will be employed in its erection. In some instances, it is understood, artisans from other points will journey here under contract with the builders. At first glance it would appear as though such a course would work a hardship on the local workman, but when analyzed closely it proves to be but the veriest shadow, for with $10,624,900 worth of work in sight there is room and employment in Oakland for a good many men. The great contrast is that some of the artisans who will migrate hither attracted by the big industrial melon about to be cut, will be so taken with the city they will make it their permanent home. Every unit thus secured is a booster for the city and, as in most instances he is married, the population of the municipality is increased by at least two, and in the near future by a bunch of kids of varying age.

Oakland's 175 per cent increase in population within a decade is hardly attributable to local exemplification of the law of all progressive cities, but a contradiction is traceable to the tendency of humanity to foregather where work is plenty and prosperity reigns. Employment at good wage has been provided for that increase in population here, and will be provided for any future increase through medium of the new enterprises the day brings forth. Such is the past history of all progressive cities, and such is the past, the present and the future history of Oakland.

ALONG THE WATERFRONT.

The construction of quaywalls and docks along the estuary and the waterfront is not progressing as rapidly as the Board of Public Works desires, but of late the contractors have been spurred on to quicker action and are responding to the impetus. The working force thus employed will, therefore, in the near future be considerably increased and the contracts hastened to completion as expeditiously as is compatible with their proper fulfillment. In that connection it is worth stating that the fund of $2,500,000 at present available for harbor-front needs is in the future to be supplemented by other generous sums, until ultimately this city possesses a dock system without peer on the Pacific Coast. The consummation of the project will be coincident with the completion of the Panama Canal.

A few days ago this city assumed a bonded indebtedness of $2,933,900 for school and auditorium purposes. Of that amount $2,433,900 will be expended in improving and adding to school houses already existent and in the construction of new buildings, one for high school purposes and the others for grammar and primary school needs. Oakland's reputation as a city of superior public school facilities has attracted hither many persons desirous of securing for their children an exceptional educational advantage, and it is safe to predict that the contemplated improvements will attract yet others. People with children are for the most part home builders and their presence in a community adds not alone to the pride of the merchant, but tends to increase the price of realty and the demand for skilled labor.

The municipal auditorium which is to be built here will take rank with the best buildings of that character in the country, not even excepting the roomy and magnificent structures that grace the cities of Denver, Chicago and Cincinnati. When the local auditorium is completed this city will be in a position to vie with other progressive municipalities in offering accommodations for conventions, and in addition will be able to hold such as a further attraction a site surrounded by natural beauties such as very few cities possess. Real estate men and others who are always in touch with financial and industrial conditions are a unit in the opinion that the erection of the municipal auditorium will have more effect than any other one feature in drawing visitors to Oakland, and that many of those attracted will remain to become permanent residents.

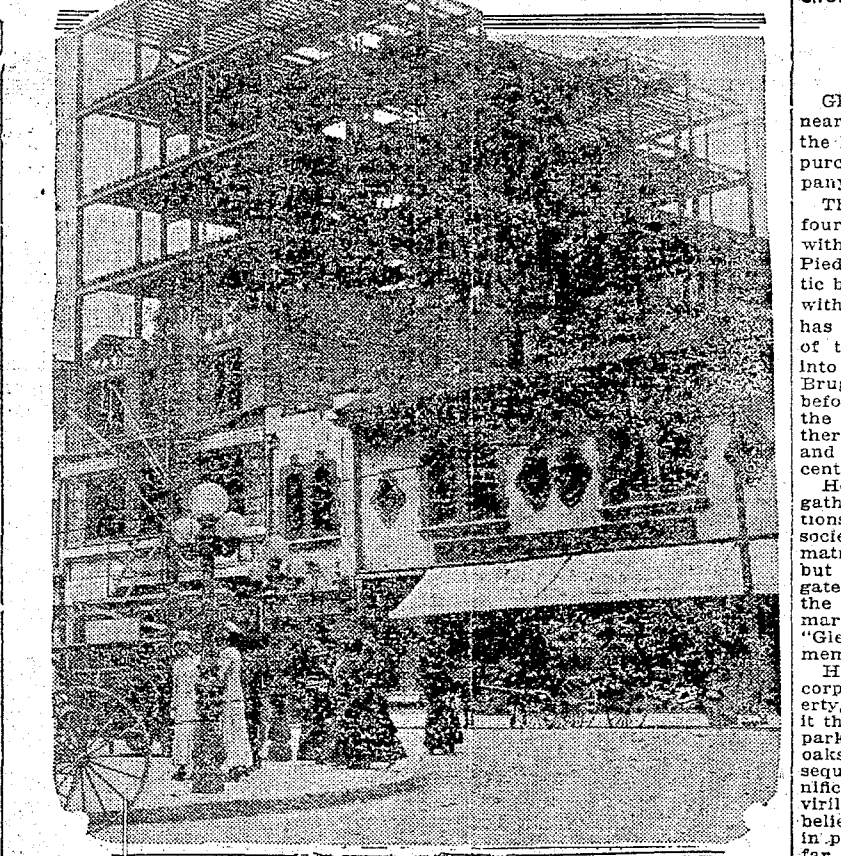

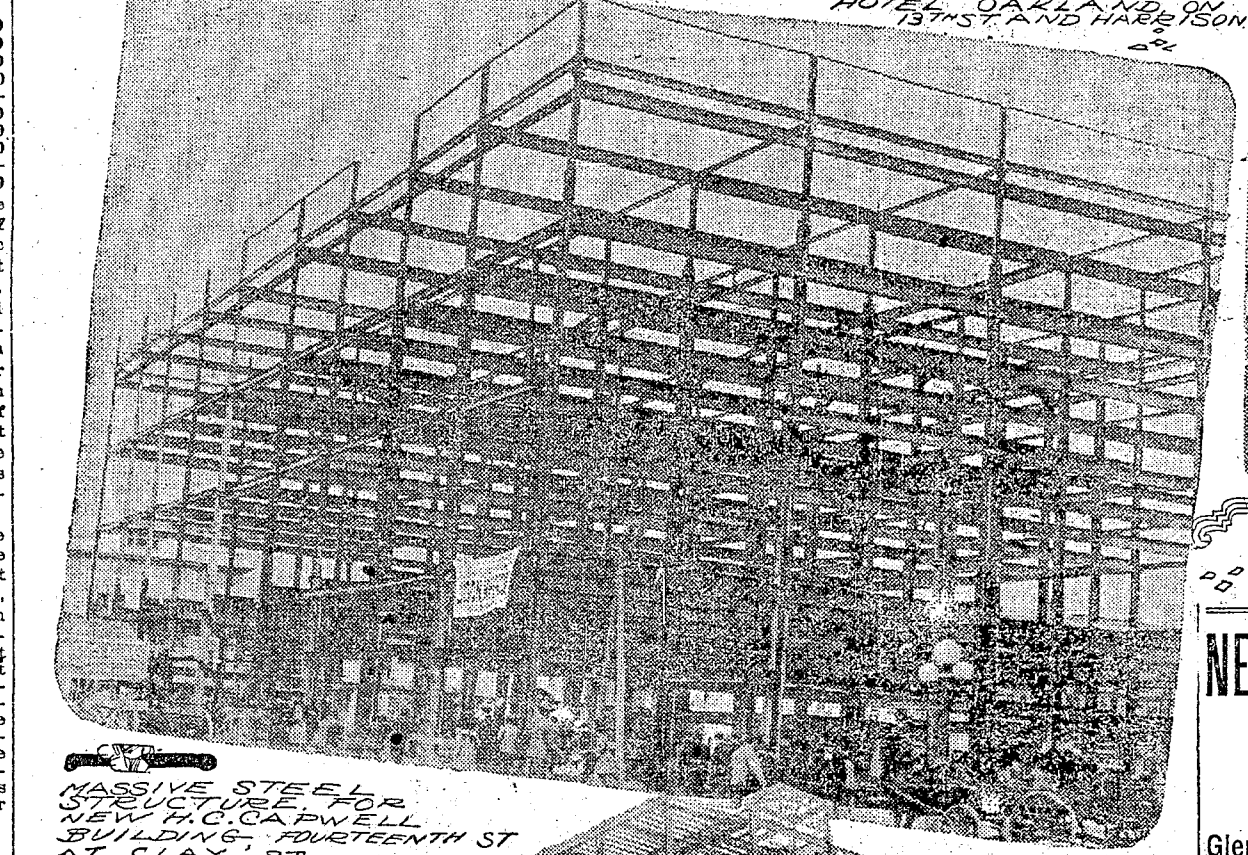

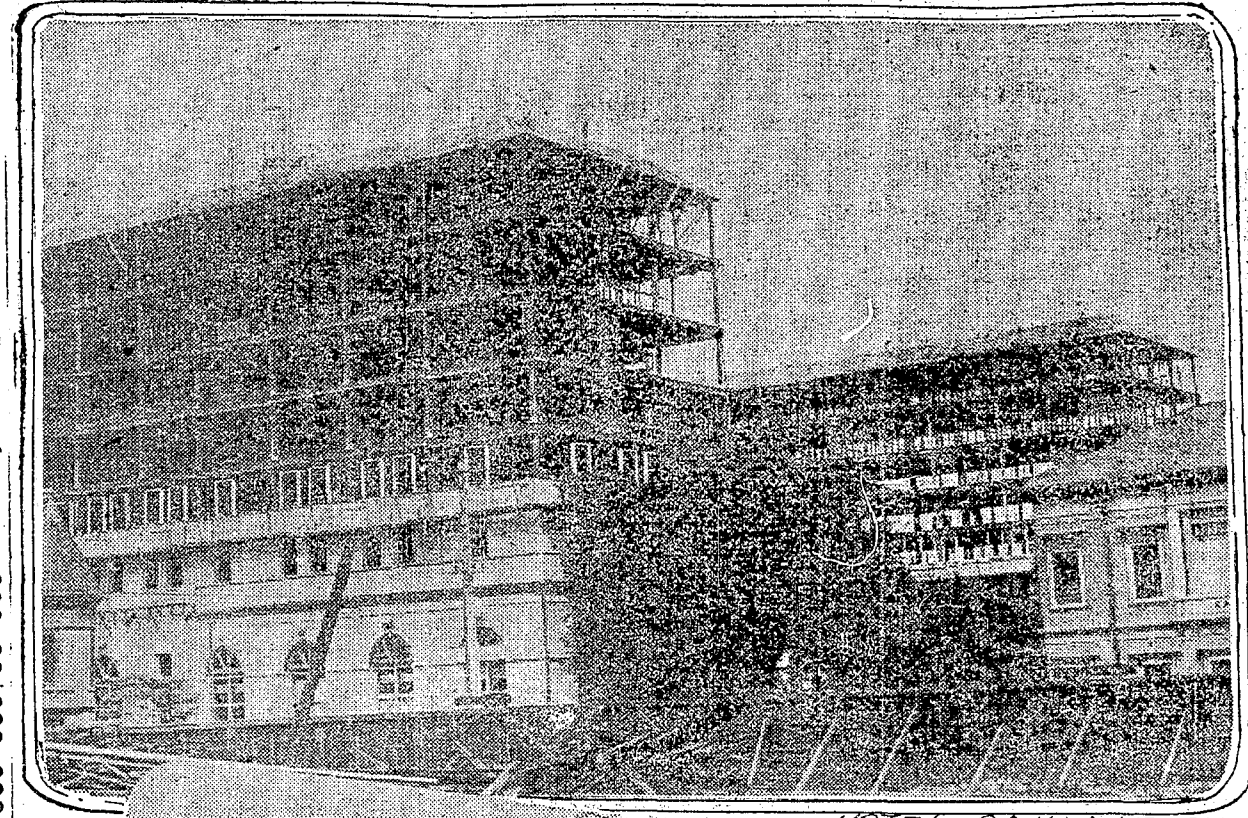

S. P. AND SEWERS.

Out in the recently annexed district sewers are to be put in this summer. Bonds in the amount of $400,000 have been sold for the purpose, and within the next two weeks the work of digging trenches for the pipes will be employed. Several hundred men will be employed. The completion of the project means not alone better sanitary conveniences to the person already residing there, but likewise will tend to accelerate building in that locality.

Three hundred thousand dollars is the cost to the Southern Pacific Company for paving Seventh street, such action on its part being one of the stipulations of the franchise recently granted to it by the city. The contract for the work has been awarded, and June 1 will record its start. As in the instance of the sewer enterprise, several hundred men will be employed. Also before the year is much farther advanced the Southern Pacific Company will begin the erection of a $500,000 depot at the western terminus of Sixteenth street, to take the place of the obsolete structure which has served that purpose for so many years. The projects herein mentioned in detail, together with those tabulated at the head of this review, insure to Oakland artisans many scores of busy days and many hundreds of thousands of dollars in wages. To Oakland manufacturers they insure many hundreds of thousands of dollars in payment for materials. To Oakland contractors they insure yet other hundreds of thousands of dollars. To Oakland real estate men they insure prosperous days by reason of the increase in population that will follow their inception and completion. To Oakland as a whole they insure a prosperous, progressive future.

Four buildings in course of erection in Oakland, representing an expenditure of over $3,500,000.

NEW OWNER FOR BEAUTIFUL HOME

Glen Echo, Famous Oakland Landmark, Is to Be Subdivided.

Glen Echo on Piedmont avenue near Linda avenue, for many years the home of Jonathan Hunt, has been purchased by the Belden Estate Company.

This old home, comprising about four acres along Glen Echo creek, with its embowered entrance from Piedmont avenue, leading over a rustic bridge across the creek, and which with its natural park-like features, has long been one of the show places of the city, will now be subdivided into home sites. Here it was that the Bruguieres settled in the early days before Oakland was, and then came the Hunts in 1853. Mr. Hunt dying there at the ripe old age of 101 years and his widow's demise following recently.

Here, more than a generation ago, gathered at the brilliant social functions in the hospitable old home the society buds, many of them now staid matrons with daughters of their own, but now, the heirs, in order to segregate their interests, have disposed of the old home, and so another landmark passes into history, and soon "Glen Echo" will be but a treasured memory of the years gone.

H. B. Belden, the manager of the corporation which bought the property, states that they intend to make it the most beautiful private residence park on the coast. All its grand old oaks, majestic elms and the stately sequoia, which latter is the most magnificent and perfect specimen of these virile old monarchs of which there believed to be only three now existing in private grounds in the city, and as far as possible all its rare shrubbery and beautiful flowers will be preserved. That portion fronting sixty feet on Piedmont avenue and running back 250 feet to the grounds proper will be made a parked cement driveway, with a gateway, cement electrolites of artistic design and pedestals vases with ornamental plants.

Mr. Belden, accompanied by a landscape architect, is now in the south-eastern part of the state gathering the latest ideas in the embellishment of private residence parks and says that Glen Echo, enhanced by the projected improvements will continue to be one of the charming show places of Oakland.

Spot Is One of Ideal Beauty, Well Fit for Such a Spectacle.

Aviation serves an excellent purpose today in the flights of Didier Masson at Fourth Avenue Heights. The crowds attracted there today to see the operations in the air of the daring aviator who has just arrived from Mexico will have revealed to them under foot the more substantial beauties of the beautiful canyon and hill country which is such a strong advantage to all who live in Oakland.

As the Fourth avenue car line has but recently extended to and through Fourth Avenue Heights there are many attracted to the spot by the holding of the aviation flights, who learn for the first time that a fifteen minute trip from Broadway will now take them to one of the most beautiful sections within the limits of any municipality in the country. There are also strangers, who never knew even of the existence of the spot.

NEW HOME FOR FURNITURE MAN

H. Schellhaas to Erect Handsome Residence on East Twelfth Street.

A residence is about to be erected on the east side of East Twelfth street, between Fifth and Sixth avenues, adjoining the site of the once famous Hotel Tubbs, for H. Schellhaas, the pioneer furniture dealer, from designs of the architects, Milwain Bros.

The exterior will be finished in smooth surface cement plaster and rough timbered work stained with a special waterproof tint. The lower story will contain a large living room, reception hall, library, dining and breakfast rooms, kitchen, etc.

The second story will be laid off in four large, sunny chambers, with a sleeping porch across the rear of the house.

A special feature will be the mezzanine floor, accessible from the reception hall by a broad oak flight of stairs leading to the dining and breakfast rooms and the service portion of the house.

BUSY WEEK
IN REAL ESTATE

Many Business Leases Closed in the Downtown District.

Residence Sites in Suburban Sections Continue in Demand.

"This has been one of the busiest weeks we have had for some time," said S. H. Masters, sales manager for Layman Real Estate Company. "This statement will apply to leasing as well as to real estate sales."

"We have closed a number of business leases in the downtown district, and from the applications for locations a number of others will shortly be made. During the past 10 days we have also leased three full apartment houses in different locations of the close-in district."

"We have also sold three central corners of 100 feet frontage each; it is the intention of the purchasers of these holdings to replace the old buildings with modern structures. The particulars of it will be announced in the near future. One of the purchasers refused an offer of $2000 advance within an hour after signing up the instruments of sale."

"Notwithstanding preparations for vacation, the outside resident districts are receiving marked attention from buyers, both local and outside. These inquiries and sales covering both improved and unimproved properties. The small speculators are particularly noticeable in the field, looking for investments with an idea of improving and holding against the growth of a rapidly expanding business era. The following are some of the recent sales made by this firm:

60,000 DOGS UNMUZZLED.
BERLIN, May 20.—After decreeing the massacre of 700 dogs whose owners could not afford to pay the new tax of $7.50 a year, the police president of Berlin has issued an "emancipation" proclamation, by the terms of which, and after May 1, greater Berlin's 60,000 dogs may go unmuzzled. The police authorities have come to the conclusion that the compulsory muzzle is an antiquated institution, and have decided to follow the example of London, Paris and other capitals, which long ago abandoned it.

HAYWARD REALTY VERY ANIMATED

Large Areas Are Being Subdivided Into Five and Ten-Acre Farms.

There has been considerable activity in the vicinity of Hayward in the sub-dividing of large acreage into 5 and 10 acre farms.

The buyers of small acreage, looking for homesites or investment, have been attracted to this locality on account of the closeness to the market, climate, soil, transportation, water, fine roads, etc.

The Captain Harvey and Johansen ranches, lying two miles south of Hayward, have been purchased by San Francisco capitalists and they are now selling the land in five and ten acre farms. They report the sale of 41 of these small farms.

PARISIANS BITE AT NEW SWINDLE

Banker Makes Fortune by Offering 1 Per Cent Per Day, Then Disappears.

PARIS, May 20.—A bunch of the first water has come to light through the mysterious disappearance of a man eccentric banker named Rivier, who had acquired a vast fortune by inducing the credulous to invest their savings with him under a promise to return one percent per day therefor.

This curious person, in spite of the vast business he transacted, is said to have subsisted wholly upon eggs and tea, which he prepared himself in the seclusion of a lonely little room containing, by way of furniture, a camp bedstead and a stool. He wore a moth eaten, sandy beard; obviously false, and buried himself in such seclusion that he was only once or twice seen by any other visitors than his two clerks.

Week after week the money poured into his coffers in ever-increasing amounts, till one day he mysteriously disappeared. An investigation was set afoot and it was found that he had made a get-away, with funds amounting to half a million dollars.

No trace has been found of the suspect to date.

CONTEST FOR COTTE MEDAL IS DELAYED

The contest for the Cotte medal at St. Mary's college has been postponed from May 22 to June 2, because of the presence of other student affairs.

Eight students have qualified for the competition: William Lowery, William Davis, Daniel Doran, Gerald Brusher, Joe Cupit, Timothy Shea, Charles Moulton and Clifford Russell. The medal is awarded annually for oratory and is the gift of the Rev. Father Cotte, a graduate of the class of '71 from St. Mary's college, now pastor of St. Brigid's Roman Catholic church in San Francisco.

An extension of time for competition in the annual essay medal contest has been granted. Only seniors in the arts department are eligible in this contest. The subject for this year will be "The Catholic Graduate, and Parish Work."

BIG WHEAT DEAL MUST BE PROBED

CHICAGO, May 20.—Officials of the board of trade who have ordered an investigation of the May wheat deal say they are not to be turned from their course by adverse criticism. The committee will make an effort to conduct its investigations so as to report to the directors next Tuesday.

President Geo. A. Markey, of the Armour Grain Company, and A. G. Lictorn, who is generally credited with being the principal in the big May wheat department, are the only members who have been before the committee. The Armour house claims to be acting simply as a commission concern in filling the orders and taking the wheat of May contracts.

WALL ESTATE IN BIG TRANSACTION

Carlton Hotel Involved in Deal, and Exchanged for Business Block.

ALAMEDA, May 20.—The following building permits were issued today by Building Inspector John Davies:

Owner, W. G. LeBoyd; builder, owner; one-story 5-room dwelling at 783 Buena Vista avenue; cost, $1800.

Owner, W. G. LeBoyd; builder, owner; one-story 5-room dwelling, at 779 Buena Vista avenue; cost, $1800.

Owner, Florence N. Reed; builder, D. M. Bitter; one-story 4-room dwelling at 890 Lafayette street; cost $1800.

Owner, C. P. Bailey; builder, C. W. MacRae; alteration to 2040 Buena Vista avenue; cost $330.

Owner, Southern Pacific Company; builder, owner; switching tower on the south side of Harrison street, 850 feet east of Pearl street; cost $1000.

Owner, W. F. Davis; builder, owner; addition to 1213 Post street; cost, $250.

A sale of two large properties has been consummated between the Alameda Land Company for the Wall estate, owner of the Carlton Hotel in Berkeley and Mrs. Emily K. Latham of San Francisco, owner of a six-story reinforced concrete building in Mission street near Fourth street, San Francisco.

Although the terms of the transaction have not been made public, it is understood that the aggregate value of the properties is $350,000.

The Wall estate owns considerable property in this city, the family home being in Lafayette street. The hotel Carlton is one of the largest hotels in Berkeley and is located on the north-west corner of Durant and Telegraph avenues. It occupies a lot fronting on Telegraph avenue 120 feet, extending back along the northerly line of Durant street, 105 feet. It is class C in construction. It was built shortly after the San Francisco fire.

The hotel contains 120 rooms. The Mission street property contains six floors and basement and is reinforced concrete throughout with a curtain wall of brick. It occupies two lots, one fronting on Mission street 40 feet and extending easterly 80 feet. The property is particularly adapted to hotel purposes. There are 35,000 square feet of floor space in the building. The new owners have under consideration several attractive offers of lease of the entire building.

Work on the two new schools in the city is being rushed to completion. Only the interior finishing touches are needed on the Haight School, which will be used for the first time on June 8 when the graduating class of the school will hold its exercises in the assembly hall. The Washington School will be completed in July.

Building is brisk throughout the city and the building inspector reports much activity. Real estate brokers are encouraged with the outlook.

C. C. Adams is erecting a large number of bungalows on the Mastick tract in the West end, many of which have already been sold.

R. C. Hillen, builder, has completed several cottages on Court street in the East end.

NEW BLOCK FOR CITY OF ALAMEDA

Department and Store Building in Course of Construction on Park Street.

ALAMEDA, May 20.—Construction has commenced on a new store and apartment building at the corner of Park street and Enchil avenue for C. C. Boynton. Foundations have been placed and heavy timber construction for a three-story building, but for the present only four stores will be completed; the apartments above to be continued later, and will have the latest improved type of wall beds, refrigerators, wall safes, automatic hot water supply and vacuum cleaners. It is the owner's intention to attract the best class of tenants.

The site of the building is in the heart of the business section of Alameda. It will be ready for occupancy within the coming month. William A. Newman is the architect.

PICTURE SERMON WILL BE GIVEN ON INDIAN

SAN FRANCISCO, May 20.—"The Red Indian" is the subject chosen for a picture sermon by the Rev. William Nat Friend at Howard street Presbyterian Church tomorrow night. It is one of a series of illustrated sermons that are attracting increased numbers to the services and which have aroused the interest of the people of the district in which the church is located.

Mrs. Charles Kerr, the soprano soloist, is the musical director of the choir. Will and John Falconer will accompany the choir on cornet and trombone.

In the morning the sermon will, be on the topic, "But We Preach Christ."

BONDS AND GROWING CITY

Recent Election Means Much to Future Development of Oakland.

Excellent School Standard Has Been of Advantage in the Past.

The real estate men of Oakland are pleased over the passage of the school and auditorium bonds, which means so much for the future of the city. George W. Austin, president of the Oakland Real Estate Association, said:

"No election has ever meant more for Oakland than the passage of the school and auditorium bonds. The city has been justly regarded as the Athens of the coast in regard to education and the new school bonds simply mean the maintaining of that standard. No man knows better than the real estate dealer the value of good schools, as Oakland's standard in the past has operated more strongly than anything else in persuading strangers to locate here. The auditorium I regard as the finishing touch to a municipal development, including the water front, the new city hall, the Oakland hotel and many new stores and office buildings."

Recent sales reported by Austin are as follows:

Lot 100 by 125 on southwest corner of East Thirty-second and Summit streets for D. S. Richardson to John Ferguson.

Lot 80 by 100 on northeast corner of Thirty-second and Union streets, for John Anderson to the S. E. S. Flor de Modocade.

House and lot on Adeline street for Mrs. F. E. Smith to Janie M. Anderson.

Pair of flats, Twelfth street, between Alice and Jackson, for A. Zietlau to Samuel Johnstone and A. Shapran.

Lot 30 by 100 on northwest corner of Forty-ninth street and Coronado street for Jerome Annis to Security Building Company.

Lot on east side of Telegraph avenue, between Twenty-fifth and Twenty-sixth streets, for J. A. Sizer to W. B. George.

House and lot on Eighth street, near Adeline, for Edward Lynch to H. S. McKean.

House and lot on northwest corner Summit and East Thirty-second streets for William Austin to F. A. Macstratti.

Two cottages and lots, 1112 Tenth avenue, for Herlick estate to T. S. Simons.

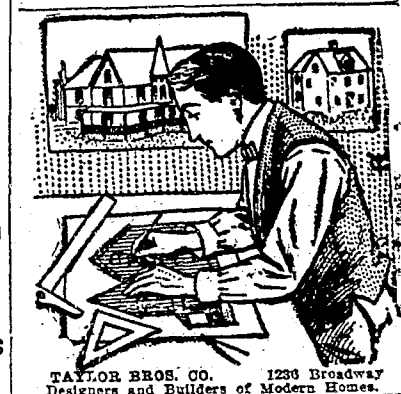

Business corner, store and flats on northwest corner Thirty-fourth and Adeline for J. A. Olsen to N. E. Egan of San Francisco.

Lot 850 by 115, corner of Champion and Haight streets, also 75 by 175 on Flanigan street in Fruitvale, for Sarah L. Corfin to John Anderson.

BERKELEY

BERKELEY IS TO HAVE BIG MARKET

Concrete Building to House It; Will Be Erected on University Ave.

BERKELEY, May 20.—Among the important building enterprises of the spring in Berkeley is the proposed construction of a large market building on University and Shattuck avenues. The building is to be a one-story concrete structure, covering property owned by Mrs. M. E. Sullivan, the lot being 105x115 feet. The property is adjoining that recently bought by Heron was $700 a front foot. A. P. Williams, a real estate dealer, has just short time offered the only other vacant piece of property in the block, a 50-foot frontage, at a time more than half that cost.

Numerous sales of downtown property have taken place recently, although the principal trading continues to be in the dense lots of a high class in the fast-growing suburban sections.

2-story, 8-room building, Claremont boulevard, near Forest, for Mrs. W. R. Seabury; $725.

Alterations to building, 2633 College, for Monroe Starr; $425.

On 1-story, 6-room cottage, Derby near Grant, for E. A. Lund; $1750.

DAHL THOMS AWNING CO.

A modern home is not complete unless supplied with canvas awnings for the windows and porches. They more than save their cost the first three months they are in use. In fact, the cost of an awning does not exceed one-sixteenth part of a cent per day and is therefore a cheap investment. Awnings keep the sun away from the glass, and the result is a cool and comfortable home. If you have a porch or intend to build one you ought to equip it with awnings or curtains as you really cannot sit outside on a windy day without them. Let us fix up a cozy corner for you on your porch and you will be surprised how much better you will feel and how much more you will live out of doors.

HINTS FOR PROSPECTIVE BUILDERS

An Original California Bungalow

An Adaptation of the Best Features in Modern Architecture. Suitable to the Modern Standards of Living, and the Climate of California.

The main idea in planning this bungalow was to admit as much sunshine and make the house accessible to the outdoors as possible. A broad terrace covered with a pergola gives access to nearly all the rooms through French windows. The living-room is finished in fumed oak with hardwood floors, furnished by the Strable Manufacturing Company. The mantel is of mission tile, blending with the color of the walls and covered with Aerochrome paper in rich golden tints. The fixtures are hand-hammered copper, large plate glass window frame pictures of the park in which this house is situated.

The dining-room connects by an enclosed glass and Tarrazza passageway with the living-room. Through this passageway the two bedrooms and bathroom are reached. The bedrooms are finished in delicate blue and white tints and containing up-to-date closets with dust shields, shoe boxes and hat cabinets.

Sleeping Porches

For the sick there is nothing that will make them improve quicker than a sleeping porch, and for the well, it prevents their getting sick.

It has been conceded by our most eminent physicians that everyone who possibly can should enjoy the pure air in their sleeping-room. The simplest and least expensive method which will protect one from the inclemency of the weather and supply the largest possible amount of the best pure air, is one which commends itself for scientific and economic reasons.

A properly constructed sleeping porch, such as shown in the above home, fulfill these conditions more perfectly than anything else. The frame work of these porches is constructed so well that they will last for a long time.

The work was done by the White Wallace Company, on Webster street, Oakland, who have done much of this class of work, and whose name is a recommendation that it is of a satisfactory quality.

The bathroom is complete with sanitary plumbing fixtures, including the famous P. F. Howard solid porcelain lavatory. The kitchen is a model of completeness in labor-saving arrangement and devices. For instance: a place is provided for the washing of vegetables, etc.; next to this is a chute for the disposal of parings and other refuse; the sink has draining shelves; next to the stove is a deep sink for washing of pots and pans, confining all greasy work to this sink. The kitchen is ventilated to the roof top and secures a fresh air supply through screened windows near the ceiling, thus insuring perfect ventilation without fear of drafts and resultant colds. Tradesmen deliver goods into a cooling closet from the outside. Besides a servant's room off the kitchen, the house is provided with a basement containing cement wash trays and Ruud automatic water heater.

Two cement runways are provided from the sidewalk to the rear of the lot for automobile driving.

Lawns, trees and shrubs have been planted, making the house ready for occupancy upon the moving in of furniture.

This house is situated in the unique Colby Park, an exclusive residence district near Idora Park, convenient to the Key Route and Telegraph lines.

It was not built for profit, but to demonstrate the newest ideas in house-building and decorations. The cost with lot is $6000.

This bungalow was designed and built by the Karl H. Nickel Co. of Oakland, who will furnish further particulars and information on application, by mail or telephone Oakland Bank of Savings, telephone Oakland 4552, or A-4952.

The idea for a home that may last a life time, is not only in the architectural beauty of design, but the construction thereof. One that will be of the most substantial material and the best of workmanship. For the convenience of its readers THE TRIBUNE calls attention to the different lines represented by the various advertisers on this page, who are worthy of recognition and patronage.

DON'T SACRIFICE SAFETY FOR SPEED---GET BOTH

These two things are seldom combined. "Haste makes waste," as the old saying goes. Hurry a man and you worry him. And a hurried and worried man is a poor one to rely on for accurate, complete, trustworthy work. Yet there are times when you need an abstract or title quick. Come to us for it. You'll get it "on time" and in fallibly accurate. The reason is simple—we have a set of complete, systematized, accurate records that make quick and correct work easy for us. Without such records, speed and safety would be out of the question for anybody. For your own satisfaction, come in and learn the details.

Our sleeping porches are the latest and best made. The framework of these porches is constructed either of iron pipe or wood, as selected, and covered with striped canvas, the latter of which we have many patterns. The curtains are so constructed with blocks and cords that they may be slid back, hoisted or lowered, to suit the condition of the weather. White-Wallace Co. are fully prepared to build on to your house at any point you may desire a proper frame, and flooring for the porch, or make any alteration necessary.

Is Your Home Comfortably Heated?

My desire is to elevate the standard of warm air furnace installations, and to educate the public to a knowledge of the necessity of pure air in their homes, which can be secured at a reasonable cost, only through the medium of a properly installed warm air heating plant. I firmly believe in a high-grade warm air furnace properly installed, and employ none but first-class mechanics to do this work.

By L. N. COBBLECK, JR.

The red and white of Santa Clara College triumphed over the red and blue of St. Mary's yesterday afternoon when the Santa Clara College track team won the third annual intercollegiate track meet by the close score of 64-57. The hot weather resulted in the breaking of six intercollegiate records and drew a good sized crowd to the St. Mary's stadium.

Being so very close the well handled meet kept the crowd on its toes with first St. Mary's and then Santa Clara holding the lead with the result in doubt until the relay which was won by Santa Clara. Before the relay, which was the last event of the day, the score stood 59-57 in favor of Santa Clara, with the relay to decide the winner. At the report of the gun Hardy, Santa Clara's crack sprinter, leaped into the lead, giving his successive teammate, Gavonin, a small lead. Gavonin held this lead until near the finish of his lap, when he left his lane and touched a team-mate who was waiting for his place in the fourth lap. Seeing his mistake, Gavonin continued after his opponent, who had gained a three-yard lead.

By a spectacular race, Bronson, another crack sprinter of Santa Clara, regained the lost ground and Santa Clara, finished eight yards ahead of its rival from St. Mary's. This race was the crowning climax of a meet which Santa Clara deserved to win.

SPRINTS ARE VERY FAST.

From the start of the first heat of the 100-yard dash to the finish of the last sprint were productive of very fast times and close finishes. Both the 100 and 200 yard dashes were decided by a hair's breadth.

Santa Clara seemed to have all the winners in the sprint races. Hardy and Bronson finishing second and third in the 100-yard dash, and Bronson following first in the 200-yard dash. However, which is conceded to be the hardest race of them all, Martin of St. Mary's beat out Leake of Santa Clara, who formerly held the record, and established a new one. Doran of St. Mary's won a third place.

The 220-yard hurdles were won by Hardy of Santa Clara with his team mate Leake following. Leake held the lead until the last lap, when he was overtaken by Hardy, who won by a wide margin. In the two mile Yoell of Santa Clara took the lead until Scholten, the winner, broke it in the second lap, with King of St. Mary's behind him and Yoell third.

POLE VAULT RECORD BROKEN.

Drier of St. Mary's, a small, limber youth, set the pole vault record up from ten feet one inch to ten feet two, but although he tried several times he was unable to raise this mark. Four men, including Curry, Cannon and O'Connor of Santa Clara and Mallon of St. Mary's, tied for second place.

Bronson of Santa Clara won the broad jump with his team mate Leake following. Leake won the high jump. Wheaton of St. Mary's won the hammer throw in the record distance of 139 feet 10 inches.

Oakland Team Runs Away From Seals for Fourth Time This Week, Winning Series

SLAUGHTER OF SEALS IS REGULAR WITH OAKS NOW

Locals Harpoon Two San Francisco Slabsters for 10 Runs and 16 Bingles

By BERT LOWRY.
LET'S cut out that old stuff about Browning "couldn't come back" and simply say that he couldn't stop the onrushing Oaks. No use to mince words, even if it does hurt all those wisecracks that picked him to annihilate the Oaks and be the stumbling block of the other teams of the league. Browning was easy, very easy, for the locals.

After the game we all went downstairs where Ed Walter, Tite-wadius and the rest congregated to sponge a pass or two and to hear the why and wherefore of the defeat.

Tite-wadius was there as usual with the long harangue about "calling 'em out" at the plate and the ifs came in bunches and drove, but the man who likes to see the best team win will tell you that Oakland was the best club all round, in hitting, in base running and in pitching, and that's why they walked off the field with ten runs, the fourth game of five played and the series.

It is necessary to remark that Brownie Browning was expected to come back after that performance against the Beavers last Sunday, and if a noisy crowd could help you along, then that, too, should help. When he went to the pitcher's mound he was given a royal cheer and hand clap, and the retiring of Pyl, Coy and Maggart in quick order sent his stock to the skies.

This with the one run the Seals grabbed because the Oaks made four boots, added to the public pulse in favor of Browning.

Then came the beginning of the end for Browning and all hopes of the Seals winning for the second game. The Oaks one run on three hits, while in the third inning four hits produced three more runs in the fourth inning, or a total of eight runs and ten hits in four innings.

Up went the signs of the call to the bushes and Cack Henley again went forth to stem the tide, but a slapping of his curves and a few more runs convinced him too that those Oaks were regular demons when it came to swatting the pellet.

TYLER CHRISTIAN PITCHES EXCELLENT BALL FOR LOCALS.

Mr. Tyler Christian who came from Texas when a boy was the Oaks' pitcher and Tyler again hung the big sign on the Ewingites. True they glommed eight hits, but those eight hits weren't a hit of beans the way the Oaks were playing all the time, even if they did make five boots. The Oaks had nice control and while he didn't fan many of his opponents he made 'em hit the ball and some felder was waiting for it.

Never once was he in real danger and when Tennant poked a lucky one out of the lot and chased McArdle home in the eighth inning Tyler simply smiled. He was pitching better than he did on Tuesday, that is he didn't get careless like and let them hit it as he has been his habit.

Tyler though wasn't much of a hand at the bat and felt much relieved that he was the only Oak that didn't get a bingle or more in the game, but as mentioned before, Tyler pitched well, so he shouldn't feel so bad about it.

S. H. Oaks wobble a little bit in the opening round.

San Francisco followed the usual procedure and went to bat first and through four boots-cut 'em-scored four runs. Shaw was up first and McArdle next up hit to Cutshaw and was safe. Weaver then hit to Cutty and he was safe on a boot. Tennant then singled and the bases were filled.

Peacore tried to catch Tennant at first and had him a block but Monte dropped the ball and got a boot.

Powell then hit to Coy and McArdle scored on the putout. Weaver went third and over and over the bag, but Hettling failed to hold the ball and Weaver got back to the bag.

All these fellows were sorry for those boots and told Tyler so and went to the batting cage to convince him of the truth of their statements. On and see how those Oaks gathered those ten runs.

BROWNING'S TROUBLES BEGIN EARLY.

Cutshaw started the second inning by stopping the ball with his fifth hit. Zacher and Hettling singled, putting Cutty at third. Wares missed three and it was up to Pearce and on his infield bunt that nobody could handle quick enough Cutty got over. The next round was awful for Browning. Coy started this with a walk. Maggart's single put him at third and over the pan he went on Cutshaw long double to center. Zacher and Hettling won't then singled scoring Maggart and Cutshaw and to third he hotfooted when Hettling bunted to Vitt and was out at first. Then came Wares with a single and Zacher registered. How many did you ask? Four, mister man, four.

This wasn't the end of Browning by any means for three more Oaks dented the plate in the next spasm of misery for the title.

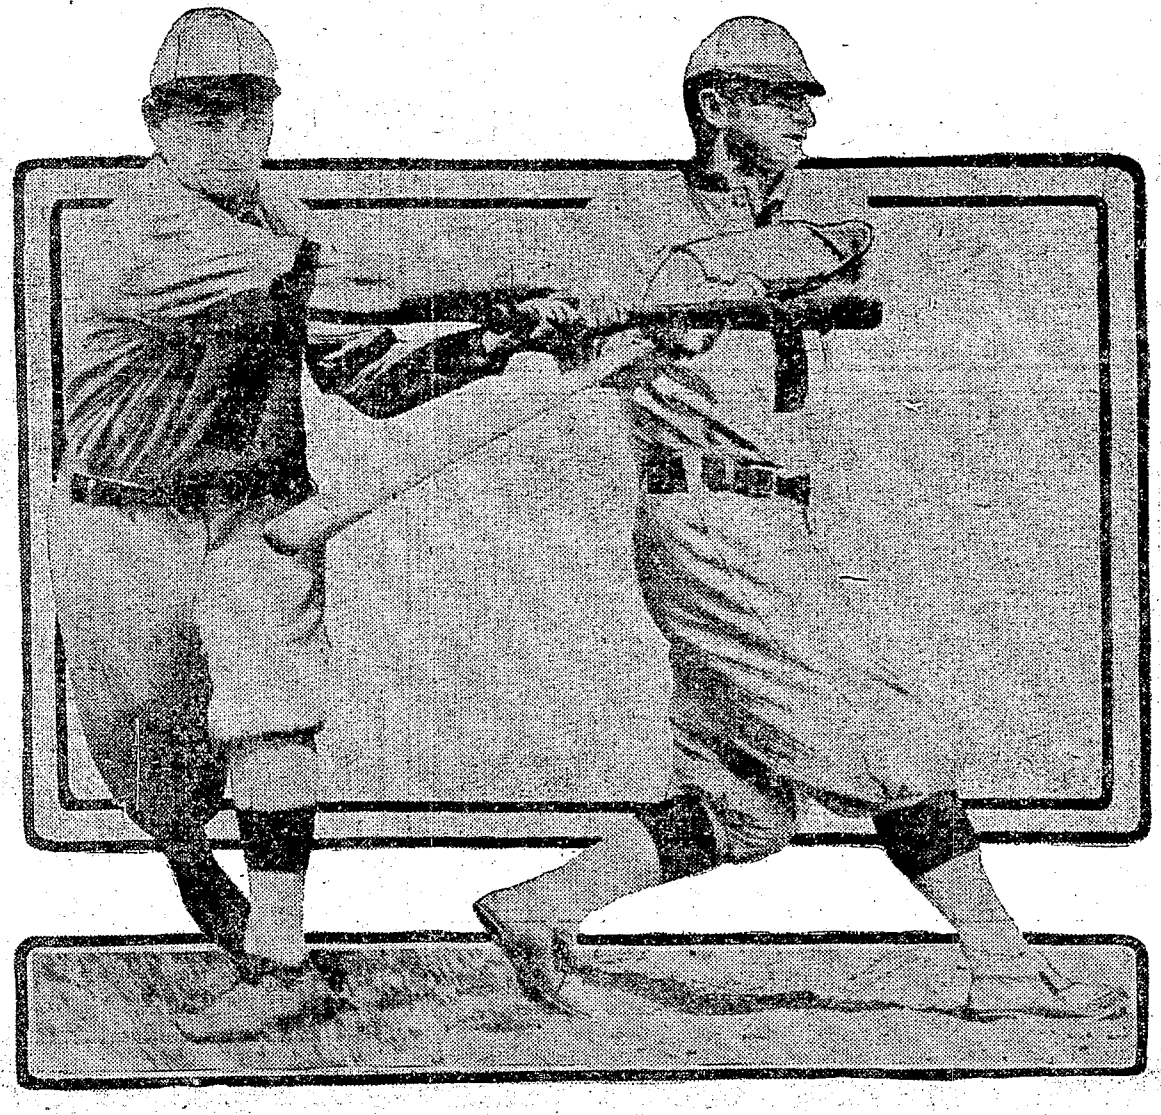

Christian started with a fan and that old hope sprung eternal and so forth, but it was soon rudely shattered for Pyl loosened a board in the dugout and Coy was dangerous and the slabster passed and Maggart then hit to McArdle and he booted filling up the bases. Cutshaw singled and Monte scored. Zacher poked and Maggart to Powell and Coy yelled and Maggart romped to the rubber on Hettling screamer to left.

EXIT MR. BROWNING AND ENTER ONE CACK HENLEY.

Browning had enough. It was his turn to bat in the fifth, but Henley went in and he was a sage for the troubles and a beating in the sixth for his pains.

Coy started this round with a single against the fence and went to third on Maggart's comb to center. Maggart with his bunk uncle tried to reach second and was out, Powell to Mohler. Cutshaw's single put Coy over the pan and then Cutty stole second and third base. Zacher wasn't there this time but don't blame Maggart for that. Hettling was though, and skipped the ball to left far enough away to send Cutshaw to the rubber.

Outfielders Zacher and Coy, Two Valuable Men Who Have But Recently Joined the Oaks, and Whose Batting Has Greatly Helped the Boys Get Up Close to the Beavers.

: GOSSIP OF THE DIAMOND :

By THOMAS DELURY.

Oakland's sons of Swats are doing well and the other teams of the league are beginning to respect the "Wolverines." It is of course the old story when one begins to harp on pitchers, but now that Oakland is bolstering up that staff of theirs they will play a far better game from now on.

Behind these men of the box are as fast a bunch of fielders as there is in the league and the records of the various men prove that. Therefore Oakland's travels toward the top of the heap should be steady now, and barring mishaps I expect to see them there before the 15th of June.

All around the hangouts nothing but the brilliant work of outfielder Zacher or the local. As a felder he ranks with any of them. There is nothing sensational about the man and no grandstand plays does he make but do you notice there are no errors charged against him and he generally gets everything he goes after.

The long suit of the man, though, is his hitting. There is nothing lucky about those swats of his. He meets that ball fair and hand and when it begins to travel it generally travels.

Much comment is being heard anent the cause of the increase of hitting in the league as well as all over the land. Many of the experienced followers of the game are certain that the center ball has much to do with the hitting. They must confess that I have not paid a whole lot of attention to the reasons but in conversation with the baseball editor he forces me to believe that the heavy hitting is due to the fact that many of them have not rounded to as yet.

Next week the much improved Hooligans will be the opponents of the locals on the preserves over the bay and at Freeman Park. Outside of Johnny Kane and Terry McKune there will be but few changes in the team's lineup.

The last time the Hooligans crossed bats with the Oaks the men from the south trimmed our bats to the tune of six to one in the series. With the improvements made in the Oaks and Maggart probably back in the game one is safe to predict that this won't happen the coming week.

San Francisco will hit the road for a week, playing for the first time this season in the north against the Beavers. Sacramento will also take to the road and battle with the Berry Cripples in the south.

The following week San Francisco will be at home to the Angels. Oakland will go north and Sacramento and Vernon will have it out in the south.

Oakland has certainly shown her heels to the San Francisco bunch and every victory this week has been a most decisive one. Yesterday, as on previous occasions, they went tearing after the pitchers of the Seals and gave them a lacing that they won't forget for many days. The heavy hitting of the Oaks but have been unable to do so. Miller has been the only man so far to put a crimp in the winning of the Oaks.

As one glanced over the past performance of the Seals' slabsters they can see that Ewing's men are right now in an awful slump. There is no gainsaying the fact but what Henley, Browning and Suter were all to the good last season but failure has been with them nearly all of this. When these men get right, San Francisco will begin to show their old-time form, but poor pitchers can't win ball games, and that is all there is to it.

Oakland is drawing bigger crowds every game and it has been necessary to build additions to the bleachers and grandstands. These should be in order for the game this morning and it is expected that every new seat as well as the old will have an occupant.

BILLY PAPKE'S RECORD IS HODGE-PODGE OF ARENA

Showing in Australia Not Pleasing to Over-the-Water Fans

By W. W. NAUGHTON

OME of us would like to know if the Australian critics think any better of Billy Papke than they did before he downed the rising young Antipodean fighter, Dave Smith. Papke's ring work was ridiculed by the experts down yonder from the beginning. They pronounced the "Illinois Thunderbolt" a false alarm the first time Dave Smith had won from him on a foul and hard headed Cyclone Thompson had made a punching bag of him, the Australians were puzzled to imagine how Papke had ever made any headway with his fists in his own country. They considered him the poorest apology for a world's champion they had ever set eyes on.

It was rather humiliating for some of us who had seen Papke at his best, and who had warned the Australians to be on the lookout for a high-class exponent of Queensberry pastimes. But it's a long lane that has no turning, and now that Papke has come back to his own, as it were, all necessity for apologies or explanations is done away with.

Of course, if Papke had kept up his poor work to the very last in Australia and it had been necessary to say something in defense of the good reports of him sent thither in the first place, we could have fallen back on the fact that Billy has been an uncertain proposition from the time he first stepped into a ring. The champion "in and out" some call him, but that carries with it a suggestion of chronic crookedness and I do not think that Papke is sinner enough to deserve a reputation of that kind.

The fact remains, however, that Billy is a hodge-podge of strikingly brilliant performances and the most of showings.

GAVE KETCHEL A BEATING.

What a beating he administered to dashing Stanley Ketchel at Los Angeles had him beaten from the first class, as a matter of fact—and what a faint-hearted display he made in subsequent fights with the Michigan Assassin. In one of his affairs in San Francisco the merest tyro of a watcher might have discerned that Ketchel simply kept on going. Both hands were crippled and he just waved his elbows in the air, roundabout the purpose of intimidating Papke, who might have had both arms broken for all the fighting he attempted. Ketchel came to his knees and Papke was called by some a poor general and by others, a chicken-hearted middleweight.

Hugo Kelly has known Papke in all his fighting moods. It has been Hugo's privilege to travel the full twenty-round distance with Papke—perhaps further—and it has been his misfortune to crumble after a few of the fierce lifting punches that Papke has known to deliver. Papke certainly kept up his reputation as an "in and out" across the seas—as he is called in England—on a scale of $100 per working day. And in his opening appearance he pitched 170 balls to batsmen, threw out three runners at first base, and tossed to Henry a couple of times to hold men on the bag.

These latter bits of effort were really throwing money away, as they only agreed to lessen Walter's average earnings per box of spheres, without accomplishing anything.

Some one kept tab on the number of balls Walter Johnson pitched in his first game of the season and figured out that he drew $1 for every ball he pitched. Assuming that he pitched 40 games this year to earn his new salary of $7,000. For each game he pitches he is entitled to wages on a scale of $175 per working day. And in his opening appearance he pitched 170 balls to batsmen, threw out three runners at first base, and tossed to Henry a couple of times to hold men on the bag.

When Papke was in disgrace in San Francisco, owing to a bad-looking fight with Joe Thomas, I asked him how he accounted for the fact that some of his fights he seemed the personification of

Racing Events at Motordrome Promise to Be Speedy and Spectacular.

ARRANGEMENTS MADE TO HANDLE CROWDS

Big Parade of Motorcycle
Riders Last Night as a Preliminary.

Fifty of the fastest motorcycle riders in the country will compete today in eight different races at the Motordrome, the first national championship meet ever conducted by the San Francisco Motorcycle Club. The entire program should furnish one round of thrills the like of which has never been witnessed in any race Californians have seen.

From the very first event, a five-mile novice race, until the last ten-mile professional event, there should be excitement galore. The fastest riders known are among the "pros" who will face each other this afternoon.

Arrangements have been completed for the proper handling of the crowds and no confusion should result to the spectators in getting either to or from the speedway. Weather conditions will undoubtedly be ideal and everything favorable for a most successful afternoon's sport.

The Motorcycle Club has worked hard to make this meet a success and last night crowned these efforts with a splendid turnout in San Francisco, when over three hundred of them rode through the principal streets of the Golden Gate city.

MEN IN CHARGE.

Named as officials to run the meet are the following men, including the leading motorcycle representatives of both sides of the bay: George Payton, referee; George A. Faulkner, Joe Holle and Dr. L. W. Letcher, judges; Walter Collins, starter; C. E. De la Cueva, clerk of the course; C. C. Hopkins, A. Fred, C. W. Woodward, timers; Frank Karslake, W. Beaman and I. E. W. Carey, scorers.

The two professional races will bring together the following well known names: Graves, Seymour, O'Brien, Collins, McNeil, Renel and Letcher. The Indian team are favored because of the daring of the men who will ride them, coupled with the fact that they are to have three machines as against only one from any other company. Graves on a Merkel, if given the pole, will put up a fight that will bring plaudits from the spectators every minute. Morton is a class by himself on a dirt track and has a machine which is peculiarly adapted to this kind of speed work. On the board track some of the other riders have a little advantage over him which the Merkel boy has to fight hard to overcome. In spite of this drawback, he can be looked upon for a good showing.

Next to Graves, Seymour and Collins are the likely winners, both being mounted on exceptionally fast twin cylinder bikes. McNeil on a Thor has never had a real good opportunity to show what he can do when pitted against the best in the field, at least around these parts. In Salt Lake last summer he was a consistent winner and showed his wheels many a time to such stars even as Jake De Rostler. All week long McNeil has worked faithfully on the Motordrome saucer and should be riding in good form this afternoon.

Mr. Croser, president of the San Francisco club, promises a promptness in the running of the races which will please everyone.

A MOTORCYCLE WEDDING.

The motorcycle, having once figured vitally and successfully in an elopement, now comes to the front as one of the central figures in a quiet, orderly, prearranged wedding.

The other two figures were Frederick Kaylor and Miss Rose Grover Parker, of a Canada, Cal. They mounted a tandem motorcycle and whirled away to San Bernardino where they were united in marriage. Their wedding trip was the return trip home made through thirty miles of California moonlight.

One-third of the Cars Made in 1912 Will Be Sold in California.

There is no question of the great importance that the eastern automobile manufacturing industry attaches to the Pacific coast trade. One of the most tremendous evidences of this is found in a statement just made by C. E. Henderson, president of the Henderson Motor Sales Company, national distributors for the Cole car, in which he declares that approximately a third of the Cole output for 1912 has already been assigned by contract to the Pacific coast dealers. This assertion was made for publication by Mr. Henderson, immediately upon his return to Indianapolis from his recent western trip. Mr. Henderson said further that the west is presenting some important features for the development of the automobile industry, and the future promises great returns to the manufacturers from that section of the country.

C. E. Henderson, vice-president and manager of the Henderson Motor Sales Company, general sales agents of the Cole Motor Car Company, Indianapolis, Ind., has just returned from an extended western trip. In an interview, he cites many important points in connection with western automobile progress.

It was gratified to note a marked improvement in western conditions, said Mr. Henderson, "particularly as it relates to the automobile industry. Even in Texas, where the slump of last year was more noticeable than in any other place, there is now quite a nice business being done."

"The automobile world was impressed with the conservatism of Texas, when, backed up by the banks of that state, the people there quit buying automobiles nearly a year ago. The whole world was impressed with the growth of that conservatism, which resulted in almost an entire stoppage of business. There is quite a different feeling, however, in Texas at this time. I had occasion to talk to some of the leading bankers and business men and they agree that the coming season should be a good one in Texas."

"In Los Angeles, San Francisco and Portland I found conditions to be particularly good. These cities are peculiarly blessed in many ways. There is a surprising fact there should be more automobiles running in that territory, in proportion to the population, than in any other section of the country. When one considers their climate, the reason is not hard to find. The millions and millions that are being spent on good roads, which are kept oiled the season round in the greater part of California, it is not surprising that the average citizen owns a machine and uses it for the benefit of his family and his business."

"I was struck with the fact that the Pacific coast trade demands a better machine and machine and better equipment than does the eastern trade. This is probably accounted for by the fact that the average westerner makes more money, spends more money, and therefore puts more of it into his automobile and its equipment."

"I talked with a number of ranchmen and with some of the fruit growers, and they live a great distance from the railroads, and to my surprise learned that while hundreds of machines are used by that class of men in the west, still only a small portion of them are supplied with automobiles. We are therefore, quite hopeful of doing a large business in that section for 1912, and, in fact, for several years."

"On the Pacific coast I found a greater interest in automobile racing than in any other section of the country. In addition to the famous one-mile board track at Los Angeles, there is now a half-mile motordrome constructed of wood at Oakland, near San Francisco. One or two other motordromes are now being talked of for Seattle, Portland and Denver. In my opinion manufacturers will do well to direct some of their racing efforts to the Pacific coast for the coming season."

ROADS TO FRESNO ARE GOOD.

Mr. Rob Boyer has just returned in his Pope-Hartford from a tour of Kern and San Joaquin counties. He was accompanied by his tour by Mrs. Boyer. He gives out the following information concerning the roads from this city to Fresno: From Oakland to Banta, via Livermore and Altamont, the roads are fine; from Banta to Lathrop, a distance of about five miles, there is a stretch of about a mile, of very bad plowed roads over which travel at high speed is out of the question. From Lathrop to Fresno the roads are splendid. On either side of the river the roads are in good shape just now and the trip for an automobile is an enjoyable one.

FRANK CARY GOES EAST.

Mr. Frank Cary, of the local Studebaker branch, accompanied by Mrs. Cary, left last night for a six weeks' tour of the eastern part of the country. Canada will be visited among other points. The first stop the couple will make will be at Salt Lake City. From this point they will go to Denver, then direct to the Studebaker plant in South Bend, Ind. After a visit of about a week in this city, the journey will continue on to Detroit with the E. M. F. factory as the destination.

MOTORCYCLE NOTES.

A motorcycle club is being formed in St. John, N. B.

The Cleveland, O., Motorcycles club has gained forty new members in the last three weeks.

The Federation of American Motorcyclists, through G. H. Hamilton, chairman of the legal action committee, is assisting the motorcyclists of New York state to defeat a proposed tax of $5 per centum on motorcycle bill, pending this tax has been introduced into the state legislature.

It is likely that Detroit will soon have a motorcycle "saucer."

The Akron, O., Motorcycle club will have three summer meets—May 27, June 1 and September 8.

Only two of the fifteen starters in the Worcester Motorcycle club's Providence-Boston triangle run were compelled to withdraw on the road. All of the others covered the 130 mile course.

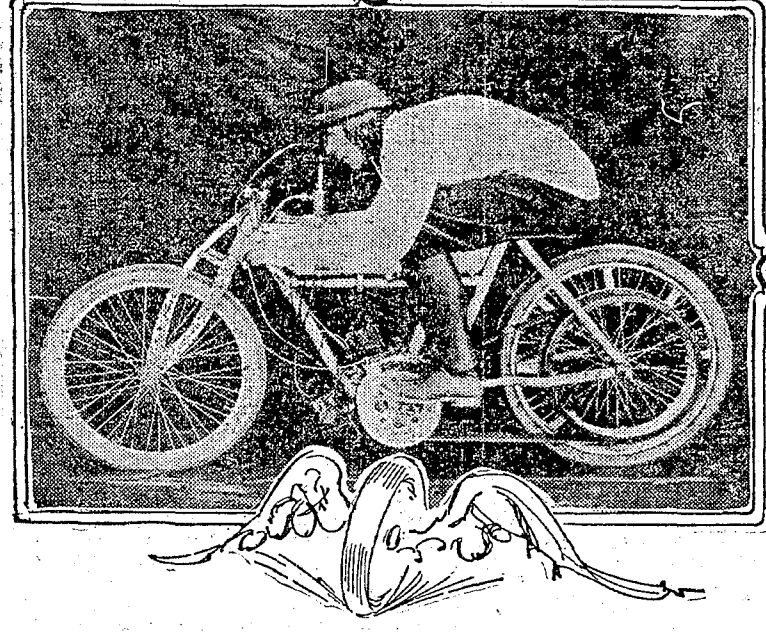

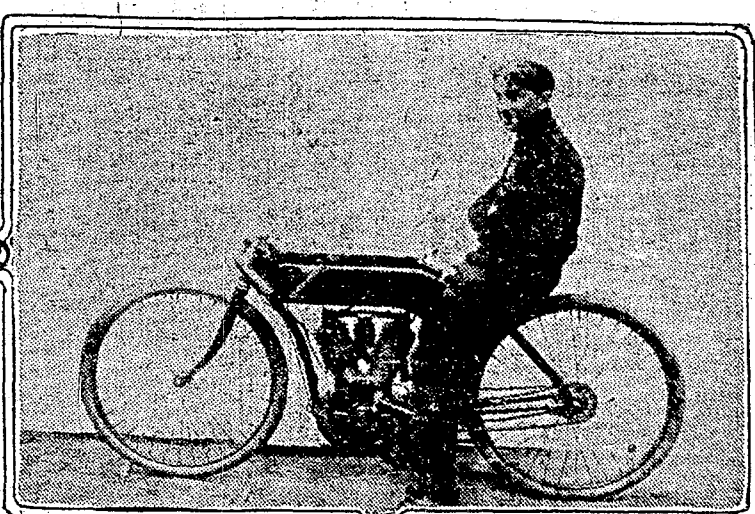

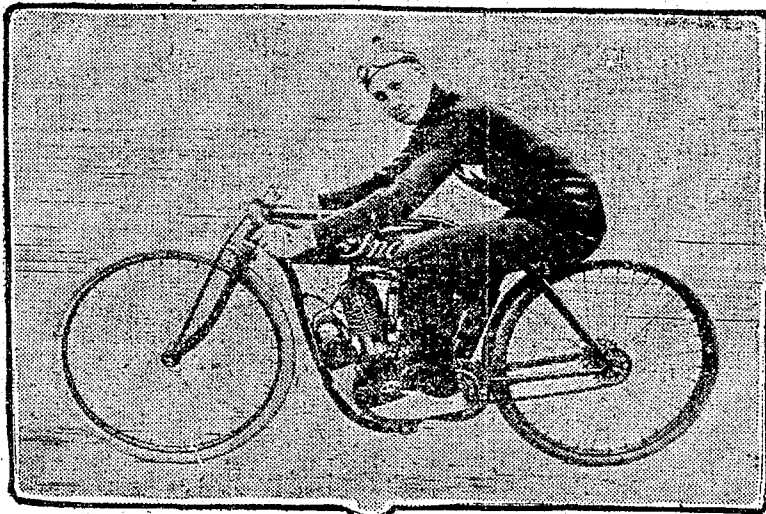

The Cedar Rapids Motorcycle club will hold race meets each Thursday and Sunday, having leased the Marion race track.

A race meet on the Fourth of July is being planned by the members of the Jacksonville, Fla., Motorcycle club—most of whom are well-known Jacksonville business men.

An endurance run will be held by the Springfield, O., Motorcycle club. A race meet is planned for July 4.

MOORE RETURNS FROM NORTH.

George W. Moore, Pacific Coast representative for the New York Lubricating Oil Co., has just left for Seattle on a business trip in connection with his company's general lubricating lines. While gone he will attend to a large delivery of oil to the United States government authorities at Fort Bremerton, Wash.

PACKARD MAKING LARGER FACTORY

Increase of Trucks Necessitates Adding Additional Room.

In an effort to keep up with the demand for trucks, the directors of the Packard Motor Car Company of Detroit have authorized new construction which will practically triple the capacity of the truck shops. By distributing parts of the work to other portions of the plant the company has been able to produce three trucks a day. The increase in facilities will give the truck shops proper a normal capacity of five trucks a day, which is needed to keep up with the orders at the present rate.

The company has decided to make public service vehicles a part of its standard output. Hitherto individual orders have been taken under the classification of special construction. The results attained in police, fire and ambulance service have been so satisfactory that it has been decided to make this line of cars a standard feature of the Packard line.

With improved facilities and proposed increase in output, the company has furnished Packard dealers with a regular schedule of prices for fire patrols, fire police patrols, fire squad wagons and combination hose and chemical wagon with standard and special equipment.

BUSINESS MEN NEED MOTOR CARS

Chalmers Agent Discusses the Benefits Accruing From Use of Auto.

"The modern business or professional man cannot afford to deny himself the many advantages of a motor car," said O. B. Leonhart, manager of the local branch of the Pioneer Auto company, yesterday. "A good car puts a man ahead of his competitors in his chosen field. The man with a car immediately is recognized as progressive and successful."

The man with a motor car is usually healthier; he gets more exercise, absorbs more fresh air. Consequently he is better equipped for the day's work.

"He goes to his office or store in the morning with the sparkle of sunshine and fresh air in his brain. The tasks of the forenoon are easy to his fresh, clear mind. At luncheon time he may take a spin home, or into the country, no matter where he goes, the fresh air is a tonic which rests and rebuilds him. And at night he has a pleasant ride home to dinner, arriving with brain and body refreshed and with a keen appetite for the evening meal."

In the regular routine of business the man with a motor car has an advantage over the man without one. His efficiency is doubled; the time he saves gives him the working margin of a few men. Then, too, a motor car is a sign of progress, of success, of responsibility. Opportunity knocks louder and more frequently at the door of a man with a good motor car."

Of course, a poor car is worse than no car at all. But there are lots of good cars—good and reasonably priced—which are a good investment for any man. These cars are tried in contests and in the hands of owners of cars of reputation. I advise all progressive business and professional men to consider the advantages of a motor car. I shall be glad to help anyone considering the purchase of an automobile, with suggestions and advice, whether or not they buy a Chalmers car."

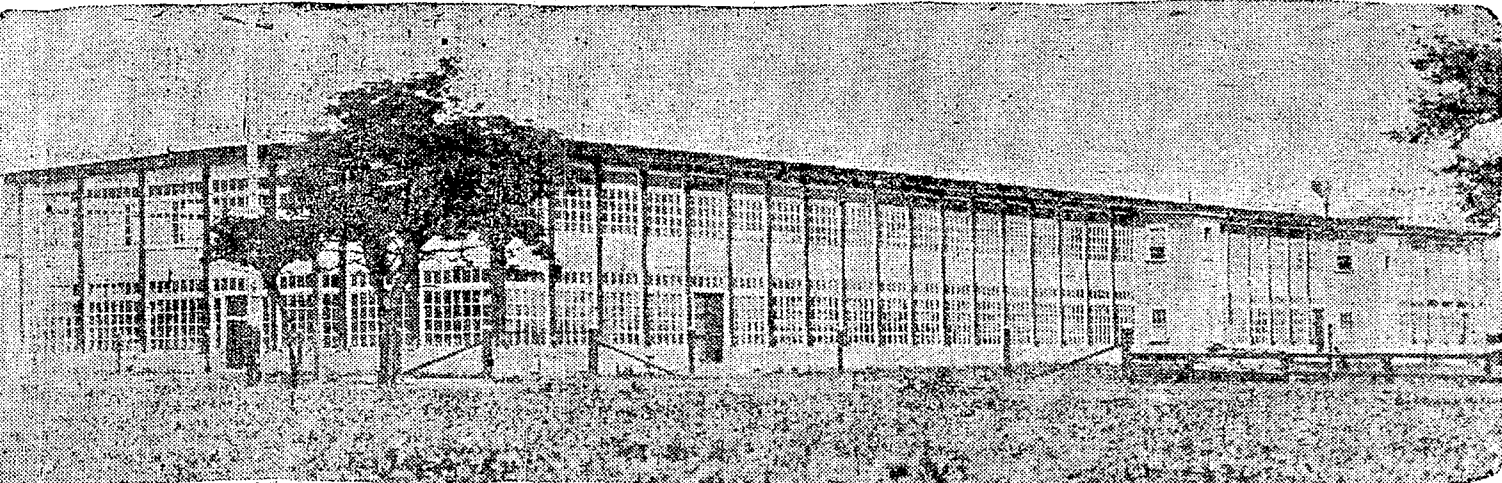

AUTOMOBILISTS WOULD FERRY ACROSS STRAITS

MARTINEZ, May 20.—Within a short time Superintendent Whitney of the Southern Pacific will visit Vallejo Junction, and there meet members of the Vallejo Automobile Club and Solano county supervisors for the purpose of conferring with them as to the advisability of allowing automobiles to be transported on the steamers El Capitán across the straits. The party will also visit Martinez, where further investigation will be made.

AUTOMOBILE FACTORY

A Brand New Industry For Oakland

Home of the California Motor Car Co.

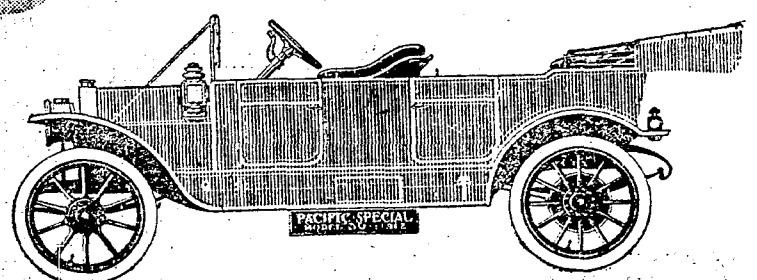

The increasing annual expenditures by Californians for automobiles has made it advisable to establish a factory that will diminish the financial drain on the State, and at the same time turn out cars equal in quality to those shipped from the East. With this end in view, several well-known business men incorporated The California Motor Car Company, and decided upon Oakland as the best location for factory site and shipping facilities.

Arrangements have been made to purchase and equip the building shown above, and to start building a model car that will be known as "Pacific Special," to be retailed at $1750. The body of the car will be built complete at the factory, but engines, axles and gears will be bought from the manufacturers of the best standard makes. When completed the finished car will possess all the good qualities of imported cars.

The prices to be established will guarantee sales ahead of the full plant capacity for the first year. Plant expansion will keep pace with the demand for the product, and as the output increases the dividends to stockholders will increase.

The California Motor Car Company invites the citizens of Oakland to take an active and financial interest in the factory. The company is incorporated under the laws of California for $250,000, divided into that many shares, at the par value of $1 each. Most of the stock has been subscribed, but no money has been called for on subscriptions. No call will be made for cash until the subscription lists are closed, and subscribers will not risk organization expenses. It is expected that stock subscriptions will close in time to enable the company to begin the delivery of cars by September 1.

The gentlemen who organized The California Motor Car Company, and who now ask you to subscribe to its stock, invited full investigation on the part of the Oakland Chamber of Commerce. A special investigating committee was appointed and after due investigation a favorable report was made. The report is on file in the office of the secretary of the Oakland Chamber of Commerce.

Every new manufacturing industry added to Oakland helps to increase and maintain the general retail business. An automobile factory means a substantial increase of well-paid skilled labor, much of which must come from the East. When other lines of business or manufacture stagnate the output of the automobile factory continues just the same.

The time for closing stock subscriptions, should be very short, so that the factory wheels may be started, and Oakland assume the front rank of the automobile industry on the Pacific Coast.

Subscriptions for stock will be received either at the Union Savings Bank, Oakland, the Bank of Fruitvale, or at the office of The California Motor Car Company, 207 Kohl building, San Francisco.

Talks on Teeth

BY REX DENTAL CO.
(Incorporated.)

The Square Deal

Letters of appreciation telling of our ability to restore teeth through the Alveolar Method, teeth without the use of plates or bridge work, continue to come to us in almost every mail.

The testimonial letter of which the following is a copy, not only testifies to the comfort and satisfaction which this lady receives from her teeth, but also bears witness to our "square deal" method of doing business.

A business is built up by keeping the "square deal" factor foremost between the business house and its patrons.

In other words, we consider it good business policy to not lose sight of the patient who has entrusted his work into our keeping after his work is completed.

These are the tactics that go to build up the most valuable asset that a business of this kind could possess—viz., an army of satisfied patients who have spent their money with us and who write us, in after years, to tell us that they consider it the best investment they ever made.

Read this letter:

Rex Dental Company.

I am writing this to say that I am perfectly satisfied with the work I had done by the Rex Dental Company, Oakland. It has been over two years since the work was done, and the work is still satisfactory. The company has done everything as they agreed to, their charges are not high, and I will continue to have all my dental work done by them.

MRS. H. S. BARNES.
1355 Haste St., Berkeley, Cal.

When we undertake to restore missing teeth through the Alveolar Method of teeth restoration, it is not a question of merely getting the money and turning out the work in the quickest possible time, although we work expeditiously at all times, but we try, as far as lies in our power, to make each and every patient who goes out of our office a walking advertisement for us. This is the strongest as well as the cheapest advertising that we could possibly buy, and we could never buy such testimony where we had not made good and lived up to our promise in every particular.

If you are having teeth troubles or if you are wearing a partial plate or a bridge, and are tired of these makeshifts and would like to have a full set of teeth upper and lower in your mouth that would be as sound and serviceable as nature's teeth, we are at your service.

We make no promises that we cannot fulfill. If we agree that we can successfully restore the teeth that you have lost you may rest assured that we will do so.

The work is not painful at any stage. Calls for no surgery, no incision, no pain, no discomfort whatever.

When it is completed you can begin to use these teeth the same day that you leave our office, and you will continue to use them as this woman and thousands of others have done and are doing daily, for the rest of your life.

Surely such statements as these, if true, mean a great deal to you. The only way that you can find out about the truth of them is to allow one of our examining dentists to make a thorough diagnosis of your case. This will cost you nothing, and will not obligate you to have any work done at all.

If you cannot call, however, send for our free book on the subject of Dentistry.

Free Pulse Diagnosis

The human pulse is a perfect index to the condition of the human system, in health or in sickness. But only one school of medicine in the world has learned how to read it correctly in every case, proof of which can be ascertained by any one by calling on Dr. T. Foo Yuen, president of the Foo and Wing Herb Co., ex-officio physician to the Emperor of China, possessing the highest credentials of any doctor practicing in the United States, papers for which can be seen at our office, with nearly 20 years' experience with the American public, numbering many prominent people among his friends. He has phenomenal power to locate disease by this method, together with the Chinese remedies equally remarkable for their curative power.

To those who are suffering from chronic diseases that have been given up by other doctors, you are urged to call and find out for yourself what can be done for you. Remember it costs you nothing to see the doctor and have your case diagnosed and receive free a 200-page book the doctor has published.

CLASS 'AEGIS' TO BE ONE OF BEST IN SCHOOL HISTORY

FRANK GILLAM, editor of class "Aegis."

The semi-annual edition of the "Class Aegis" published by the graduating classes of the Oakland high school will make its appearance Monday evening, when it will be on sale at the Macdonough theater during the presentation of "The Cabinet Minister," in which play will be seen prominent high seniors.

Edited by Frank Gillam and including many entirely new features, the "Class Aegis" will probably be one of the best papers ever issued by a graduating class. The cover will be executed in blue and white, the Oakland high school colors, and drawn by Anita Miller of the art staff.

The pictures of the members of the faculty and of the school will be artistically arranged, while the photos of the graduates will be prepared in an entirely different way than hitherto. This edition has been dedicated to Prof. W. A. Stafford, head of the mathematics department.

Many clever stories by Mignon de Neuf, Alexandra Seavy and Ross Smith will also be included along with a large josh department.

The class prophecy will be prepared by Jean Soupham, and the class history by Hester Cooke. Many cuts will be furnished by Caroline Lovejoy, Kenneth Marr, Ethel Schellhaas and many others of the art staff.

ARCHITECTS WILL GATHER AT TABLE

Prominent Members to Speak on Summer Activities as Planned by Club.

The Oakland Architectural Club will give a dinner to its members and friends tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock at the St. Mark Hotel.

Prominent speakers will deliver addresses and the prospective activities of the club for the summer will be entered upon. The organization stands for and is actively engaged in the study of architecture and engineering in class work and lectures given by the university professors and other professional men. It is intended that these classes shall be free to members henceforth.

Many prominent business men of Oakland are interested in the work and scope of the club and are lending their moral and financial support in order that it may be conducted on a broad and effectual basis.

The club rooms are located at 127 Telegraph avenue. A reception to members and friends will be held on the first Monday night of each month.

HIGH SCHOOL PUPILS TO GIVE MASQUERADE

The Oakland High School Dramatic society will give a masquerade ball the evening of May 27 at the school gymnasium when the room will be elaborately decorated in green and red, the club's colors. The committee in charge is composed of James Hahn, chairman; Miss Edna Bassett, Miss Marion Firger, Chester De Lancy and Edwin Garthwaite.

The officers of the High School Dramatic society who will assist in the affair, follow: Roy Anderson, president; Miss Marion Hook, secretary; Miss Alice Leigh, treasurer; Kenneth Hobart, student's council representative; Henry Petray, sergeant-at-arms; Roy Anderson, James Hahn, Henry Oliphant, Miss Alice Elliott and Arthur Mitchell.

EAGLES' BIG SHOW TOMORROW NIGHT

Three Performances Scheduled by a Company of Selected Amateurs.

Oakland Eagles will give their annual show at the Macdonough theater tomorrow and Tuesday evenings with a special matinee on Memorial Day. The program is long and varied, consisting of three distinct parts. The talent comprises the best of the amateurs on the east side of the bay.

The first part represents the lawn of Squire Brushleigh's home where the Eagles and their wives have gathered for an outing. Several clever bits of comedy are worked through the scene while no less than twenty people will take part in this section, representing all kinds of comedy characters from an old maid to the "terrible kid." The act ends with a chorus number, "Absinthe Frappe."

The second part will include a bright musical sketch entitled "Looking for a Wife," in which several songs and choruses interpolated from popular musical comedies will be incorporated. Mrs. Jack Herr will have several solo numbers.

STRUCK DOWN BY NEGRO, HE CLAIMS

When Peddler Objected to Being Run Down, Says He Was Assaulted.

Samuel Richmond, a peddler, objected because, according to his allegations, J. Rutherford, a negro chauffeur, ran him down and narrowly missed wrecking his wagon. The negro jumped from his automobile and attacked Richmond, the latter claims, beating him about the face and head and leaving him stunned on the street.

Richmond, who resides at 1913 Union street, went to the police station with the blood streaming from four cuts about the face and scalp. A John Doe warrant was issued for Rutherford, who was arrested late yesterday afternoon. He will appear for arraignment Monday morning.

Mrs. James O'Leary will have several numbers and Miss Ruth Burnham a character dance. The program will end with the "Uncle Sammy Girls," a fancy dress patriotic number.

SAN LEANDRO FETE COMMENCES ON JUNE 9

GAY CARNIVAL WILL RULE
SUPREMEFlags and Flowers to Gladden Streets of Suburban Town.Fun and Frolic, Music and Mirth to Have Free Hand.

SAN LEANDRO, May 20.—With mirth and music, San Leandro, decked in all her summer glory, will open wide her portals on the evening of June 9 in welcome to the countless thousands who flock here every year to participate in the cherry carnival and to view the wonderful orchards of this locality. That this affair will be one of the greatest and largest point of attendance that has ever been held in this section of the state seems assured. Arrangements have been made with one of the largest firms of decorators on the coast to supply a class of gala attire it will be difficult to surpass.

Myriads of electric lights will twinkle between the branches of the trees which line the streets. Like the stars they will send their faint glow over the revelers from their sky-like background of pale green. Estudillo avenue, one of the most beautiful thoroughfares in the state, will be turned into a nautic dancing pavilion, with the entwining branches of the trees overhead screening the dancers like a curtain from the night air.

From telephone and telegraph poles from the western limits to the eastern city line will flutter flags of all nations, while every dwelling and business block will be covered with bunting and flags. At night many of the residences will be outlined with various colored incandescent globes. Cherries will be in evidence everywhere, and any visitor who leaves the town empty-handed without having tasted of some of the luscious fruit which has made San Leandro famous, will be a loser and have but himself to blame.

TIME WELL CHOSEN.

The time of year for holding this unique affair has been well chosen. It is the time when the juicy black cherries hang from the trees in clusters and tantalize the passerby with their lusciousness. Farmers and ranchers and even business men, who have but a few days more to harvest, have joined in this year's carnival work and intend to do all in their power to see that the visitor is well taken care of. And lest it be forgot, let this be a reminder that there will be a bumper crop this year.

The vote for the queen, who will be placed upon the throne to rule over the revelers, has been falling off of late. Many of the young ladies who are the best of the town are harkening as candidates, have dropped out for some unaccountable reason, and the committee will meet tomorrow afternoon in an effort to decide whether it would be best to elect a queen and king or let the contest go on.

The plan most in favor is to revive that custom of the old Portola days in San Francisco and appoint some stately young woman to the position of queen, who will make a grand appearance upon a horse. Her royal robes are to be of snow white material, tall-ornamented to her measure. Her consort will also be of a like character.

At 7:30 o'clock of the evening of the opening day of the fete Mayor J. J. Gill will press the button in the lobby of the city hall which will cause the myriads of lights to flash forth. Following this, at 8:30, the lights will be turned off and the city will be illuminated only by the large quantities of green and red fire and the spurts of light from the fireworks. During this unique feature of the fete, the parade around the plaza will take place headed by the king and queen-elect.

THE GRAND BALL.

At 9:30 the grand ball will be opened in Masonic temple under the direction of E. R. Ober, as floor manager. Dancing will continue until 12 o'clock. This hall is one of the best equipped of any of the Masonic lodge halls, being finished in solid oak and gold leaf. This finish, however, will be covered from the floor to the ceiling by a mass of palms and other greens, while numerous hanging baskets will be suspended by invisible cords from the ceiling. The dancers will trip the measures of waltz and tango to the strains of a hidden string sextet.

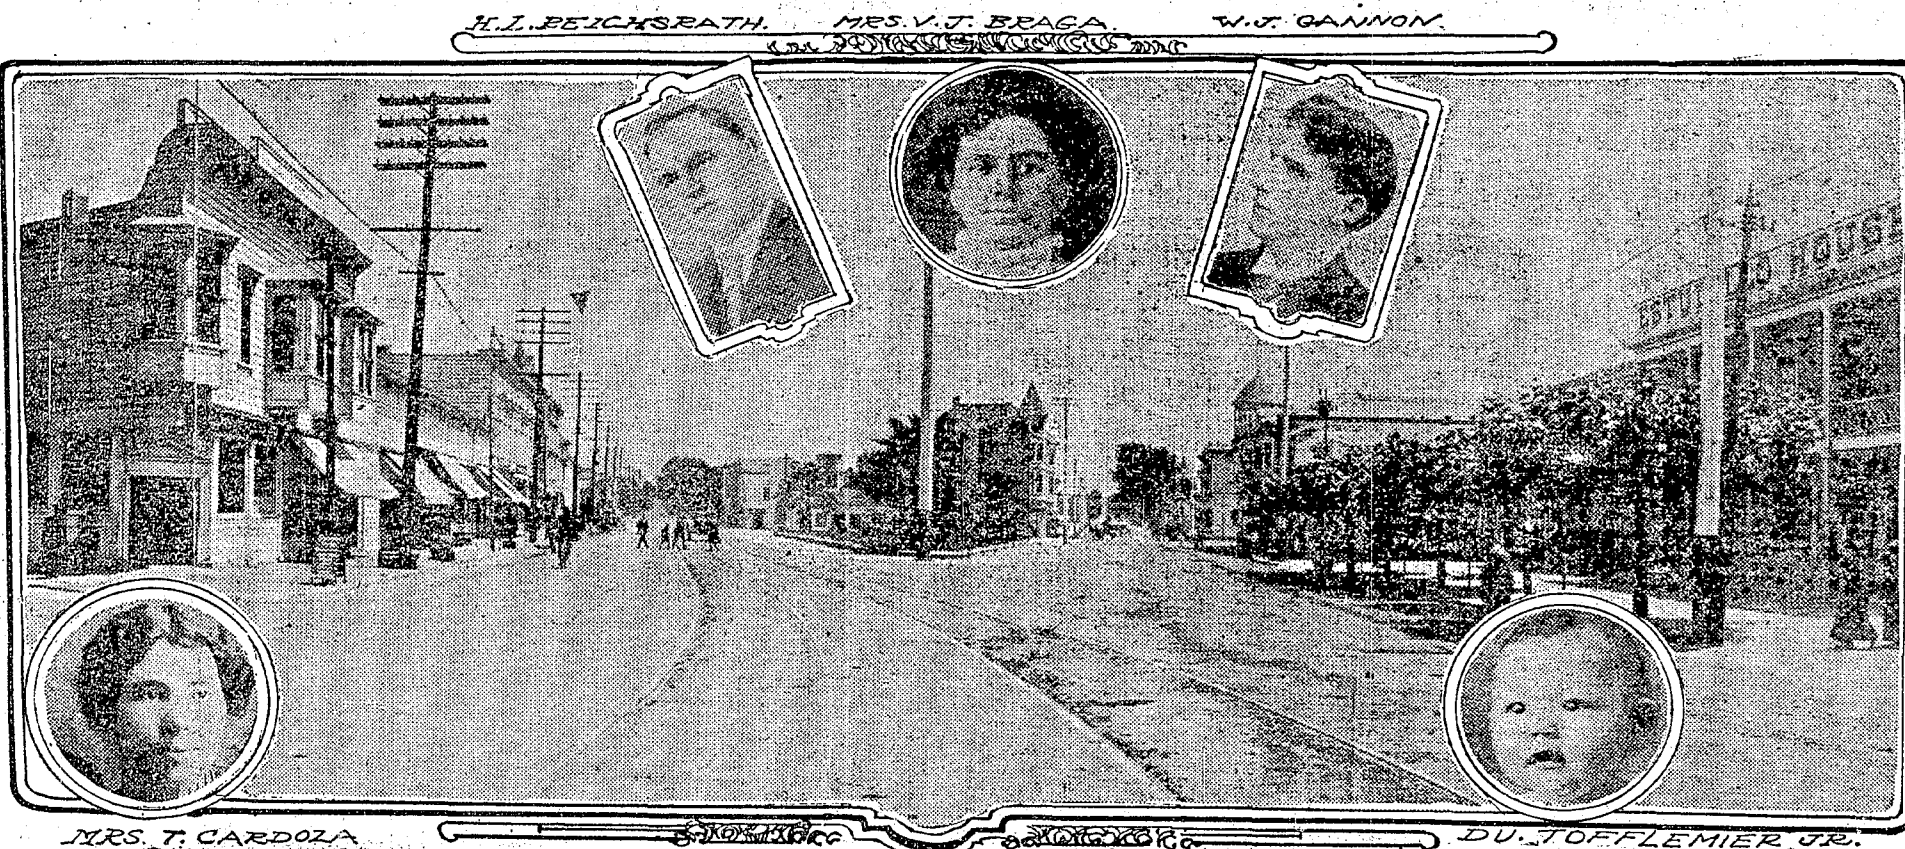

The following day, Saturday, will be full of thrills. From 6 o'clock in the morning until any time at all in the next morning the fun will be in full swing. A salute of thirteen guns will herald the breaking of day from the town plaza, reminding some of the older citizens who are war veterans of the time when that same old gun was in good working order and did its duty well.

At 8 o'clock the largest flag will be raised on the highest pole in the state, while the chief of police will take the town in the name of the state. Following this the members of the San Leandro Boys' Club will go through a series of athletic performances under the direction of Joseph Nill.

CROWNING OF ROYALTY.

The royal couple will meet their dais at 11 o'clock amid the roll of drums and the sound of martial music and will be crowned with all the pomp and display attendant to royal parties. Who will act upon the committee for the occasion and perform the ceremony of crowning has not yet been decided, but it is believed that it lies between the chairman of the general committee and the grand marshal. Just after the coronation twenty girls, picked from the best talent of the San Leandro grammar school, will dance the May-pole dance opposite the royal platform.

to Build Annex to Hospital

SAN MATEO, May 20.—Mrs. White-law Reid, wife of the Ambassador to Great Britain, after a controversy of long standing with the San Mateo High School trustees, has succeeded in acquiring from them a tract of land adjoining the Red Cross Guild Hospital, fronting on El Camino Real, San Mateo, where she will erect an annex to the institution and a school for nurses at a cost of $100,000.

A majority of the school board that opposed the deal today became convinced that public sentiment favored Mrs. Reid's project, with the result that it has been agreed that the land be sold to the hospital for $4000.

June 8 a district meeting will be held at the San Mateo High School to ratify the action of the board so that the transaction will be completed in accordance with the law.

DECLINED TO SELL.

The trustees declined to sell the school property, much to the chagrin of the society matron, and until the present time her plans for improvements have been blocked.

take place between the hours of 12 noon and 2 and 4 and 6 in the afternoon. During that time the merry-makers will be invited to eat all they can hold of the luscious fruit and take home what they can carry. There will be plenty for all, and no one need be without. The farmers and ranchers have attended to this portion of the program.

THE GRAND PARADE.

At 2:30 the grand parade and floral festa will form in the streets adjacent to the court square and take the following course:

Down Davis street to Hayward avenue to Estudillo avenue, to Estudillo avenue to Santa Clara street, countermarching on Estudillo avenue, to Hayward avenue, out Hayward avenue to Saunders street, to San Lorenzo avenue, down San Lorenzo avenue to Haas avenue, countermarching to Davis street and disband.

The grand Mardi Gras and confetti battle will take place at 8 o'clock and will continue until the wee sma' hours on Estudillo avenue beneath the branches of the overhanging trees. The revelers in their sport will be lighted by the glow of the myriads of electric lights tucked away snugly between the branches of the trees. The dance will take in nearly the entire street from Hayward avenue to the boulevard. The floor of the street is as hard as any dance hall floor and as smooth as glass, permitting perfect ease while dancing. At least three bands and perhaps more will be used to furnish music for this fete alone.

One of the most remarkable features of the carnival was decided upon this afternoon, when one of the committees mentioned that it would be novel to hold a baby show in the parade. Residents are requested to enter their children in this section of the pageant. Word was also CHICAGO, May 20.—Under cover of a storm which drew a pall of darkness over Chicago and precipitated a deluge of rain, six convicts at work in the stone yard, made their escape from the state penitentiary at Joliet this afternoon. Running from the ranks of fellow prisoners while the storm was at its height and blinding sheets of water fell, they climbed an 8-foot board fence surrounding the enclosure and disappeared in the railroad yards to the south.

An hour after the storm two were found hiding in a coal car in the Elgin, Joliet & Eastern railroad yards. Warden Murphy said today that it was fortunate that more of the prisoners did not escape.

NEW YORK, May 20.—President James G. Cannon of the Fourth National Bank of this city, who has just returned from a 9000-mile trip through the West, which carried him to twenty-one cities and eighteen states, is enthusiastic over the solid foundation of the business of the Pacific Coast. He met and talked with the leading business men and bankers of all the cities he visited. He said today he found the general basic conditions of the country excellent. The banking situation was in excellent shape.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 20.—Suddenly embracing his victim as she was walking along Washington street near her home late this afternoon, a bold thief snatched the purse of Miss Essie Levy of 2333 Washington street, and escaped. The purse contained $3.80. Miss Levy raised an outcry and several men and boys chased the thief, as did Detective George Cassell, who was in the neighborhood. The purse-snatcher eluded around several corners and finally dodged his pursuers.

8000 BODIES OF
BE MOVEDExhuming Likely to Cost
$80,000 and Shipping
One Million

SAN FRANCISCO, May 20.—If the Six Chinese Companies succeed in obtaining permits to exhume 8000 bodies of Chinese buried at Colma it may cost them $80,000, and it will cost $1,000,000 to land these bodies in China for interment in the Flowery Kingdom. The companies are being encouraged morally and financially by the imperial government to have the bodies exhumed.

A representative of Carroll Cook and William Hoff Cook, attorneys for the Asiatic organization, appeared before Recorder Harold Heiner in Redwood City, to secure a permit to exhume the body of Hop Lee, which was denied.

Under an old ordinance $10 must be paid for each permit of that nature. For the 8000 bodies the Six Companies would be compelled to pay $80,000, and rather than pay this large sum a test case will be made.

Superior Judge James T. Casey of Colma, who was asked for a permit covering all the bodies, insists that the law be lived up to. Heiner declined to issue the permit, as the application was to pay the $10.

The Cooks are making an effort to change the burial ordinance, which they claim has been invalidated by a recent ruling of the State Supreme Court. However, it is understood that the Six Companies would like to compromise the matter so that the task of exhuming the bodies may be carried on expeditiously.

Consul-General of Japan Under KnifeSubmits to Successful Operation

SAN FRANCISCO, May 20.—Nagai, the Japanese consul-general, was today operated on for appendicitis and is in the Adler Sanitarium. The consul-general has not been in the city of health for some time and called in Dr. Max Rothschild, who, with Dr. Rixford in consultation, pronounced it a case of appendicitis and advised an immediate operation.

Dr. Alanson Weeks was elected as the surgeon and he performed the operation, the patient rallying rapidly afterward.

As Nagai is the only son of a family very prominent in the affairs of Japan, his case is being watched with much interest on both shores of the Pacific.

POLICE AFTER THIEF.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 20.—While the family were attending a funeral yesterday afternoon a burglar broke into the residence of Fletcher Jones, 564 Capp street, taking jewelry to the value of $60. A neighbor saw the man leaving by a window and the police were given a good description of him.

HILLSBOROUGH, May 20.—Hillsborough is to have eight miles of improved highways, according to a plan that has been mapped out by William A. Brewer, the mayor, and the city trustees. The improvements will cost about $75,000. Bonds will be issued.

Engineers are at work drawing up specifications. It has not been decided whether the highways will be of asphalt or macadam.

The estates of Miss Jennie A. Crocker, Charles Templeton Crocker, Henry P. Bowle, Edward Howard and Frances C. Brewer will derive considerable benefit from the proposed improvements.

Hospital.

NEW YORK, May 20.—The condition of William M. McAdoo was reported as satisfactory today at St. Peter's Hospital in New Brunswick, N. J., where he has been since the automobile accident in which he was severely injured Thursday afternoon, together with Mrs. J. B. Harriman. Mrs. Harriman will be able to leave the hospital in two or three days. In spite of his three broken ribs and fractured arm McAdoo has managed to do a good deal of telephoning and today received several visitors.

The Cooks are making an effort to change the burial ordinance, which they claim has been invalidated by a recent ruling of the State Supreme Court. However, it is understood that the Six Companies would like to compromise the matter so that the task of exhuming the bodies may be carried on expeditiously.

LA FOLLETTE IS
TROUBLEHis Manner of Forcing Lorimer Case Causes
Disaffection

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 20.—Senate leaders, Democrats and Republicans alike, are facing a row which may be more serious than any that has occurred in that body for many years. The expected trouble has to do with the manner in which the Senate shall once more take up the case of Senator Lorimer of Illinois with a view to declaring his seat vacant.

Senator LaFollette has given notice of his intention to re-open the Lorimer case next Monday. It is his purpose to have the case referred to a special committee of fifteen. The obvious purpose of Mr. LaFollette is to keep the case away from the committee on privileges. Mr. LaFollette and members of the Senate who agree with him, are of the opinion that it would be useless to send the case back to the committee on privileges and elections. These Senators want action; they want it at this session and they want Senator Lorimer deprived of his seat before the present session adjourns. While Senator LaFollette is determined to keep the case away from that committee, other members are determined it shall go there. Several members of the committee have declared their intention to resign therefrom if Senator LaFollette has his way.

Senator Sutherland of Utah, is one of those who has given warning that he will resign, and he says his resignation will be accompanied by others. It so happens that Senator Sutherland was not a member of the committee in the last Congress. He is not counted upon as a supporter, for he voted to unseat Lorimer at the last session of Congress. He is one of the six members of the committee on privileges and elections and he has informed the Republican Steering Committee that all of these new members will regard the proposed LaFollette method of procedure as a reflection on their honesty.

Senatorial protestations have been made to the Democratic Steering Committee by Democratic members.

Assigns Long Life

Childhood, But Was Never Under Influence.

HERSHEY, Neb., May 20.—Lawrence Phillips, who died near here a few days ago at the age of 105, attributed his long life to the fact that he drank intoxicants from childhood, although he was never drunk. Phillips had resided in Nebraska fifteen years, having come from Virginia. Up to three weeks prior to his death all of his faculties were as acute as a man of 40 years of age. Then he went to pieces. He had drunk beer all his life. During the last ten years of his life he had drunk three quarts daily, one quart immediately after breakfast, one after noon meal and the third just before retiring.

KAISER TURNS HIS BACK ON GEORGEHeated Argument of Monarchs in Public Followed by Icy Coldness.Significant Scene Occurs as Wilhelm Is About to Leave London.

LONDON, May 20.—An extraordinary scene, capable of only one interpretation, occurred at the Victoria station this afternoon on the occasion of the departure of the Kaiser. The King passed through the royal reception room to the platform, talking heatedly with the Kaiser, who was smiling his palms severely and so engrossed was the King in his argument that he was apparently unaware that he was within the public view. Suddenly, with an expressive gesture, the Kaiser turned away from the King and began talking to Lord Londsdale.

King George thereupon deliberately turned his back upon the Kaiser and commenced talking to the Duke of Connaught, without taking notice while the Kaiser bade farewell to the other members of the royal party.

GIVES SINGLE BOW.

Without further word with King George, the Kaiser and Kaiserine entered the parlor car, while the King disdainfully continued his conversation with the Duke of Connaught. King George seemed suddenly to think better of his position and went on board the car, bowed gravely and only once to the Kaiser and Kaiserine without shaking hands. He then turned his back upon the Emperor and resumed his conversation with the Duke of Connaught, and did not once look around before the train steamed out.

The waiting royalties on the platform were obviously aware of the tense significance of the occasion and stood around in gloomy silence. The effect of this sinister incident was not lost on the privileged spectators within the royal enclosure as the King, with a gloomy face, returned to Buckingham Palace.

'FEEL LIKE A KID,' GOVERNOR ASSERTSTakes Auto Trip to Los Angeles, Where He Will Rest
for a Few Days.

LOS ANGELES, May 20.—"I feel like a kid. This is the first chance I've had to play since I was elected," said Governor Johnson at the Alexandria Hotel tonight. The governor came down from Sacramento in an automobile driven by his son, Archie, and accompanied by Col. D. M. Duffy, his former law partner.

The purpose of his trip was primarily to get a brief rest from the cares of state and to accept the invitation of the Young Men's Christian Association to deliver an address Monday night on behalf of the $500,000 campaign. Mrs. Johnson is to arrive tomorrow.

In reference to the suggested appointment of H. Morrill of this city to succeed L. E. Aubrey as state mineralogist, Governor Johnson declined to make any statement beyond the fact that he had received an inquiry about the matter by wire today. He would not say whether, or not he intended to decapitate Aubrey, but made the significant remark that he believed the story to that effect originating in San Francisco to be erroneous.

Husband Called Slap
Jest; Judge Mirthless

James Sweeney, arrested at his home, 219 Sixth street, by his wife and a policeman, was found guilty on a charge of battery preferred by the woman before Judge Aaron Turner yesterday. EUROPE APPLAUDS AMERICAN BEAUTY

Princess Radziwill Proves Better Horsewoman Than Europeans.

(By CAMILLE CIANFARRA.)
ROME, May 20.—It is speaking temperately to say that the American colony in Rome is delighted over the splendid equestrian victory won by the beautiful American, Princess Antoine Albert Radziwill, formerly Miss Dorothy Deacon—a victory won in the face of family opposition and thunderstorm. Princess Radziwill is the beautiful sister of the international beauty, Gladys Deacon, who is a daughter of Mrs. Edward Parker Deacon and granddaughter of Mrs. Baldwin of New York, widow of the late Admiral Baldwin.

The Princess has just carried off the big prize in the international ladies' riding competition at the Tor Di Quinto, outside of Rome. She was the youngest of the competitors, all of whom were members of the Rome hunt. She cleared the last fence to the loud cheers of the people while the thunder roared and the most vivid flashes of lightning illuminated the low hills around Rome in her honor.

The prowess of the Princess when seated in the pignin is so well known here, that she is called the "Deacon Diana." So finished was her riding that cavalry officers took special delight in studying the way she took her horse to the well known and difficult water jump.

Miss Fanny Reid, Henry Cachard, Count de Loubersac and other friends have telegraphed their congratulations. Since her marriage and contrary to the wishes of her husband's family, the Princess with Prince Radziwill has taken more than ever to her favorite pastime of horse riding and never misses a meet on the Roman campaign.

As a matter of fact, the Radziwills, because of a division of interests have never become thoroughly reconciled to the Deacon alliance.

Some members of the family are extremely fond of the American Princess while others maintain a haughty attitude towards the new member. Though considering themselves Lithuanians, the members of the Prince Antoine branch spend most of their time at the Villa Bon Compagni, near this city.

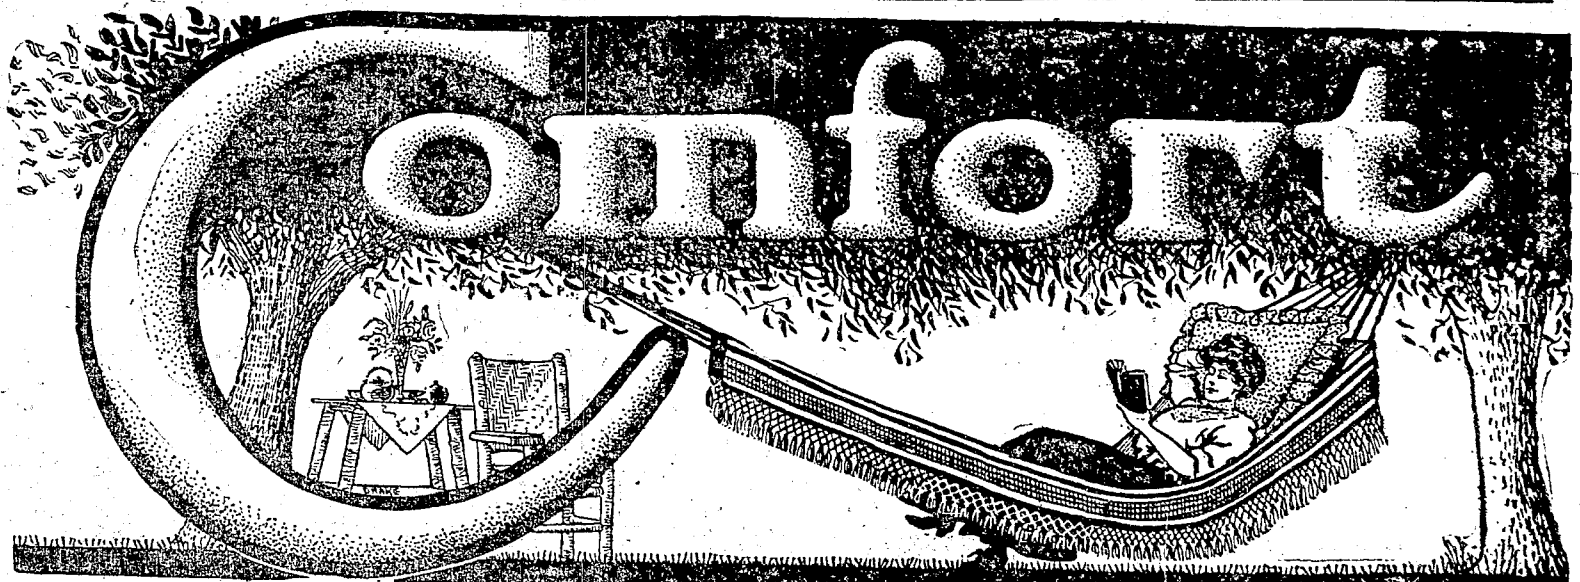

DROP CHARGES AGAINST OHIOANS

Accused Cincinnati Grafters Are Freed of Indictments.

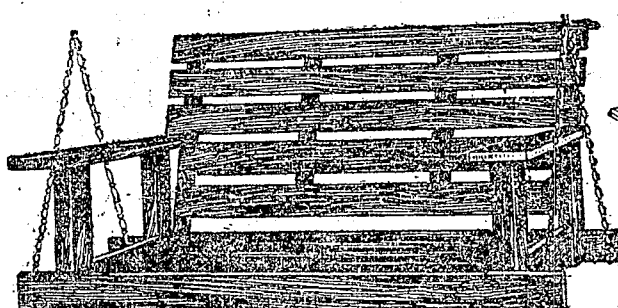

CINCINNATI, O., May 20.—On the ground that it is impossible to convict on the evidence in the possession of the State, Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Cash presented Judge Hunt yesterday a formal request for the nolle of the indictments against Engineer H. P. Shipley and Contractors August Henkel, Conrad Henkel and W. W. Coney, charged with irregularities in the case of cement in street paving.

Without comment, Judge Hunt approved the nolle and ordered the indictments formally dismissed. This action leaves the perjury charge against George B. Cox as the only important case remaining from those returned by the January Grand Jury which investigated public affairs here.

RATE SUSPENDED.
WASHINGTON, May 20.—Freight rates advanced on plaster board by the Union Pacific railroad from Blue Rapids, Kansas, to destinations in other states, were suspended today by the Interstate Commerce Commission from May 23 to November 23.

FEW MEN LEFT AT FT. SAM HOUSTON

Men Away on Hike to Leon Springs; Busy With Problems.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, May 20.—If those people who saw immediate intervention in Mexico when the United States troops were mobilized at Fort Sam Houston some weeks ago could visit the camp now and find only enough men there to guard it and look after sanitary conditions, they would change their belief. While it is a fact that southwest Texas has experienced more wet weather since the soldiers came than in any like period in the history of this country, it is also true that the army has been kept busy since its arrival here regardless of weather conditions. Just now the entire division is away on a hike to Leon Springs, all departments being kept busy in working out military problems.

These marches try out the men in a most emphatic way and determine, too, just how much in the line of hard work the soldiers of the United States army can endure. In some of the marches made, men who have been in the extreme north for several years have gone down under the vigor of the sun in this semi-tropical climate. In fact in one march, the ambulances were practically filled before the close of the day with soldiers who had grown faint marching in the burning sunshine. But these men are rapidly becoming acclimated and during the grueling march yesterday in a temperature in the shade of more than 80 degrees, only four men took to the ambulances, and it is said two of these were suffering from ill-fitting shoes rather than fatigue.

MISSING WIDOW IS SOUGHT ACROSS BAY

SAN FRANCISCO, May 20.—The police have been asked to make a search for Mrs. Henry Oatis, 216 Fourth street, who has been missing from her home for several weeks. The matter was reported by Mrs. Carrie Palmer of the same address.

The missing woman is a widow and was formerly employed by a laundry in Los Angeles.

ACTIVE TRADING MARKS THE WEEK

Rendition of Supreme Court Decision Has Good Effect.

NEW YORK, May 20.—The most active trading of the year in the stock market followed the rendition on Monday of the Supreme Court's decision in the Standard Oil case, and prices rose to the highest level in several months. The decision was interpreted favorably in the financial community, and predictions of a revival in trade, together with the relief which was felt at the ending of the long period of uncertainty brought about a period of heavy buying. The rapid advance was checked late in the week by extensive realizing and the lessening of the demand from the short interest, which covered large lines.

Increased demand for funds for stock market purposes resulted in a hardening of rates in the money market. Transactions in the bond market continued on a large scale, and the readiness with which a $12,000,000 bond issue was marketed, indicated that the investment demand was still good. Success of the forthcoming issue of Panama bonds was foreshadowed by quotation of the bonds "when issued," at well above par.

Reports of industrial conditions indicated a slight improvement here and there, though the general situation is little changed.

DECREE TELLS WIFE OF HER SEPARATION

SAN FRANCISCO, May 20.—Claiming that she knew nothing of a suit instituted for divorce by her husband until the decree was handed down, Mrs. Hattie Perry has started proceedings to have the decree set aside.

Mrs. Perry was married to Albert S. Perry at Harrisburg, Pa., July 15, 190. They separated a few days later, and February 27, 1907, the husband secured a divorce in Los Angeles.

Decrees granted today:

By Judge Graham—Pearl E. from Harry A. Graham, desertion. Maud from Alfred Granger, desertion.

Suits were filed as follows: Robert A. against Minerva Katherine Symes, desertion; Jessie against Walter H. Weeks, failure to provide; Edward P. against Louisa F. McLean, desertion; Sophie E. against Thomas Holland, desertion.

ICE BREAKING UP IN FAR NORTH

Steamers Sail Down Yukon; Men to Mark the Boundary.

WHITE HORSE, Yukon Territory, March 20.—The ice on the Yukon river has broken north of Hootalinqua, the steamer Canadian, of the White Pass and Yukon route, sailed from the foot of Lake Lebarge yesterday for Dawson with passengers and freight. The lake will be ice-free about June 5.

On the Canadian are 100 men of the American and Canadian boundary survey parties who will mark the international line from the Forcup river to the Arctic Ocean, a task that will occupy two years. The Yukon is now open all the way from Lake Lebarge to the sea.

The White Pass and Yukon route expects to handle $12,000,000 worth of gold dust during the coming season. The gold estimate includes the output of the Klondike dredge, which is shipped to San Francisco.

SAN MATEO ASKS A FERRY SERVICE

SAN FRANCISCO, May 20.—The third monthly meeting of the San Mateo County Development Board was held yesterday in San Bruno, with the Rev. William A. Brewer, Mayor of Hillsborough, in the chair.

Cheaper transportation to peninsula points was the principal topic. Henry P. Bowles' plan of establishing a ferry system from San Francisco to San Mateo is under consideration.

An effort will be made to have the Southern Pacific Railroad Company reduce its local passenger rates, which the development board characterized as being too high.

CHARGE MILK IS FROM SICK COWS

Solano County Dairyman Is Again in Trouble With the Health Authorities.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 20.—F. Mozetti, a Solano county dairyman, whose ranch is located four miles above Berkeley, is again in trouble with the San Francisco Health Department. He has been summoned to appear before the board on Tuesday to show cause why his permit to sell milk in this city should not be revoked.

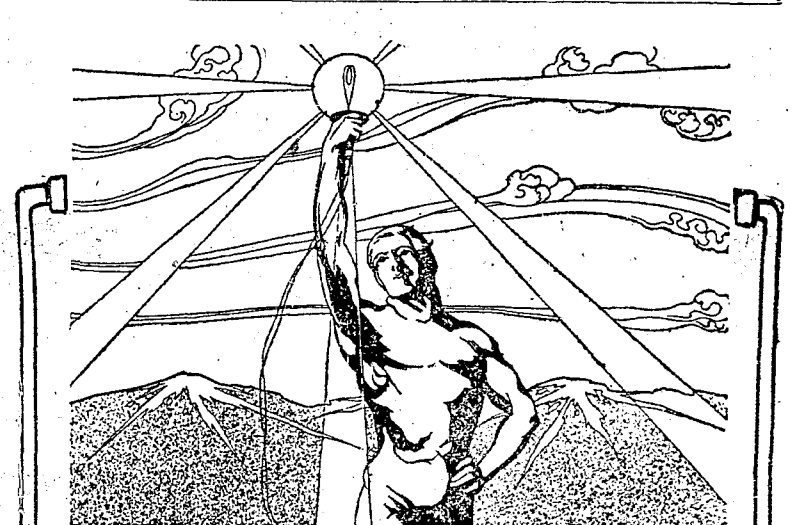

The citation is the result of inspections recently made of his premises by Chief Milk Inspector James P. Dockery, Inspectors Lendrum and O'Connor, and Policeman H. S. Prowse, who discovered that several of the eighty cows, the milk from which he has been sending to this city, were badly diseased.

The result was the seizure and dumping of seventy gallons of Mozetti's milk on its arrival in this city, whereupon the dairyman reported at the Health Office and promised to do everything required if allowed to continue his business here.

Health Officer McNutt sent Chief Inspector Dockery to the ranch again yesterday to tell the dairyman what must be done in the way of cleaning up his premises and to see that the five diseased cows had been killed, as Mozetti promised. Whether he will be allowed to continue doing business here depends upon Dockery's report.

WELLS-FARGO TO TAKE PLACE OF RIVAL

ST. LOUIS, May 20.—Beginning July 1, the Wells-Fargo & Company express will displace the Pacific Express Company on the Missouri Pacific, the St. Louis, Iron Mountain and Southern, the Texas and Pacific and the Wabash.
